—It is reported that Phillips Brooks is to go to England next summer, to preach some University sermons.

—Bishop Ryan has been transferred from the supposititious Diocese of Tricomia, which he has never visited, to be Archbishop of Salamis. It is not stated that he quite knows where the place is. He is very sure never to visit it. It was the old law of the Church that Bishops should reside in their Diocese. What a shepherd, never to have seen or been within a thousand miles of his sheep!

—Dr. Ridding, little known on this side of the Atlantic, is to be Bishop of the new See of Southwell, in England, and Canon Stubbs, author of the Constitutional History of England, is to be the Bishop of Chester.

—Another Church School for boys of the highest order, modelled after St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., is soon to be built at Groton, Mass., for which $100,000 has been subscribed, and a valuable estate given.

—Dr. Phillips Brooks never said a truer word than when he declared that, "If we could sweep intemperance out of the country, there would hardly be poverty enough left to give healthy exercise to the charitable impulses."

Of 300 members on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange one day, it was ascertained that 17 were superintendents of Sunday Schools.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Rev. Dr. Cole of Nashotah has secured $2,000 of the $50,000 which he is soliciting in Philadelphia, toward the $445,000 needed to secure Judge Howe's gift of $55,000 for the endowment. He does not seem to have any idea that the Chicago Seminary is going to absorb Nashotah.

—Dr. Foy of the Campbellite Church in this city recently stated to his congregation that thereafter they would rise during the singing of the Gloria Patri.

—The Living Church declares that it has 14,000 circulation each week, that one-half of the clergy are on its list, and it thinks that many of the other half would take it if they could read it a while and judge for themselves. It has therefore been offered to such at seventy-five cents for the first year, and other new subscriptions sent by them at that rate. This is certainly an enterprising cheapness for what is given in return. The Living Church Tracts have reached a sale of nearly 200,000. They are not on controversial but practical subjects, and a full sample set may be had for 30 cents, at 162 Washington St., Chicago.

—When Bishop Jagger, of Southern Ohio, wrote to Bishop H. C. Potter, of New York, about the distress caused by the inundations in his Diocese, and asked for help, Bishop Potter put forth a pastoral letter on the subject, and at the same moment, without waiting, telegraphed Bishop Jagger to draw on him for $5,000, trusting that money would all come in.

—The Rev. Mr. Leonard has started a parish paper in Atchison, The Trinity Church Visitor, the first number of which, filled with interesting matter, has reached us.

—A movement is on foot to secure subscriptions for the erection of a hall at Racine College, in memory of Dr. DeKoven. The Board of Trustees has been much strengthened by the election and acceptance to position on it of Alexander Mitchell, of Milwaukee, and Mr. George Armour, of Chicago. The Rev. Dr. Gray, Warden, and Mrs. Gray, have spent some days in this city during the last month, on their way south.

—The State University is putting out from time to time bulletins concerning the State Agricultural College Farm. They are on some special subject, interesting to farmers, about which experiments have been made. The latest bulletin, No. 7, is on feeding wheat and corn; the best manures to be used for their growth.

—The Rev. Jos. T. Wright, of Lincoln, Neb., late of St. John's, is publishing a series of popular tracts on subjects representing, it is stated, the live issues of the day in the religious world. We have seen one on Revivals, and one on Why do you have Confirmation? They are sketched out with a free, strong hand, and are issued at 75 cents a hundred copies, post-paid.

—This is the way the Globe-Democrat puts it: The next Presidential election will be determined by the vote cast within four miles of the City Hall, New York City. If that vote is less than 40,000 Democratic majority, the result will be one way; if more than 60,000 it will be the other way.

—The Churchmen in Montana have started a very neat monthly, the Montana Churchman, a copy of which has come to us. Its purpose is to work up local energy, in view of the times when they can stand alone. Its words have a manly tone.

—The Centennial of the organization of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, is to be held in Philadelphia on the 22d of May, and for several days thereafter.

—Lehigh University is likely to receive eight or more millions of dollars after a while as resulting from the death of the second and only remaining son of Judge Packer, the founder and munificent benefactor of the University.

—The consecration of Dr. Watson to the Bishop of East Carolina was to have taken place on the 10th, with Bishop Green as the Consecrator.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.

The Bishop has recently received a curious work. There was no edition of the full Prayer Book published in the Confederacy during the war. Portions were published for the soldiers, but never the whole of the book. An edition, however, was published by Eyre & Spottiswoode in London from the ordinary plates, but with the word United erased, and the word Confederate put in. This edition, having the imprint of Richmond, Virginia, was placed on board of a blockade runner, which, however, when entering Charleston harbor, was chased and taken by a Federal cruiser, and the Prayer Books captured. They therefore never got within the Confederacy.

These books were scattered among the officers; a few were exposed for sale in New York, and in 1863 the Bishop was presented with one by an officer. It was a 32 mo. book; with flexible Morocco covers. Curiously enough, in two places, by an oversight, the word United had been left in by mistake. In the Thanksgiving for victory at Sea, the congregation prays that they "may be a safeguard unto the United States;" and in the oath of conformity in service for the Consecration of a Bishop, he promises conformity to the doctrine, &c., of the Church in the United States.

In 1868 this book, which was much valued, was taken by some one. Since then the Bishop has never seen, and until recently has not heard of another copy of the book. He inquired in Richmond, and the Secretary of the Historical Society, who knows everything about American books, declared that he had never seen or heard of a copy. An inquiry made by an agent in London disclosed that Eyre & Spottiswoode had no copy and said the book was unprocurable. Recently, however, at a book auction in Boston, the Bishop heard that a copy was to be sold, and sent an order to his agent who secured the volume for him. It is a curious relic of war days. R.

BOOK NOTICES.

The English Illustrated Magazine—March.—The table of contents of this number quite keeps up the credit of the previous issues. The articles are from the best authors; in this number, among others, the author of John Halifax, Gentleman, Miss Yonge and Walter Besant, contribute. The illustrations are perfect, and the price, fifteen cents a month, or $1.50 a year, is very low. Macmillan & Co., 112 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Mumu, and the Diary of a Superfluous Man. By Ivan Turgeneff. The recent death of Turgeneff, the great Russian novelist, has greatly intensified the interest in his novels. Sketches of his life, and estimates of his work have abounded in the reviews and magazines of Europe. Able and enthusiastic critics have pronounced him the greatest European novelist of our times. The two stories here given are excellent representations of his powers. "Mumu" depicts in graphic style the serf-life of Russia; and "The Diary of a Superfluous Man," the condition of Russian upper classes. Published by Funk & Wagnalls' (10 and 12 Dey St., N. Y.) Standard Library, No. 107. Price, 15 cts.

Beginning a Christian Life, pp. 8.
Concerning Reverence, by Rev. John Wright, 4 pp.
The Value of Infant Baptism, by Rev. John Wright, 4 pp.

Arise and be Baptized, by Rev. A. G. L. Trew, pp. 15. For person professing Christianity, and yet refusing baptism.

The Plain Command, for the Holy Communion, 2 pp.

The Sunday School. Some suggestions to Teachers, by Rev. M. M. Moore, pp. 11.

The Ministry of Praise. Letter to a Choir member, by the Rev. M. M. Moore, pp. 12.

These excellent leaflets are published by Thos. Whittaker, and will be found of great use in the parish. 2 Bible House, N. Y.

Animal Automatism and other Essays. By Prof. T. H. Huxley. No. 53 of the "Library of Popular Science." Price, post free, 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York.

"In this volume are contained five of the most instructive and interesting of Professor Huxley's later essays, namely that on the hypothesis that animals are automata, and its history; that on Science and Culture; on elementary instruction in Physiology; on the border territory between Animals and the Vegetable Kingdom; and on Universities actual and ideal."

"Is our Civilization Perishable?" The question is asked in the North American Review for March, by Judge J. A. Jameson, who considers the several agencies by which the overthrow of the existing civilization might be effected. In the same number of the "Review" there is an article of extraordinary interest on "Agricultural Politics in England," by William E. Bear, editor of the "Mark Lane Express." "A Defenceless Sea-Board," by Gen. H. A. Smalley, is a description of the unprotected harbors and coast cities of the United States; and though the author employs none of the arts of the rhetorician, his statement cannot fail to awaken the people of this country to the importance of being in peace prepared for war. "Neither Genius nor Martyr," is the judgment pronounced upon the wife of Carlyle by Alice Hyneman Rhine, whose contribution to the Carlyle controversy is characterized by much force. In "The Story of a Nomination," W. O. Stoddard recounts the hitherto unpublished history of the means by which the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for a second presidential term was brought about. Other articles are "Literary Resurrectionists," "How to improve the Mississippi." Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

Von Moltke's portrait, which is a fine frontispiece, and the character portrait of Irving as Hamlet, lend a personal interest to the March Century.

The paper on "The Next Presidency," by ex-Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh, is a powerful analysis of the political situation, and a cutting satire on the men who are responsible for abuses which await the reforming hand of the kind of President Mr. MacVeagh delineates.

In their order, the illustrated papers are an interesting description of "The New Washington," considered both in its material and social aspects. The writer, who prefers to remain anonymous, is a well-known author, who is intimately acquainted with Washington life. Richard Grant White writes, with his usual pith, about "Old Public Buildings in America," and the pictures explain as well as embellish.

The fiction of the number includes the fourth part of Robert Grant's "An Average Man," the fifth of Mr. Cable's "Dr. Sevier," and a short story, dealing with social prejudices in a Western city, and entitled "Mrs. Finlay's Elizabethan Chair."

Louisa M. Alcott's third "Spinning wheel Story," entitled "Eli's Education," is a leading feature of the March number of St. Nicholas, and paints a true picture of the struggles of a country lad to obtain an education in the early years of the present century.

Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney contributes a brightly written story, called "Girl-Noblesse," which is not without "boy interest," however, and which, while possessing its full share of incident and adventure, is a clever story of character as well.

Lucy Larcom has a bright little March poem, called "The Wind Flower." Palmer Cox tells and shows how the adventurous Brownies went up (and came down) in a balloon; Emily Huntington Miller has some strong and feeling verses on the Life Saving Service; R. B. Birch has illustrated and engrossed six pages of funny jingles, entitled "An Alphabet Menagerie," and there are some excellent verses besides these.

The eminent Bible scholar, Rev. Dr. Philip Schaft, is to contribute to the April number of the North American Review an article on the Development of Religious Liberty.

The enterprise of the Travellers' Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., has caused them to contribute to the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Pedestal Committee a subscription for a sufficient number of copies of the official engraving of the statue, as it will be, to enable it to present one to every editor in the United States. It is a beautiful production, and is a piece of enterprise in keeping with the character of the Company in Hartford, Conn.

STORY OF THE MERV, by Edmond O'Donovan, 25 cents.
MUMU, AND THE DIARY OF A SUPERFLUOUS MAN, by Ivan Turgeneff, 15 cents.

MEMOIR AND RIME, by Joaquin Miller, 25 cents.
CHRISTIANITY TRIUMPHANT, by John P. Newman, D.D., 15 cents.

Nos. 106, 107, 108 and 109 of the Standard Library, published by Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, has come to our table. The whole series of publications has been well chosen, and these equal those which have gone before. They are put out fortnightly, at $5.00 a year, in stout manilla covers, of convenient size, and handsomely printed. They give all forms of the best current literature.

Miss L. B. Humphrey opens the March Wide Awake with a fine brochure for a very sweet poem entitled "Her Angel." John Preston True, the popular author of "Their Club and Ours," follows with a merry school story; "The Indian School at Carlisle," an interesting account of the Congressional visit last year to this national school for Indian children. The serials are delightful: the wonder-story, "In No-Man's Land," "A Brave Girl," the Smith College serial by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps; and "A Double Masquerade," the Revolutionary Romance.

$3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

The Homiletic Monthly for March presents a full, varied and interesting table of contents, suited to the tastes and wants of the large and cultured class of thinkers and workers which looks to it for mental stimulus and instruction. We note a change in the sub-title of the work indicating a wider range of topics, the Review element. The leading sermon in the present number is an able and eloquent one by Dr. Deems, of New York, on "Paul at Athens." The other full sermon, by Dr. Witherspoon, of Louisville, Ky., is a thoughtful and vigorous exposition of "The True Oblation." "Lay Criticism on the Ministry," from such men as A. S. Hatch, President of the New York Stock Exchange, and Noah Davis, Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court of New York, will receive due consideration by those most directly interested. Price $2.50 a year; 25 cents a single number. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York.

THE LIVING CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARY. Vol. I. TRIUMPHS OF THE CROSS. First Series. The tales of Christian Heroism, written by the late Dr. Neale, are reproduced in a neat and attractive form, and withal at a cost, which would make this and succeeding volumes, like this, most interesting and valuable for the children's reading. Price 25 cents. Living Church Co., Chicago.

MISCELLANY.

—Senator-elect Blackburn was once stumping his district in Kentucky with a very able opponent. Blackburn spoke first and delighted the audience by the manner rather than the matter of his speech. The other man began by saying that his predecessor on the platform reminded him of a swan, that beautiful bird which glides along, the perfection of grace, and dips and curves in lines of beauty, "but only draws an inch or so of water!" This proved an effective turn for that meeting.

—On one occasion during the war, when Anna Dickinson had moved an audience to alternate cheers and tears, Wendell Phillips, who had spoken at the same meeting, said to her: "Anna, I would give much to be able make the people cry as you do. Why cannot I do it?" "I suspect the reason is because you never cry yourself," was the answer.

—The Christian Advocate announcing special services at one of the Methodist churches last Sunday, says: "It may interest some present to know that the pastor has in his possession the cradle in which Bishop Janes and his twin brothers were rocked. It may be seen at the church next Sunday." This is much akin with the worship of the Bambino.

—Speaking of politeness, we recall an instance in which a person was misjudged for years, because she had neglected to acknowledge the receipt of a present. A beloved old lady, who was herself a model of good breeding, taking a fancy to a young girl who was almost a stranger to her, had sent as a small remembrance a wedding present of a prayer book. The old lady never received one word of acknowledgement, and put down the neglect to her usual humor—"Young America!" I often heard her say, "That girl did not care a straw for the book I sent her!" Years after the dear old lady had left us forever, I became intimate at the house of the young girl, now a mother of a family, and on her book-rack, hunting for a volume one day, I came across this prayer book, worn with constant use. "Do you know that book?" asked she; "I think more of it than of any other. Dear Mrs. — gave it to me, and I was so touched by her remembrance of me. So lovely in her. I have used it ever since for my own private prayers." A few words of acknowledgement, with her warm thanks, would have pleased the giver, and saved the recipient from many years of false judgment.

—Of cases like Mr. Heber Newton's Dr. J. H. Newman says, in the current number of the Nineteenth Century: "In certain cases there may be a duty of silence, when there is no obligation of belief. Here no question of faith comes in. We will suppose that a novel opinion about Scripture or its contents is well grounded, and a received opinion open to doubt in a case in which the Church has hitherto decided nothing, so that a new question needs a new answer: here, to profess the new opinion may be abstractedly permissible, but it is not always permissible in practice. The novelty may be so startling as to require a full certainty that it is true; it may be so strange as to raise the question whether it will not unsettle ill educated minds, that is, though the statement is not an offence against faith, still it may be an offence against charity. It need not be heretical, yet at a particular time or place it may be so contrary to the prevalent opinion in the Catholic body, as in Galileo's case, that zeal for the supremacy of the Divine Word, deference to existing authorities, charity toward the weak and ignorant and distrust of self, should keep a man from being impetuous or careless in circulating what nevertheless he holds to be true, and what, if indeed asked about, he cannot deny. The household of God has claims upon our tenderness in such matters, which criticism and history have not. For myself, I have no call or wish at all to write in behalf of such persons as think it a love of truth to have no 'love of the brethren.'"

A DANGEROUS AMBUSCADE.

Discovered Barely in Time—The Most Deceptive and Luring of Modern Evils Graphically Described.

(Syracuse Journal.)

Something of a sensation was caused in this city yesterday by a rumor that one of our best known citizens was about to publish a statement concerning some unusual experiences during his residence in Syracuse. How the rumor originated it is impossible to say, but a reporter immediately sought Dr. S. G. Martin, the gentleman in question, and secured the following interview:

"What about this rumor, Doctor, that you are going to make a public statement of some important matter?"

"Just about the same as you will find in all rumors—some truth; some fiction. I had contemplated making a publication of some remarkable episodes that have occurred in my life, but have not completed it as yet."

"What is the nature of it, may I enquire?"

"Why, the fact that I am a human being instead of a spirit. I have passed through one of the most wonderful ordeals that perhaps ever occurred to any man. The first intimation I had of it was several years ago, when I began to feel chilly at night and restless after retiring. Occasionally this would be varied by a soreness of the muscles and cramps in my arms and legs. I thought, as most people would think, that it was only a cold and so paid as little attention to it as possible. Shortly after this I noticed a peculiar catarrhal trouble and my throat also became inflamed. As if this were yet variety enough, I felt sharp pains in my chest, and a constant tendency to headache."

"Why didn't you take the matter in hand and check it right where it was?"

"Why doesn't everybody do so? Simply because they think it is only some trifling and passing disorder. These troubles did not come all at once, and I thought it unmanly to heed them. I have found, though, that every physical neglect must be paid for with large interest. Men cannot draw drafts on their constitution without honoring them sometime. These minor symptoms I have described, grew until they were giants of agony. I became more nervous; had a strange fluttering of the heart, an inability to draw a long breath, and an occasional numbness that was terribly suggestive of paralysis. How I could have been so blind as not to understand what this meant I cannot imagine."

"And did you do nothing?"

"Yes, I traveled. In the spring of 1879 I went to Kansas and Colorado, and while in Denver, I was attacked with a mysterious hemorrhage of the urinary organs and lost twenty pounds of flesh in three weeks. One day after my return I was taken with a terrible chill and at once advanced to a very severe attack of pneumonia. My left lung soon entirely filled with water, and my legs and body became twice their natural size. I was obliged to sit upright in bed for several weeks in the midst of the severest agony, with my arms over my head, and in constant fear of suffocation."

"And did you make no attempts to save yourself?"

"Yes, I made frantic efforts. I tried everything that seemed to offer the least prospect of relief. I called a council of doctors and had them make an exhaustive chemical and microscopical examination of my condition. Five of the best physicians of Syracuse and several from another city said I must die!"

It seemed as though their assertion was true for my feet became cold, my mouth parched, my eyes wore a fixed glassy stare, my body was covered with a cold, clammy death sweat, and I read my fate in the anxious expressions of my family and friends."

"But the finale?"

"Came at last. My wife, aroused to desperation, began to administer a remedy upon her own responsibility, and while I grew better very slowly, I gained ground surely until, in brief, I have no trace of the terrible Bright's disease from which I was dying, and am a perfectly well man. This may sound like a romance, but it is true, and my life, health and what I am are due to Warner's Safe Cure, which I wish was known to and used by the thousands who, I believe, are suffering this minute as I was originally. Does not such an experience as this justify me in making a public statement?"

"It certainly does. But then Bright's disease is not a common complaint, doctor."

"Not common! On the contrary it is one of the most common. The trouble is, few people know they have it. It has so few marked symptoms until its final stages that a person may have it for years, each year getting more and more in its power and not suspect it. It is quite natural I should feel enthusiastic over this remedy while my wife is even more so than I am. She knows of its being used with surprising results by many ladies for their own peculiar ailments, over which it has singular power."

The statement drawn out by the above interview is amply confirmed by very many of our most prominent citizens, among them being Judge Reigel, and Col. James S. Goodrich, of the TIMES, while Gen. Dwight H. Bruce and Rev. Prof. W. P. Coddington, D.D. give the remedy their heartiest endorsement. In this age of wonders, surprising things are quite common, but an experience so unusual as that of Dr. Martin's and occurring here in our midst, may well cause comment, and teach a lesson. It shows the necessity of guarding the slightest approach of physical disorder, and by the means which has proven the most reliable and efficient. It shows the depth to which one can sink and yet be rescued, and it proves that few people need suffer if these truths are observed.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he owes, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his creditors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."

—[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]
 For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845," and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIAN WOMEN WORKERS.

DIOCESE OF MISSOURI.

I have just learned that Mrs. Twing, the Honorary Secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the Board of Missions, to whom has been confided by the Board the duty of maturing such a system for the training and distribution of Women's Services, particularly in missionary matters, as may be found most practicable and efficient, proposes, in coming West, in the latter part of this month, to make a visit to St. Louis. She is willing and desirous while here to hold a conference with the ladies of our congregations, and especially those who are interested in any form of Church work; as she has done in many cities, and as her large experience entitles her, to encourage and to give direction to the Christian activity of women.

Her convenience suggests that Friday, May 2d, would be the day best fitted for the Services of the Holy Communion, and an appropriate address, in the morning; and a Conference by Mrs. Twing in the afternoon.

While my own long standing engagements in a distant part of the Diocese will prevent attendance on my own part, I have the deepest interest in the proposed gathering, and hope that it will commend itself to the ladies of all our congregations who are interested in deepening and widening, and systematizing our various kinds of Christian and benevolent work. The Conference spoken of above may be, if thought best, followed by others in the few days following. Such gatherings as these, of a devotional and practical kind, have been held with the greatest advantage in a number of the cities of the East.

I have appointed the Morning Service spoken of above for Christ church at 10:30 a. m., and have requested the Rev. Dr. Schuyler to deliver the address. The Conference will be had in the Chapel adjoining. After the Service, and before the Conference, a light lunch will be served in the Guild rooms below. The time for a subsequent Conference will be duly announced.

I hope that all ladies engaged or interested in any form of Church or benevolent work will endeavor to be present. I am sure that it will be an occasion of interest and profit.

C. F. ROBERTSON,
Bishop of Missouri.

St. Louis, April 11, 1884.

THE Bishop seconds the invitation made by the Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd to the clergy of the city, to be present, so far as they may, at the Consecration Service on Sunday afternoon next.

As the canon as recently changed requires that licenses for lay readers should be issued for a definite time, and this time runs out at Easter, it is desirable that so soon thereafter as possible nominations for lay readers should be made to the Bishop.

It probably is known that by the action of the last General Convention the Table of Lessons given in the Prayer Book is no longer of authority in the Church, and that another has been duly set forth. Copies of the present authorized table have been sent by the Secretary of the House of Deputies to all clergymen, and this only is now authorized for use.

THE Presiding Bishop has called a meeting of the House of Bishops for Tuesday, April 22d, in Grace church, New York, for the purpose of going into the election of Missionary Bishops for China and Africa, caused by the resignation of Bishops Schereschewsky and Penick, on account of broken health. The Bishop of this Diocese has replied that on account of the pressure of duty in the Diocese, just before Convention, he cannot attend.

PERHAPS it may be permitted to the Bishop in this place to acknowledge the many kind expressions of sympathy which he has received within the past few days, at a time of deep personal grief, the responses to which could not separately be made. Associated with this was the giving to him of a cross of silver, by the Rector of St. George's church, at Easter, made from the overplus of the offerings given for the Communion Service, to which reference is made in another place. It is heavy and rich, the arms ending in trefoil. Under the circumstances, and with the sacred associations of the devoting of the memorial silver, the gift has a deep and tender value, and will be kept and appreciated.

WILL clergymen kindly remember that the canon on the subject requires that they should present to the Bishop at the time of the Service, the names of the persons confirmed. When this is not done then, it is apt to be neglected, and the Bishop has to write specially calling attention to the omission, and asking for the list. Much time, trouble and expense is saved by handing in the list at the time. Of course circumstances sometimes require that this should be postponed. In that case it should be sent so soon after as possible, so that it may not be overlooked. When the candidates are presented after the reading of the preface, then it is very convenient that the names be handed to the Bishop.

THROUGH a paragraph in the last number of the NEWS a package of valuable books and papers, which belonged to Judge Ferguson as Registrar, have been sent to the Bishop. They were bought at the sale by a Church lady, and were shut up in an escritoire. Still, many things are apparently lost. Among other things, the record book of the Trustees of St. Paul's College, Palmyra, from the beginning; the history of the Diocese written by Rev. Dr. Coleman; the package of early letters from Bishop White and others, given by Mr. Richard H. Spencer; the histories of a number of the parishes in the Diocese, which were made up some years ago, and given to the Registrar.

PRAYER BOOKS.

From time to time in generally not large numbers, the Bishop has given to parishes and missions in the Diocese supplies of Prayer Books which he had received for distribution. These are given freely, so far as they go; but an implied condition is that those who receive will give according to their means, either directly to the society which present them, (usually the N. Y. Bible and Common Prayer Book Society, Jas. Pott, Agent, 12 Astor Place, New York, or the Bishop White Prayer Book Society, J. S. Biddle, 1714 Locust street, Philadelphia), or to the Bishop for him to forward. But very rarely are any returns made. The books and hymnals would easily be worth 25 cts. each if bought, and 10 or 15 cts. each should be returned, if possible, for them. In most cases, the Bishop does not receive any intimation of the receipt of the package, or acknowledgments. He has to hope that it has been received.

But after a time the supply of books in the Bishop's hand gives out, and he desires to send for another lot, and yet has received no money from those who have been benefitted. He is naturally reluctant to send when the case stands thus. There is no other fund on which he can draw to pay for these books. Persons concerned can put these thoughts together, and act as seems to them just. It is better often for regular parishioners to buy their prayer books. They respect themselves and value the books more, and take better care of them, if they are their own property.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The vestry of Trinity church, Kansas City, have accepted plans for building their church which will be of the gothic style of architecture, of rubble stone, cut pointed. The edifice will have a frontage of forty feet on Tracy avenue and a depth of 105 feet on Tenth street, with both front and side entrances and a seating capacity of 600. On either side of the chancel will be doors leading on the one side to the rector's study and on the other to the organ room. It is intended to begin on the basement of the church as soon as the weather will permit and push it rapidly to completion and roof it over for immediate use, while the rest of the work is progressing. The basement will be divided into three rooms by glass sliding doors. It will be neatly furnished and carpeted for use until the upper part of the edifice is completed, when it will be used for the guild meetings and to prepare decorations during the festival season. The church will be an ornament to that portion of the city.

—Mr. Samuel N. Watson, the son of the Rev. Dr. Watson of Red Wing, Minn., a graduate of Shattock Hall and Trinity College is about to be transferred to this Diocese. He was advised that the climate of the north was too rigorous for him. He has until within a few weeks been a member of the senior class at Faribault, but is now in the theological department of the University of the South, and will finish his course August 1st, and will shortly thereafter apply for orders. He is a superior scholar.

—Early in the morning of Sunday, 16th ult., fire was discovered under the chancel of Trinity church in this city, which unfortunately had gained such a headway that it destroyed the altar and two of the windows. It was caused by hot ashes, which probably had needlessly been allowed to be where they ought not to have been. The only good side is that the loss was fully covered by insurance.

—The Rev. Mr. Henry of Louisiana, recently held services at Faber on the Alton Road, the first service held there, when a congregation of from 75 to 90 was present. A number of our people live in the town and vicinity.

—At the Bishop's visit to Trinity church, St. Louis, on Sunday morning 30th, the service of confirmation and ordination were united. The former was made more interesting from the circumstances that it probably was the last that would take place in the old church. Sixteen were confirmed. Mr. Henry Cornelius Dyer was presented for Deacon's Orders by the Rector, the Rev. Mr. Betts. The Bishop preached the sermon. The injury done by the fire a fortnight before was largely concealed by large curtains, hung on rods, as a reredos. The insurance companies paid $350 for the injuries done. The lot purchased is on the northwest corner of Thirty-fourth street and Franklin avenue. One hundred feet on Franklin avenue were bought at $140 a foot. Work on the foundation has been begun. The building will be of frame and very plain, and it is hoped that it may be finished without debt by Trinity Sunday. A residence has been taken for Mr. Betts very close by.

—In the change of time of the appointments for Sunday, 23d ult., in consequence of the Bishop's inability, the confirmation service for the Church of the Holy Communion was appointed for the Sunday night following, 30th. The congregation was very large, and the number confirmed was fourteen. The flowers which, on the previous Sunday, in expectation of the Bishop's visit, had been placed in the vases by the Rector, and a large and most beautiful piece placed be one of the vestrymen, for his son who was to be confirmed, were sent with a kind note to the Bishop's sick room.

—The building of the Chapel of St. Luke's Hospital is being vigorously pressed, and an idea can be had of its proportions and size.

—The Confirmation Service in Columbia on the 23d ult., was possessed of much more than usual interest. The number and influence of many of those to be presented caused that the Service should be much regarded. The church was more than full, many stood throughout, others had to come into the vestry room and a number left. Sixteen were confirmed, and a large accession made to the strength of the parish. The Rev. Mr. Whitten has great reason for strong encouragement in his work. The Rev. Mr. Gray of Florida, recent rector of the parish, had been in Columbia for a few weeks, on account of sickness in his family, but unfortunately had to leave the day before the Service, in which he had taken deep interest. Something is being said about the removal of the church to a more eligible location, or the erection of a new church; and one or the other of these plans to give the church a larger and more permanent structure will be likely to be accomplished within a short time.

—It will be noticed that the consecration of the Church of the Good Shepherd in this city has been fixed for Sunday afternoon next, 20th inst. It is hoped that very many from the other parishes of the city, and of the clergy will be present. Scarcely another church in St. Louis has a more difficult task to meet. It is located among a German population little responsive to religious influences, near the beer gardens; and so the growth must be very slow. It has paid for its property with effort, and its people are deeply attached to its church. Lately, and in anticipation of this Service, they have carpeted the church, sodded the grounds, and set out trees, newly roofed the guild room, furnished the vestry room, and done very many other things which betoken their liberality and devotion. They need a new organ, and this is their next object of endeavor. Let as many as can encourage the little parish, and be present at half-past three on Sunday afternoon.

—Trinity church in this city recently gave a deed of trust to M. A. Wrightman on 100 feet of ground purchased on Franklin avenue, for $6,000, for the erection of its new church building.

—The Bishop, on the afternoon of Palm Sunday, visited St. James church, Ellettsville, preached, and confirmed four candidates.

—The Rev. M. A. Brown has relinquished the charge of the congregations in Nevada City and Clinton, and is at present in Boston. He did not collect any amounts for the projected college in Clinton, nor was he transferred to this Diocese by Letters Dimissory.

—The annual confirmation at St. Peter's church took place on Palm Sunday night, a congregation being present which quite filled the church. Many improvements have been made in the interior of the building. A number of palm trees were placed significantly in the church. The Bishop preached and confirmed six candidates.

—The liberality of a lady, a communicant of St. George's church, enabled the Rev. Mr. Chesnut to have the interior of the church of the Advent whited and refreshed. It greatly needed this after the stains produced by the leaking roof, which was replaced last summer. The Bishop visited the parish on Monday in Easter week and confirmed three persons.

—The United Services, so far as they have gone at this writing have, been largely attended by congregations representing nearly all the parishes in the city, which show how much they are valued.

—The increased numbers in the School of the Good Shepherd in this city are causing many inconveniences, suggesting the great need that they should have larger and more convenient quarters. There are now between ninety and one hundred children. But just now the difficulty has presented itself with regard to the closing exercises of the School. They have always been held in the large school room; which has been nearly filled by the scholars, leaving with the halls and other parts of the house scant room for the parents and friends of the scholars. This year the difficulty is increased by the larger size of the school, and of the graduating class especially, all of whom have friends who desire to be present. On account of the lack of accommodation, the graduating class has been inclined to ask that the closing exercises of the year be omitted. The Bishop does not think that this is wise, and has suggested other alternatives rather than this.

—The Exposition managers have offered $7,500 for the lot in the rear of Christ church, and between that and the alley, but the offer has been declined, because of the opposition of the officers of the Academy of Science. The title of the property is in litigation between the Lucas heirs and the Academy of Science and the Historical Society.

—The girls' school at Macon is to be called St. Agnes Hall. The building purchased by Mrs. Louisa Atkinson Smith has ten rooms, and was originally built for the purpose of a school, and to this an addition of about equal size will be built, so as to accommodate boarders.

—The Rev. George More, formerly of this Diocese, but more recently of Illinois, will shortly take charge of St. Charles and Montgomery City. The church at St. Charles no longer owes any debt, and its Sunday-school has been vigorously maintained during the long vacancy, and has furnished steadily well-prepared candidates for confirmation.

—The Rev. H. C. Dyer will act as the assistant to the Rector of Trinity church, St. Louis.

ST. LUKE'S CHAPEL.

The corner stone was laid as expected on Wednesday afternoon, 9th ult., by the Bishop. On account of the postponement, not so many persons could be present on a week day afternoon. Still nearly two hundred were in attendance. The procession was formed in the Hospital. The Rev. Mr. Betts who had, under the Bishop's direction, compiled the service, acted as Marshal of the occasion. The choir of men and boys of Trinity led the singing. After the cross bearer came the choir, then the trustees, then the clergy, and then the Bishop. Then proceeded from the Washington Avenue entrance around to the platform erected on the foundations of the building. The stone is in the southwest corner.

Of the clergy there were present the Rev Dr. Schuyler, and Messrs. Betts, Reed, Silvester, Green, Chesnutt, Alcorn and Sturges Allen. Of the Trustees, Messrs. Thomson, Potter, Freeborn, Pope and Hutchins were present.

After the processional hymn, and a prayer, the verses 10-17 of 1. Chronicles, 29th chapter, were read by the Rev. Mr. Sylvester, the 122d psalm was chanted, and the 282nd hymn was sung, the Vice President read a list of the deposits in the stone, which was then marked, and a blessing asked on it, and it was fixed in its place. The Creed was then said, the corner stone formally laid, and the 277th hymn sung.

The Bishop then briefly stated the steps taken in the growth of the Hospital, and the fact that from its foundation its benefits had been free so far as any religious or medical tests were concerned, that it maintained all the poor which its means would support; that as some one body must be responsible for its management, the Church had without any selfish purposes, and at large outlay, maintained it.

He then introduced the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, the Chaplain, who made the following address:

"In the very few words I have to say, I wish to emphasize this single fact in connection with the ceremony of laying this corner stone, and that is, that we owe the erection of this chapel to the pious offering of an individual Church woman, in memory of a dearly loved grandson. What better monument could parental love rear to commemorate the virtues of the departed. And it is an interesting fact in connection with this devout act, that it had been in the heart of him who is now commemorated, to make this same offering in honor of a deceased father. Contrast for a moment, my friends, a monument like this, which will, I trust, stand for generations to serve in its multiplied ministries to the glory of God and the good of man, with the most colossal shaft of granite or marble in Bellefontaine. The one stands there in its cold selfishness, amid the snows of winter, and under the burning sun of summer, bearing the name, and speaking it may be in terms of adulation of him who sleeps beneath; and the passer by leaves it unnoticed, or scans the inscription with careless indifference; the others stands with open doors, its walls resonant with the praises of God; with words of comfort and instruction to many a sin-sick soul, and speaking at the same time to every grateful heart of her who reared it, and of him who is thus lovingly commemorated. But I wish to emphasize the fact, that the chapel to be reared here is the gift of an individual, in order if possible, to stir in some other heart and mind the holy purpose to 'go and do likewise.' It is now nearly sixty-five years since the Church was organized in this city, and this is the first example of such devotion. We have had, and now have, Churchmen worth their hundreds of thousands of dollars, who not only have not thought of such a thing while living, but have died so far as an offering to God is concerned, without 'making a sign.'"

"From all I can learn, but two have left any bequests in their wills to the Church or Church Institutions. And while such bequests are most desirable, and often can only be made by a last will and testament; yet past experience proves that such a gift may easily be stopped by dissatisfied heirs; and there must always be uncertainty as to the carrying out the pious purpose of the Testator.

"How much better then to plan and execute our deeds of charity while living! What a satisfaction will it be to her, who is spending her thousands in rearing the walls of this unique chapel, which will be a gem of architectural beauty, to witness its consecration, should God spare her life to be present on that occasion, and how gladly would she ever after visit the consecrated place for worship, where such hallowed memories must be enshrined.

"May I not then be permitted to express the hope, that other members of Christ's Holy Church may be stimulated by her example to rear a like monument to their memories; which shall be perpetuated, not only by the outward walls of the material edifice, but by the consecrated lives of those who from generation to generation have been led from darkness to light, through the teaching of its holy services."

The services were closed by prayer and the singing of the 202nd hymn as a recessional. The building will be pushed on vigorously to its completion. It faces west on Twentieth street. The lower story will be used for offices, and the chapel will be on the level of the second story. It will communicate with the hospital building.

ST. GEORGE'S, ST. LOUIS.

The memorial communion service for St. George's Church, is attracting considerable attention on account of the unusual beauty of the designs and the peculiar sacredness of the associations connected with it. The gold and silver of which it is composed were contributed by members of the congregation, mostly in the form of articles formerly belonging to deceased relatives and friends. These were melted together in the United States Assay Office, and were afterwards brought up to full standard, the silver to sterling and the gold to fourteen carats. Out of the material thus provided a service of six pieces has been manufactured as follows:

1. Paten of solid gold on silver stand with Agnus Dei as monogram, and around the edge the words: "This is My body which is broken for you."

2. Distributing paten, centre monogram of Christ Triumphant; inscription, "Jesus gave unto the Disciples, and the Disciples unto the Multitude."

3. Chalice, with monogram and inscription, "This is My blood which is shed for you."

4. Chalice, with monogram and inscription, "I will receive the Cup of Salvation."

5. Flagon, an exquisitely-designed vessel, with monogram on the centre of the bowl, and on a band surrounding the bowl these words: "St. George's Church, Easter, 1884." Around the base of the flagon runs a scroll bearing the words, "In memory, in faith, in hope, in love."

6. Alms basin, a magnificent plate of solid silver, 15 inches diameter, the inner surface richly gilt. Around the outer rim are the words, "All things come of Thee, O Lord, and of Thine own have we given Thee." On the inner surface of the plate a perfect engraving of St. George's Church.

This beautiful service was offered and used for the first time on Easter Day. By competent ecclesiologists it is pronounced perfect, and from the standpoint of merely secular art, it is undoubtedly a beautiful contribution to the art treasures of St. Louis.

THE CALLING OF A RECTOR.

It is astonishing to observe the mistakes that sensible men who are Vestrymen make in the matter of calling a Rector. If a Parish becomes vacant that can give but $600 or $800 salary, the Vestry seem to think that, because it is their particular Parish, they can obtain the services of almost any Clergymen in the country. They seem to forget that Clergymen, like other men, must live and must support their families; and they wonder why it is difficult to get a man who is worth $1,500 or $2,000 salary, and is perhaps getting it, to come and take their Parish for $700. A Vestry should remember that the best talent can only be commanded by the best salary. If they want a man with all the graces and gifts of the Ministry, the experience is that they cannot get him, because he is already well settled elsewhere.

The average Vestryman thinks that any Clergyman almost in the country would gladly accept the Rectorship of his Parish, whatever the support might be. But it often happens that large and important Parishes have some difficulty in procuring Rectors. Calvary Church, New York, and St. Stephen's Church Philadelphia, were vacant for a long time. Each of these have made repeated calls, and their calls have been declined. If this is so in such cases, why not to a greater degree in smaller Parishes? The Parish that is usually a desirable one for Clergy is one that is united, harmonious and filled with a people interested in the work of the Church, and anxious to do what they can do to promote its interests.

Parishes have reputations, as well as Clergy. If a parish treats its Minister well, pays him promptly all that is promised him, and all that it can pay him, helps him in his work, throws no hindrances in his way, is not cut up into cliques and factions, or honeycombed with jealousies, it may be said to have a good reputation, and vice versa. It is a rare thing that such a Parish, is obliged to wait long for a Clergyman, unless, indeed, it expects to get a man for $700 who is worth twice as much, and probably receiving it. If vestries and congregations realized how difficult it is to supply vacant Parishes in these western Dioceses they would not be so ready to part with their present Rectors. But they often think that a change would be beneficial, they let their Minister go, and then they are months and sometimes years vacant, running down and losing ground all the while. They want an eloquent preacher, a learned scholar, an affable gentleman, a devoted pastor, a live man, and all this for $700 a year.

And sometimes they feel as if the Church at large had slighted them because they cannot on the instant secure such a Rector for such a salary.

STEALING A MINISTER.—The March Century has the following to say in its editorial pages: The church that calls a settled minister is said to be guilty of an act precisely like that of a woman who hires your cook out of your kitchen. But if there is any wrong in this case, it is in the fact that your cook is ignorant and easily imposed upon; that the woman who has coaxed her away offers her no better place, and thus injures you without benefiting your servant. If the servant is able to judge for herself, and knows that she is improving her condition by the change, what right have you to stand in the way of her going, or to complain of another for giving her what you withheld? This kind of outcry is never heard concerning any class of employes save those who are assumed to be unable to choose wisely for themselves. The cashier of a bank, the superintendent of a railroad is called from one place to another, and nobody ever thinks of questioning his right to go, or the right of another employer to offer him employment. There seems to be no good reason why the minister should not be credited with as much judgement, and allowed as much liberty as is granted to a bank cashier or a railroad superintendent. There seems, then, to be no other method for a church to pursue, if it wishes to keep its minister, than which every employer must pursue who wishes to retain a valued servant. The church must keep its part of the contract, must see that its minister is not overworked, must co operate with him in all possible ways, must show him that his welfare is fairly considered. If after the church has done all this, the minister goes away, common sense will bring the church to one of two conclusions: it will either bow to the providential decree that has removed a faithful teacher, or it will thank God that it is rid of a trifle.

COUNT THEM.—Count what? Why count the mercies which have been quietly falling in your path through every period of your history. Down they come every morning and evening, angel messengers from the Father of lights to tell you of your best Friend in heaven. Have you lived these years wasting mercies, treading them beneath your feet, and consuming them every day, and never yet realized from whence they came? If you have, heaven pity you! You have murmured under your affliction; but who has heard your rejoicing over your blessings? Do you ask what are the mercies? Ask the sunbeam, the rain-drop, the star or queen of night. What is life but a mercy? What is the propriety of stopping to play with a thorn bush, when you may just as well pluck sweet flowers and eat pleasant fruits? Happy is he who looks at the bright side of life, of providence and of revelation; who avoids thorns and sloughs until his Christian growth is such that, if he cannot improve them, he may pass among them without injury. Count mercies before you complain of afflictions.

It is reported that nearly 800 churches, an average of about eight a month, have been burned in the United States in the past nine years. In 1882 there were 119 thus destroyed, at a loss of $672,170, and a loss to insurance companies of $312,280. Defective heating apparatus and incendiaries are the chief causes of these fires.

GET away from the crowd a little while every day, my boy. Stand to one side and let the world run by while you get acquainted with yourself, and see what kind of a fellow you are. Ask yourself hard questions about yourself; find out all you can about yourself. Ascertain from original sources if you are really the manner of man people say you are; find out if you are always honest; if you always tell the square perfect truth in business deals; if your life is as good and upright at 11 o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as sound a temperance man on a fishing expedition as you are at a Sunday school picnic; if you are as good a boy when you go away as you are at home; if, in short, you really are the sort of a young man your father hopes you are, your mother says you are, and your sweetheart believes you are. Get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and, believe me, every time you come out of these private interviews you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, and it will do you good.

STARTING BOYS IN LIFE.—Clark Mills, the sculptor, recently deceased, had some peculiar ideas about the education of children. He was fairly well-to-do, but he allowed his sons while they were being educated a pittance so small that his friends remonstrated with him. "But," said he, "I want them to learn economy. Young people should learn economy. Young people should all be trained so as to meet reverses in business. Simple tastes and frugal habits are a better inheritance than broad acres of government lands. My boys go to Munich to pursue their studies. Living is cheap in that city, while art is free. The money that an American college boy would waste in careless expenditure will suffice to maintain an art student in many parts of Germany very handsomely indeed." Mr. Mills was quite right; it is well to make allowance to children for their clothing and current expenses, and confine them rigidly to the annual appropriation. Heads of families who encourage thriftless habits by paying all the bills without question, must not be astonished, if daughters do not know the value of money, and sons become spendthrifts.—[Southern Journal.]

A STRANGE FACT.—It is wonderful, the exquisite pain we contrive to give the people whom we really love very much! We give it by snarling and snapping, saying sarcastic, biting things; the idlers of the family being often the busiest in this occupation. Now, with the bee, we forgive the sting for the sake of the honey, but who can forgive the wasp? And who can forgive the bee if he stings not his enemies, but his friends? And that is what some of you do: and oh! the sting rankles and poisons the life of people for whom, I verily believe, you would lay down your own. Yes, you would die for them, but will not check your ill-temper or your ill-feeling enough to enable you to live with them.

"When two conscientious people quarrel, both think themselves right. But hard words will not mend the matter; one might as well try to mend glass windows by pelting them with stones."

SUNSHINE AT HOME.—Many a child goes astray, not because there is a want at home, but simply because home lack sunshine. A child needs smiles as much as the flowers need sunbeam. Children look little beyond the present moment. If a thing pleases, they are apt to seek it; if it displeases, they are apt to avoid it. If home is a place where faces are sour, and words harsh, and fault-finding is ever in the antecedent, they will spend as many hours as possible elsewhere.

The Church Missionary Society of England brings home the children of missionaries and has established a home for them. Wishing to move this Home from London to a rural district the managers have been greatly helped and very much gratified by the receipt of $50,000 from an English clergyman and his wife. It was given as a "practical token" of "deep sympathy" with missionaries engaged in the Lord's work abroad.

A SEVERE REBUKE.—John Locke, the English philosopher, was a favorite with many of the great noblemen of his age. They liked his robust sense and ready wit, and enjoyed even the sharp reproofs in which he occasionally indulged. On one occasion he had been invited to meet a select party at Lord Ashley's. When he came they were playing at cards, and continued absorbed in the game for two or three hours.

For some time Locke looked on, and then began to write diligently in a blank book taken from his pocket. At length they asked him what he was writing. He answered, "My lords, I am improving myself the best I can in your company; for having impatiently awaited this honor of being present at such a meeting of wise men and great wits of the age, I thought I could not do better than to write down your conversation, and here I have in substance all that has passed this hour or two."

The noble lords were so ashamed at the written record of their frivolous talk, that they at once stopped card playing.

JEFFERSON'S TEN RULES OF LIFE.—The following rules for practical life were given by Mr. Jefferson, in a letter of advice to his namesake, Thomas Jefferson Smith, in 1825. 1. Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day. 2. Never trouble others for what you can do yourself. 3. Never spend your money before you have it. 4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap. 5. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold. 6. We never repent of having eaten too little. 7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly. 8. How much pain have those evils cost us which never happened? 9. Take things always by their smooth handles. 10. When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, count a hundred.

TRUST IN OUR FATHER.—"Johnny, don't you think you have got as much as you can carry?" said Frank to his brother, who was standing with open arms, receiving the bundles his father placed upon them "You've got more than you can carry now."

"Never mind," said Johnny, in a sweet happy voice; "my father knows how much I can carry."

How long it takes many of us to learn the lesson little Johnny had by heart! "Father knows how much I can carry." No grumbling, no discontent, but a sweet trust in our father's love and care, that we will not be overburdened. Our heavenly Father never lays a burden upon us that we cannot bear. So we will trust Him as little Johnny did his father.

FRANKLIN'S ECONOMY.—When Benjamin Franklin started in business for himself as printer, bookseller, etc., a man who was in the same line of business stepped into Franklin's shop one day and said, "I am determined to drive you out of the trade." "Stop!" said Franklin; "see if you can do it. Do you see that?" he said, directing his attention to a black loaf made of barley, "that is what I eat, and," pointing to a glass of water, "that is what I drink, and when you can live upon less than these you can drive me out, and not before." The result of the experiment is well known; Franklin's economy and industry secured for him an easy victory.

The remarkable work of charity conducted at Bristol, England, by Mr. Muller prospered last year and when the year closed there remained about $11,000 to the credit of the orphans for whose benefit the Ashly Down institution is carried on. From the annual report it appears that 2,211 orphans were under Mr. Muller's care during the past year.

This is the age for supplying the world with the Bible. The beginning of this century it existed in but fifty languages. Now its truths can be read in two hundred and fifty dialects and languages. In the world there are more than fifteen hundred Bible societies, all organized since 1804.

"It'll make you work."—"I drink to make me work," said a young man. To which an old man replied: "That's right; thee drink, and it will make thee work! Hearken to me a moment, and I'll tell thee something that may do the good."

"I was once a prosperous farmer. I had a good loving wife and two fine lads as ever the sun shone on. We had a comfortable home, and lived happily together."

"But we used to drink also to make us work. Those two lads I have laid in drunkard's graves. My wife died broken hearted, and she now lies by her two sons. I am seventy two years of age."

"Had it not been for drink, I might have been an independent gentleman; but I used to drink to make me work, and mark, I am obliged to work now. At seventy years of age, it makes me work for my daily bread. Drink! drink! and it will make thee work."

It is estimated that the London Society for promoting Christianity among the Jews, founded in 1809, has been the means of converting 100,000 of that people. The Society has placed in their hands 2,000,000 copies of the New Testament in Hebrew. There are now 2,000 Jewish Christians in London, and probably 1,000 more in other parts of the kingdom.

There is a Bible still preserved, written on palm leaves, in the University of Gottingen, containing 5,376 leaves. Another Bible, of the same material is at Copenhagen. There were also, in Sir Hans Slon's collection, more than twenty manuscripts, in various languages, on the same material.

Mr. John Blair, the founder of the Blairstown Academy, N. J., has now given it, in addition to previous donations $100,000 restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St. Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

We are requested to state that all who feel it a privilege to contribute to this object are desired to send their contributions, either to Sister Catherine or the Rev. Dr. Schuyler within the next thirty days.

MR. Geo. R. Robinson, Jr., of Emmanuel Church, St. Louis County, has as Lay Reader been maintaining for two years past a Sunday School three miles away in a destitute portion of the County. He wants to get a cabinet organ, and has written to a number of friends for help. The object is worthy, and the aid could very worthily be bestowed. His address would be Webster Groves, St. Louis Co., Small aid, no doubt, would be gladly received.

IN another column reference is made to the proposed visit of Mrs. Twing to this city, and her meeting with the ladies of all the congregations in the interest of Church work. The matter is in some of our congregations already exciting very great interest and attention. Recently in Philadelphia Bishop Stevens held a Quiet Day for women workers, and held four services with addresses at each on subjects connected with woman's work. At this one thousand ladies were present, and on the day following two hundred and fifty met for a conference, which simply means that the interest aroused is to be directed into useful channels. Bishop Paddock of Massachusetts has a service on the third Wednesday of each month at 12 M. in St. Paul's Church, Boston, for the Holy Communion, with words of practical counsel on Christian work, and the Christian life. Other similar services are being held in New York and elsewhere. It may be hoped that ours in this city may lead to good results for all the interests which we have in hand.

ANOTHER SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.

Mrs. Smith of Staunton, Virginia, a sister-in-law of Bishop Lay and neice of Bishop Atkinson, who has for many years with her daughters carried on a successful school for girls, but who was desirous of establishing herself in a place of more growth and promise, has purchased property in Macon, and will open a boarding and day school next fall. The Rev. Mr. Talbot has been desirous of confining his work wholly to boys and young men. Inquiries were constantly made to him by parents who also desired to have their daughters educated, and to whom it would be desirable for sons and daughters to be in the same town.

When, therefore, the matter of Mrs. Smith's removal to the West came to Mr. Talbot's attention, he wrote to Mrs. Smith stating the grounds for thinking that Macon would be a good place. He also found an eligible property which could be bought for a low price, on the public park, in an accessible and yet retired position. After some correspondence Mrs. Smith has recently visited Macon, and on investigation being pleased with the prospect and the property, has purchased it as well as that adjoining, on which additions and grounds may be extended, and will remove out in June.

We may congratulate ourselves on this increase of our educational facilities, under the best of auspices.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street. St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of the Revs. Thos. R. Austin, D.D., of Indiana; Caleb S. Henry, D.D., of New York; J. H. Morrison, of Virginia; Henry S. Bonnell, of California; J. F. Spivey, of Kentucky; Frederick A. Wadleigh, of Vermont; B. T. H. Maycock, in London, England.

—Bishop Vail of Kansas has restored the Rev. Thompson L. Smith to the ministry. He is and has been for several years in Denver.

—"In the Cabinet circle all religions meet," says the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "The President is a High-Church Episcopalian, although his father was a Baptist preacher, and his sisters are all members of that church. Secretary Folger is a Presbyterian, and sits with the pastor's family at the New York avenue church, where Secretary Frelinghuysen and his family, and Postmaster-General Gresham and his family also attend. Secretary Lincoln, like his father, is a Presbyterian, but his wife is from a strong Methodist family, and they generally attend that church. Secretary Chandler and his family go to the Unitarian church, and are of the advanced and liberal thinkers of that body. Attorney-General Brewster and his wife always worship at the Epiphany, the largest and most fashionable of the Low-Church Episcopal congregations. Secretary Teller and his wife are very devout Methodists."

—Bishop Tuttle of Utah has been chosen by Columbia College, New York City, to represent his Alma Mater at the three hundredth anniversary of the University of Edinburgh, which is to be celebrated this day. He has, however, felt obliged to decline the honor.

—The death of Bishop Clarkson brought out the depth of the respect felt for him as a man and citizen, as well as the honor and love had for him as a Bishop. On the evening before the funeral a great public meeting was held in the Opera House, which was in charge of those not Church persons. Addresses were made emphasizing his value as a citizen, and one whose influence had been great in all the enterprises of the State. On the day of the burial, the public schools were closed in the afternoon, as well as the stores, and as the procession passed from the Bishop's house to the Cathedral, with the Bishop's remains carried on the shoulders of strong men, the streets were lined with people, and a quiet on the city. The beautiful Cathedral was densely packed, with two or three times as many outside, unable to get in. The Bishop was, at his desire, buried close by the south side of the Cathedral, and a monument will be erected there. His mind was wholly clear to the very last, and he arranged all the details of his affairs; the day before his death he had postal cards sent to his clergy, assuring them of his love, and even indicated the name of the clergyman whom he would like to have succeed him.

—Commodore Vanderbilt's recipe for making millions with certainty and celerity was never to sign a note; William E. Dodge would not hold any pecuniary interest in an enterprise that was at all active on Sunday, and he firmly believed that his wealth was a reward for conscientiously observing that day; the first John Jacob Astor's charm lay in investing nothing aside from his regular business except in real estate; and Alexander T. Stewart would have anticipated misfortune if he had broken only the smallest personal engagement.

GENERAL NEWS

—The roller skating rink has been introduced in numerous cities and towns of Iowa to promote the temperance cause, and it is so effective in attracting young men from saloons that the saloon-keepers are circulating petitions asking the Legislature to compel skating rinks to take out licenses.

—The current expenses of St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, last year were $15,413.49. They treated 439 patients in the Hospital.

—Baltimore, March 17.—Rev. J. A. Register, pastor of the Central M. E. Church, South, in this city, arose in Conference to-day, and after presenting the report of the operations of his congregation during the year briefly proceeded to announce his apostasy to the Protestant Episcopal Church. His remarks created most intense excitement, and dozens of his fellow clergymen came pressing around him, earnestly urging him to be not hasty. With tears in his eyes the reverend gentlemen, whose congregation is one of the wealthiest in the city, stated that he had thought well over the subject, although he had never given an intimation of his intention to a living being until he had informed the Conference. He felt sure that God had called him to his new work, and he accepted the call without question. At the conclusion of his remarks there was a solemn quietness in the Conference. Then Mr. Register again rose, and taking up his hat, walked down the aisle with bowed head and sorrowful mein. As he passed along several hands were outstretched to take a farewell. He will shortly apply for admission to the P. E. Church.

—The alumni of the General Theological Seminary, New York, have by their contributions extending over many years, secured $25,000 for an endowment of a Professorship of Christian Apologetics, and they have been called upon by voting papers to express their choice as to the incumbent of the chair.

—It is stated that the Church of the Ascension Chicago, from which Mr. Ritchie has gone to accept St. Ignatius Church, New York, has called the Rev. Mr. Mackonochie of London to its vacant pastorate.

—The announcement of the consecration of the Rev. Dr. Watson in our last was premature. It is appointed for the 17th inst., in Wilmington, N. C.

—There are now more than a quarter of a million of discharged prisoners living abroad in the United States. Their condition, the influences under which they live, what they learn while in prison, becomes therefore a matter of deep moment.

—Two new and stately buildings are to be erected immediately for the General Theological Seminary in New York, the gift of individuals. One is for a dormitory and the other a fire proof building for the library. The affairs are now being so well managed, that persons have a confidence in giving, knowing that the good sought will be done.

—The Warden of Racine, with the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, have put out a call to all friends of Dr. DeKoven, Racine, and Church people generally, to make contributions to erect a noble hall for the College, as a memorial of one who gave up his life to the work. It will be a part of the quadrangle. Amounts of any sizes, even small, are asked for and may be sent to the Rev. Dr. Gray, Racine, or Bishop McLaren.

—The Iowa Senate has passed the bill taxing all parsonages, houses of bishops and priests professors' houses, etc., where the value exceeds $3,000.

—The Evangelical Educational Society has offered a premium of $125 for an original tract, not exceeding ten octavo pages in length, which shall set before the young men of the Church the duty of consecrating themselves to the Service of God in the Holy Ministry, and shall urge upon them the various motives which lead thereto, and brief hints as to the nature of a call by the Holy Ghost. Competition is invited from clergymen and laymen from England and America. The Bishops of Delaware, Pennsylvania and Ohio will act as Committee. Papers not taking the prize will be returned, except such as may be retained with consent, which shall receive $25 each. Contributions should be sent before Sept. 1st, anonymously, to Rev. R. C. Matlack, 1224 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

—Rev. Messrs. Ege and Israel, Methodist ministers, have applied for orders in the Episcopal Church.

—In the voting by the alumni of the General Theological Seminary for a Professor of the Evidences of Revealed Religion, no person received a majority of the 352 votes cast, and a second balloting by voting papers is called for on the three names highest on the list, the Rev. Geo. W. Dean, D. D., having received 66 votes, the Rev. J.

H. Hopkins 60 votes, and the Rev. Jesse A. Spencer, D. D. have received 47 votes. This ballot is to close May 1st.

—The St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, by an almost unanimous vote, decided to close on Good Friday.

—Rev. Dr. Adams of Nashotah, a competent judge, cries halt in regard to the newly-published "Teaching of the Twelve Apostles," which is creating a great stir now, on the ground of the want of evidence of its being as early a writing as has been assumed, and of the proof that it does not represent the teaching of the general Eastern Church, where it was written, at that time.

—Some of the confirmations lately reported are very large. St. Augustine's, New York, 132; Christ, Detroit, 66.

MISCELLANY.

—The following, told in Bishop Whipple's wonderful way, has a mighty moral. When he entered York Minster for the first time he stood rapt in silence, overcome by the grand interior. Suddenly he was brought to himself by a typical American, of whose presence he had not been aware, and was accosted with a "Wall, stranger! there's one thing purty certain; the men what put up this here, didn't build stone houses for theirsel's and bass-wood houses for their God! did they?"

—A writer in the United Presbyterian declares that "Many minds must be grieved by the increasing custom of putting stained glass windows in houses of worship." He affirms that the innovation is creeping into the United Presbyterian churches, and he adds: "Certainly, there is nothing in the Bible appointing it."

—Sidney Smith once commenced a charity sermon by remarking: Benevolence is a sentiment common to human nature. A never sees B in distress without asking C to relieve him."

A SALE of aprons and other work from Christ Church Guild and the Dorcas branch, will be held at the residence of Mrs. A. E. Peters, 3555 Chestnut street, on the afternoons of April 23d and 24th.

Furstenfield, in Germany, boasts of the oldest tree in the country. It is a huge linden, believed to be 1,000 years old, and growing at the back of the village church, in the midst of the tombs of two centuries. Its trunk is fully fifteen feet in diameter, and its twisted branches stretch out far and wide, seemingly covering the entire inclosure. It is still growing.

Of over thirty-seven thousand persons arrested in Chicago in 1883, more than one half are reported as having no occupation. Old Mr. Watts was right when he wrote of "Satan," the crafty enemy of human goodness and happiness, that he always found evil work for "idle hands" to do.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

A YEAR'S WORK IN SUPPRESSING VICE.—The New York Society for the Suppression of Vice held its tenth annual meeting in Association Hall, New York City, recently. The treasurer read a report showing disbursements of $10,107.66. The receipts were $10,062.88. Anthony Comstock, in his report as secretary, said: "The tabular statement does not show as large a seizure of material as in former years, but that is due to the fact that the material does not exist to be seized, because the manufacturers know the certainty of being caught. Ten lotteries have been suppressed in this State. One hundred and twenty-eight arrests were made during the year, 10 being prosecuted in the United States Courts, and 118 in the State Courts; of these all but 31 were for gambling in policy, pools, lotteries, etc.; 125 convictions were secured on indictments and complaints; 78 were sentenced, 32 to terms of imprisonment, averaging 13 days each; the rest were fined, the fines averaging $54.82 to each person. Sentence was suspended in 45 cases." A tabular statement of the crimes committed by youths under twenty-one years of age during the last six months of 1882 and the first six months of 1883 shows a total of 768 arrested, 37 suicides and 30 attempts at suicide; 42 of these cases were for murder or felonious assaults.

BOOK NOTICES.

Whether the United States are to regain their former pre-eminent rank as a commercial and naval power on the seas, is a question that no American can contemplate with indifference. The subject is discussed with marked ability in the North American Review for April, by the Hon. Nelson Dingley, M.C., who opposes the project of admitting foreign built ships to American register, and by Capt. John Codman, who is well known as a zealous advocate of that measure. Judge J. A. Jameson, in the same number of the Review, discusses the question, "Shall Our Civilization be Preserved." The Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff gives a sketch of the "Development of Religious Freedom." Dr. Felix L. Oswald writes of "Changes in the Climate of North America," with special reference to the increasing frequency of disastrous floods. Prof. C. A. Eggert offers "A Plea for Modern Languages" in the higher education; and Julian Hawthorne discourses of "Literature for Children." Finally there is a discussion of "Recent Criticisms of the Bible," by the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton and the Rev. A. A. Mortimer.

The English Illustrated Magazine—April.—The illustrations, as well as the literary portions of this new English magazine, which is published also on this side, are equally good, and of very reasonable price. $1.50 a year. McMillan & Co., New York.

The April Century. Five profusely illustrated articles and a biographical paper with two portraits lend unusual pictorial interest to the April number. The frontispiece is a portrait of the late Sidney Lanier at the age of fifteen, and with the text of Dr. William Hayes Ward's essay on "Sidney Lanier, Poet," is also printed a portrait of the poet in mature age. In "Open Letters," Arthur Penn writes of "Sidney Lanier on the English Novel."

In their order, the illustrated articles are: "An interesting account, by E. V. Smalley, of the memories which cluster about 'The White House,' Miss Sarah Freeman Clarke's concluding paper of pen and pencil 'Notes on the Exile of Dante'; a description, by Edward S. Wilde, of the building and partial impairment of 'The New York City Hall'; 'Among the Magdalen Islands' of the Gulf of St. Lawrence; 'The Cruise of the Alice May'; and 'Progress in Fish-Culture.'

Foremost among the unillustrated papers, in point of general interest, is George Alfred Townsend's account of "How Wilkes Booth crossed the Potomac." His information was derived from the man who gave succor to the fugitive and his companion Herold, and who provided them with the boat which took them across.

The sixth part of Mr. Cable's "Dr. Sevier" the fifth part of Robert Grant's "An Average Man"; and a short story in negro dialect, Marse Chan, by Thomas Nelson Page, are the fiction of the number.

St. Nicholas for April, with its varied table of contents, reminds us, like the month itself, both of the winter that is past, and of the summer that is to come.

An account of the first ice palace, that built by the Empress Anna Ivanovna of Russia, is offset by a pleasant summer sketch, called "Fairy Lodge," which the author has charmingly illustrated.

The important "Historic Boys" series is continued with the interesting story of the boyhood of Henry V. of England, in which the author takes occasion to differ with the Shakspearean estimate of the Boy General's character. Louisa M. Alcott's third "Spinning-wheel Story" tells of the devotion and Spartan heroism of a young Indian boy, who rescues from captivity the children of his benefactor. A bright, breezy, wholesome-toned sea story is the Rev. Chas. R. Talbot's "How Bright Benson got his Appointment to the Naval Academy"; while John R. Coryell relates in "Tsang Tsan and the Man eater" the amazing adventure that really happened to a young China boy.

Of the serials, "Girl Noblesse," Mrs. Adelaide D. T. Whitney's clever study of boy and girl character, and "Winter Fun," W. O. Stoddard's entertaining account of boy and girl sport and frolic, are concluded.

A frontispiece of a forest interior, entitled "In the Sugar Orchard," opens the April Wide Awake. Another racy paper is given in this number, entitled "The Soap Bubble Question." The stories of the number are excellent. There is a true story of Revolutionary times, entitled "Aunt Polly Shedd's Brigade"; a true bear story, "The Doughnut Bait," and Mrs. Louisa T. Craig contributes one of her best, "Bee." Interesting chapters are given of the three serials: "A Brave Girl," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, "A Double Masquerade,"

$3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

The Homiletic Monthly for April strikes us as an advance upon any previous issue. Certainly very few of our periodicals present in a single number contributions from such an array of distinguished writers, American, English, and German. The leading sermon is by Prof. Christlieb. The shorter sermons by Drs. Henry J. Van Dyke, R. S. Storrs, and Canon Liddon and Rev. H. Spurgeon, of London, are admirable. Dr. Howard Crosby discusses "The Prevention of Crime," and Wm. A. Hammond, M.D., the distinguished specialist in brain diseases, shows "How Brain Overwork is Produced." Prof. Francis L. Patton discusses "Evolution" with exceeding ability, discrimination and thoroughness. Prof. Doremus and F. B. Thurber's "Lay Criticism on the Ministry" will interest numerous readers. Price, $2.50 a year; 25 cents a single number. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

The Bowsham Puzzle, by John Habberton. No. 110 of the Standard Series, by the author of Helen's Babies. A novel. 25cts.

My Musical Memories, by H. R. Hawes. No. 111 Standard Series. 25cts. A book for all who love music, or would cultivate a taste for it. The author's memories cluster about the "king of musical instruments," the violin; but are not limited to that one theme. Stradivarius, Paganini, Liszt, Wagner, come in for a part of his attention. The performance of Parsifal, at Bayreuth, is described somewhat at length, in a most captivating manner. A chapter on Old Violins shows the touch of a connoisseur, and is written in an animated style that arouses and holds even the most languid reader. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

Sermons. First Series, by Rev. Phillip Brooks. Thirtieth Thousand. It was not in order to make these sermons known that caused the publishers to put them in manilla covers and sell them for 50cts. They were already more widely known and read than any in this generation. This places, however, within the reach of all a collection of discourses which, if quietly read and absorbed, will vastly widen and strengthen a person's spiritual insight and grasp. The paper and type are the same as in the more costly editions. Get them and read them. E. P. Dutton, 39 West 23d street, New York.

Bible Forget-Me Notes.—A daily text book of divine promises.

Haveyall Forget-Me Notes.—A selection from Miss Haveyall's writings. Both these little volumes, done in a dainty way, have a promise for every morning and evening in the month. 25cts. each. E. P. Dutton & Co.

C. S. FREEBORN, { COMMITTEE.
J. B. GAZZAM,

It was estimated at Easter, 1883, that the expenses of the Parish for the coming year would exceed the income by about $2,000.00.

The result shows that the estimate was substantially correct. To this, however, must be added the remainder due on the bill for new carpet, ($400.00) as the subscription for repairs and renovation of the Church did not reach, by that amount, the necessary sum. The total to be raised, therefore at the Easter Offertory (next Sunday, April 13th,) is $2,400.00 without which we cannot enter upon another year at our present rate of expenditure, and there are no expenses which, in the opinion of the Vestry, can be cut down without prejudice to the interests of the Parish.

Christ Church, Vestry Room, April, 1884.

SECRET OF PROSPERITY.—One of the secrets of the prosperity of the French people and their ability to bear even the heaviest burdens without giving away under them, is the extraordinary thoroughness with which they cultivate their farms, vineyards and orchards, and the profits which they contrive to obtain from the smallest and seemingly insignificant products. We find a fresh exemplification of this in figures lately published in an exchange exhibiting the extent and profits of chicken raising. There are in France about 40,000,000 hens, valued at $20,000,000. One fifth are marketed yearly for the table, bringing about $4,000,000. The annual production of chickens is 80,000,000, worth in the city market $24,000,000, and $2,000,000 are added for the extra value of capons and fatted hens. The production of eggs is estimated at $40,000,000, making the total value of eggs and chickens $70,000,000, $2.21 to every man, woman and child in France. The power to make much out of little, and to live frugally on small means, and with limited resources to fall back on, is the distinguishing trait of the French people, and one worth emulating.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.—This medicinal preparation is one of a thousand of the patent kind placed before the public which has what it claims, "intrinsic merits," and does afford relief in diseases like dyspepsia, general debility, and many kinds of disorders peculiar to females. It has received the endorsement of hundreds of people of good standing throughout the country, and should it sometimes fail to effect a cure, it may be taken without deleterious results. It has become a staple medicine with druggists. One or two bottles, used in season, may save a heavy bill from the family physician.

The Duke of Westminster, one of the largest property-owners in London, will not allow intoxicating liquors to be sold in any premises rented from him.

Five centuries ago the cost of a copy of the Bible was $177.00. Now it can be bought for a dime and carried in one's vest pocket.

Do You Agree With Us?

We believe it to be high time that so-called modern methods of business—the Gift Enterprise Schemes, the Concert Schemes, and all other TRICKS calculated to draw trade—are dispensed with. No man living can afford to sell a man $10 worth of goods and give him from $2 to $5 worth of presents, without making him, in the language of Benjamin Franklin,

"PAY DEARLY FOR HIS WHISTLE,"

Dispensing with these methods enables us to offer you a FULL HUNDRED CENTS' worth for every dollar you may spend with us.

With an assortment unsurpassed in excellence and variety, we are in a position to cater to your demands.

An investigation of our stock is desired, and as it incurs no obligation to purchase, we await the pleasure of a call.

Probably never, since the invention of Corsets, has so large a demand been created as now exists for Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets and Belts. Over three thousand families in the city of New York alone are now wearing them daily.

Every Man and Woman, well or ill, should daily wear either the Corset or the Belt.

NOS. 1, 2, 3 AND 5 CORSETS ARE NOW DOUBLE STITCHED AND WILL NOT RIP.

If you have any pain, ache, or ill-feeling from any cause, if you seem "pretty well," yet lack energy and do not "feel up to the mark," if you suffer from disease, we beg you to at once try these remarkable curatives. They cannot and do not injure like medicine. Always doing good, never harm. There is no shock or sensation felt in wearing them. There is no waiting a long time for results; electro-magnetism acts quickly, generally the first week, more frequently the first day, and often even during the first hour they are worn, their wonderful curative powers are felt.

The mind becomes active, the nerves and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and the old-time health and good-feeling come back. They are constructed on scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating, health-giving current to the whole system. Professional men assert that there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

THE CELEBRATED DR. W. A. HAMMOND, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, lately lectured upon this subject, and advised all medical men to make trial of these agencies, describing at the same time most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem hopeless.

The Corsets do not differ in appearance from those usually worn; we substitute our flat steel magnetoids in place of the ordinary corset steels. These Corsets are all equally charged, differing only in quality and design. They are elegant in shape and finish, made after the best French pattern, and warranted satisfactory in every respect. The above applies equally as well to the Electric Belt for gentlemen.

The prices are as follows: $1, $1.50, $2 and $3 for the Corsets, and $3 each for the Belts. We now make all these Corsets in dove and white only. They are sent out in a handsome box, accompanied by a silver-plated compass, by which the Electro-Magnetic influence can be tested. We will send either kind to any address, post-paid, on receipt of price, with 20 cents added for packing or registration, and we guarantee safe delivery into your hands. Remit in post-office Money-Order, Draft, Check, or in Currency by Registered Letter. In ordering, kindly mention and state exact size of corset usually worn. Make all remittances payable to GEO. A. SCOTT, 842 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

N.B.—Each Corset is stamped with the English coat-of-arms, and the name of the Proprietors, THE PALL MALL ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."

Offertories will be received at these services for the Theological Education or the Permanent Episcopal Fund, of which notice is requested to be given. The Bishop will be ready to meet the vestry whenever it is desired, and to catechize the children whenever it is possible. He desires that the Holy Communion may be prepared for on Sundays and Festival Days. On week days, unless otherwise arranged, it is desirable that the service shall be at night; any other service which the time will permit will be had. The Bishop will be glad to meet the people socially when they can be conveniently arranged for. He desires that the parish register may be written up, and that he may see it.

MISSIONARIES TRAVELING EXPENSES.

The Bishop reminds the clergy and congregations of the custom which has obtained for many years of devoting the offerings for the Sunday before Convention to the fund for the traveling expenses of missionaries to Convention. Practically it is only by this help that they can come. As the traveling expenses of their clergy do not come on the St. Louis churches, it seems only fair that they and all the others should put their amounts together, and thus let the strong help bear the burdens of the weak.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS.

It has been the custom, for some years past, for the Bishop to read a portion of his Address at the afternoon session of the first day of the Convention, and the remainder of it at night, and then leave for the Bishop's reception. This arrangement was originally fallen into because it was represented that there were a number of persons in the city who would like to hear the more general portions of the Address, not members of the Convention, who could be present at night, but not in the afternoon. It has been found, however, that the number of such is not very large, while on the other hand the attendance at the Convention in the afternoon of the first day is very full, and the reading of the whole of the Address is often important in order to an intelligent appointment of any special committees. Moreover, many of the members of the Convention, for whom, in the first instance, the Address is prepared, are not able to be present at night, because of their staying in remote portions of the city, or out of town, and they lose all idea of what has been said.

This year, therefore, the Address will all be read in the afternoon session, and then an adjournment will be had until Wednesday morning, when the Standing Committees will be appointed and completed.

This arrangement will have also the advantage of leaving more time for the reception at the Bishop's Residence, when the clergymen and delegates from all parts of the Diocese can become acquainted with each other, and have more time together. Under the former arrangement they could not get through the Address and to the house until after nine o'clock, and this left but a very short time to be together. This year the whole evening will be devoted to this matter, and a cordial invitation is extended to the clergymen and delegates, those who are entertaining them, and all other Church people to be present at the Reception.

AN ENGLISH BISHOP'S DAY.

The following is an extract from a letter which the Bishop has recently received from the Suffragan Bishop of London, who has charge of the thickly peopled district in the East. It may do somewhat to remove the impression that the life of an English Bishop is one of lordly ease. He writes, on St. Mark's Day: "The date of this letter only means that I am here helping an old friend for the day. It is almost a holiday for me; for, though I preached to a large band of Church workers last night, addressed the communicants of the parish at an early communion this morning, gave an address to the clergy of the town and neighborhood at the morning service at 11:30, and am to preach the Festival Sermon to night. I have escaped the post, and that gives me unwonted leisure. The letter-writing is my chief burden, each day bringing so much, and of these a large part often requiring care and thought.

"The night before last I had a most interesting and affecting service of leavetaking for a party of twenty families of emigrants starting for Canada. I first baptized one, then confirmed 24, giving them an address on their future life and dangers; then solemnly admitted a lay-reader who accompanies them, committing to him the spiritual charge of the colony till he should receive authority from his own Bishop. Yesterday morning we all met, thirty emigrants (including children), and their friends, in the church at 5:45, for a few farewell prayers and the Episcopal blessing. Their vans and omnibusses were drawn up outside the church, which is in Bethnal Green, and amid cheers and tears, and bell ringing, they started, the Vicar going with them to Liverpool, to see them safe on board their ship. He had been over to Canada last season, and had chosen land for the settlement, which they mean to call New Bethnal Green, in Assiniboia.

CONVENTION REPORTS.

It is scarcely necessary, probably, to speak of that which has before this been referred to in this column, the need of promptness and precision in the making up of parochial reports. The registers should be kept up. That is the law on a clergyman as much as that against robbery is on persons generally. The reports, then, should be made out from the register. There is little use in preserving records unless they are as near as possible exact.

Those should be reported as confirmed who belonged to one's parish, whether confirmed during the year in their parish church or not. Clergymen should not report in their statements those confirmed in their church who belonged to and are reported in another parish.

Communicants who received their first communion are to be reported among the additions as "received." Those who were communicants before, and have come into the parish during the year, are to be marked as removed. All those are to be reported who while living in outlying parts of the parish are not reported in some other parish. Persons are not to be dropped from the communicant list unless they are informed of it. All communicants living in the parish, and not counted elsewhere, and not under actual excommunication are to be reported. The number of those who have absented themselves through the year should then be noted and given. By irregularity and inexactness our number of communicants in the Diocese has scarcely changed for years, whereas the actual number in our parishes has increased by thousands. Cannot an effort be made now to get the exact facts, and report them promptly.

CONVENTION.

The day on which the Convention meets this year is Tuesday, 27th inst. It assembles in the church of the Holy Communion, in St. Louis, at 10 o'clock in the morning. After the services, at which the Rev. Dr. Fulton preaches the Convention sermon, and the Holy Communion is celebrated, the body will be called to order, and the roll called, when recess will be had for lunch. After lunch the organization of the Convention will be completed, and the Bishop's address read. Other business will be proceeded with so far as time will allow.

Adjournment will be had until the next morning and at night the Bishop will have his reception. The afternoon of the second day is devoted to the missionary business, than which none other is more important. All missionaries should be ready to give a statement, if the time permits, of their work, its condition and progress.

Some clergymen ask the Bishop from year to year whether he will not excuse them from attendance. He has always to reply that this is not in his power. Their attendance is mandatory under the Canons, and it ought to be a willing attendance. If one can be absent, another may. The business, to be wisely done, needs the common judgment of all. Many matters are never understood at all through the year, if members have been absent. The meeting with their brethren on the part of those working in isolation, conference on matters of common interest is cheering and useful. For those whose income has been least, the missionaries, for years past their traveling expenses in attendance have been paid.

Delegates should be elected who can and will attend, and when elected they should make an effort to go. If anything is passed in their absence which they do not like, they should have been there to stop it, or else not complain. Many of those who are in the city on a divided duty, and who protested they would attend Convention, found evidently that it was difficult to get away from the Chaplain or Commandery. They were not seen at Convention. The interests involved are worth the attendance of the business men. The writer of this last fall served on a Committee on Church business on which were the acting Vice President of the United States, three ex Governors of States, and one or two judges.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—An interesting feature of Easter for the Bishop was the presentation to him of a gold-headed cane under the following noteworthy circumstances. It was given to Bishop Hawks with an inscription upon it, "To my Bishop." After his death it was given by his widow to the Bishop's friend and kinsman, Henry M. Woodward, Esq., of this city, who was with the Bishop when he died. Since Mr. Woodward's death, his widow concluded that the best direction to give to it was to present it to the present Bishop, to whom Mr. Woodward was much attached. In accepting it the Bishop said to Mrs. Woodward that he would direct that after his death it should pass to his successor in office.

—A late memorandum from the Treasurer of Diocesan missions mentions that the expenditures since the last Convention have exceeded the receipts by nearly $200, and says naturally that the situation is far from being a gratifying one.

—Mention was made in our last number of the excellent manner in which the united services of Holy Week were engaged in this year. This was especially the case with reference to the services on Maundy-Thursday night, and Good Friday. The quiet, and the simplicity, the subdued reality of the service of the Holy Communion, the large number of communicants alone present from all the parishes in the city, the noble church, and the number of clergy in the chancel, all made this year's celebration one long to be remembered. On Good Friday night the congregation was enormous. Grace Church was full, and hundreds besides stood in the aisles and at the doors and windows, and hundreds beside had to go away. Twenty-nine persons were confirmed by the Bishop, and he confirmed five others in the parish on the following day, and eight had been previously confirmed during the conventional year, making forty-one in all. The Rev. Mr. Betts preached with great beauty and pathos, and his address to the newly confirmed was peculiarly appropriate. The Rev. Dr. Ingraham has nearly secured the amount necessary to build a modest parsonage for the parish; then with the land of the church fenced in, the domain will look as though it were taken in from out of doors. It is a fine property, which it is worth the church's while to take care of for the future.

—The Rev. Jas. P. Lytton, of Nashville, Tenn., has been called to the rectorship of the Church of the Holy Innocents, Oak Hill, and has accepted the call.

—The Ladies Guild in Grace Church, Carthage, has been very efficient in raising the amount needed for the building of a rectory. The contract has been let for its construction, and it will be completed in a short time. The Rev. Mr. Bohn, of Joplin, has with great acceptance been giving them services during the vacancy in the rectorship of the parish, every Wednesday evening.

—The Rev. Mr. Reed preached at the House of Refuge on the afternoon of Easter Day.

—The dispute about the will of Mr. Ralph Sellew was compromised, and the charitable bequests are to be paid immediately without diminution.

—There was a meeting in St. George's Church, St. Louis, and a lecture by Mr. Edwin Lee Brown on Tuesday, 15th ult., in the interest of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

—There will be noted the large receipts which the Children's Cot had at Easter, and has had since. The remainder is growing very small. One of the first services in the new Chapel of the Hospital will be probably the presenting of the securities which represent the gifts of the children and others for the Cot. Then we will go to work on the remaining $1,000 needed to be added to the principal, in order to make the income, with the lower rates of interest which have come to prevail since the beginning of this fund was made, large enough to support the child, which has, for the time being, the use of the Cot.

—At the parish meeting at Mt. Calvary Church the rector's salary was increased to $2,500. It was deserved.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Trinity, St. Louis, 16; Holy Communion, 14; Christ, 14; Grace, 40 (in all); Advent, 3; St. James, 4; St. John's, 18; All Saints, 26.

—In Columbia they have a right to be happy over the growth of their parish. For ten years they had but three communicants. In 1872, when the church was built, they had fourteen. On Easter day there were sixty communicants present, of whom fifty-two received. Their floral decorations were beautiful, and the Sunday School celebration was crowded.

—The Rev. Mr. Bohn, of Joplin, is fortunately able to officiate and preach in German, and he has been urged by the Germans in that city to give them services. He has his German service in the afternoon. He has baptised five children for them. He uses the German version of the prayer book, and a book of hymns and chorals which they greatly incline to. He has access to many very good and substantial families by reason of his ability to speak German, and twenty of their children attend the Sunday-school.

—In Hannibal, on Easter day, the musical arrangements were made with great care, and were unusually good.

—The Easter services at Ironton were bright and satisfactory with large congregations, and with every person in town entitled to receive the Holy Communion present but two. There were daily services during Holy Week, and at the Good Friday morning and the Three Hours' service, twenty five were present, and more at night.

—At Grace Church, Kansas City, the number of communicants present at the early celebration was about one hundred, and at the one at midday about seventy five. The Easter offering was a little over $1,000.

—At the May meeting of the Social Science Association of Western Missouri and Kansas, which is held in Kansas City within a few days, Mrs. James Runcie, of St. Joseph, is to read a paper in the Department of Art on Mendelssohn.

—The Rev. Mr. Dunn, of Independence, who went East in December to endeavor to secure the means with which to pay off the debt on his church, has not yet returned, but expects to soon, however. We have not heard of the results of his work.

—The Rev. Cameron Mann delivered a lecture recently at the State University of Kansas, at Lawrence, on Robert Browning.

—The statement made in the News that the committee on the division of the Diocese were prepared to make a unanimous report in favor of it, although derived from an apparently trustworthy source, was erroneous. There has but one meeting of the committee been held, and that was engaged only about preliminary inquiries. Another meeting will be held before convention in order to agree upon a report.

—At the service in Liberty recently held by the Bishop, which had been the first which they had had since his first visit, in June, the congregation was so large that while many remained standing throughout the whole service, one-third as many had to leave, unable to find room in the church.

—At the Easter Service in St. Joseph, it goes without saying that the floral decorations, some from Chicago, were beautiful. The offertory in the morning was about $500, and in the evening at the children's festival, the offerings amounted to about about $320. The beautiful memorial window to Bishop Hawks, placed by his children, was uncovered.

—The Bishop recently confirmed six persons in St. John's Church, Cameron; four in St. Mary's, Plattsburg; two in Chillicothe; five in Brookfield.

—An agent of The Living Church, in St. Joseph, has secured 75 subscribers for the paper in that city, and has himself sent on 800 names in six months from different places.

—The Bishop has recently visited and held services in the following places, where confirmations have not been held: Ferguson Station, Montgomery City, Mexico, Carrollton, Norborne, Liberty, Hamilton.

—At the morning service at St. George's Church, on the 4th inst., Mr. Herbert Welsh, of Philadelphia, made a short address on the duty of Christian people towards the Indian tribes of America. Mr. Welsh is the Corresponding Secretary of the Indian Rights Association. Rev. Dr. Fulton, rector of St. George's Church, addressed a note to each of his congregation, announcing his purpose to devote the collection on the above named day to the benefit of the sexton, Mr. Church, who lost all his furniture, clothing, &c., at the fire on Jefferson avenue and Market street, and who, with his wife and three children, had a narrow escape from being burned to death.

—The Christ Church cemetery grounds, just south of Park and west of Pratte avenues, in St. Louis, are being relieved of the last of the tomb stones and the remains of cholera victims. The city has been built up all around the site, streets have been laid out through it, and lots will be for sale as soon as the matter of the title can be settled.

—The guild of the Church of the Advent (Rev. J. N. Chesnutt's) are to give a musicale, literary and promenade concert at the Pickwick Hall on the evening of the 16th. Rev. Mr. Betts and a large number of friends in other parishes will lend their aid.

—The work of excavation for the foundations of the new Trinity Episcopal Church has begun, on the northwest corner of Thirty-fourth and Franklin avenue. The temporary brick building will be 38 by 115 feet.

—The Rev. B. E. Reed, of Mount Calvary, in this city, read a paper before the Missouri State Sunday School Association on the 8th inst., at its annual meeting in this city, on "The Condition of Sunday School Work in St. Louis."

—The Rev. Thos. F. C. James, M. D., has been transferred to the Diocese of Indiana.

—The Vestry of Emmanuel Church, St. Louis County, have written the Bishop and the Missionary Board, thanking them heartily for the kind fostering care for several years past in giving them a stipend of $100 a year; and resigning it for the future, with the intention of going on without it. The Rev. Mr. Griffith desired at Easter to relinquish the charge of Christ Church, Afton, on account of the difficulty in his getting over there often, from the soft roads and the rainy days. They would not, however, consent to it. He thinks that the offerings on all the occasions of the Bishop's visit to a parish should be devoted to the "Bishop's Purse," out of which he could relieve the many cases of special need among the clergy, and others of which he becomes cognizant. He says that in Central Pennsylvania, Bishop Howe urged this at Convention, and that at any rate his parish will always make this the object of their offering.

—Mrs. Smith, of Virginia, who as was mentioned in the News of last month, proposes to call her school, St. Agnes Hall, is proposing to build a large and convenient addition to the present building, and will be able to accommodate 25 or 30 boarders. She comes out next month, and opens Sept. 17th.

—Mention has been made within the last few weeks of Dr. Schuyler's going to Europe this summer. His friends desire it, and have made up a purse by which the result may be made more feasible. Dr. Schuyler has not yet indicated his disposition in the matter. We hope that he will take the rest. He certainly deserves it after his many years of faithful work. He has written an open letter, in the Living Church, in reply to Bishop Potter's article on the creation of a Clergy Sustentation Fund, in which he shows that some clergymen, even though they may receive $3,000 or more, especially if they have honest families of eight or ten children, and live in cities, have not as much over at the end of the year as others receiving much less. We are informed that Dr. Schuyler will go to Europe this summer.

—We are sorry to announce that the Rev. Mr. Griffith has been compelled to renew his resignation of the charge of Christ Church, Afton, on account of the serious impairment of his health. We hope that it may not be anything permanent. He has recommended his people there to call the Rev. Mr. De Forest to the duty.

—The closing exercises of the year in the Sisters' School of the Good Shepherd in this city will be had in Memorial Hall, corner of Nineteenth and Locust streets, on Thursday morning, 12th. The larger numbers of the school, and the graduating class made it necessary that a place should be secured, larger and more commodious than the parlors of the school. The Rev. Mr. Betts has been asked to deliver the address.

—During the seven years just ended of Mr. Chesnutt's connexion with the Church of the Advent in this city, he has baptised 248, presented 75 for confirmation, solemnized 54 marriages, buried 73, and secured a property worth at least $6,000. This is a good record, and for a neighborhood, not very responsive to religious effort.

—The Children's Strawberry Festival in the Guild Room of the Church of the Good Shepherd, May 8th, and the pound party at the Arsenal the night before, netted $57.

PARISH MEETINGS IN ST. LOUIS.

Easter Monday night was dark, rainy and very muddy. The result was that the Easter meetings were not largely attended. The results so far as learned were as follows:

CHRIST CHURCH.

The annual election at Christ church resulted in the election of the following ticket: Charles Parsons, Dexter Tiffany, John R. Shepley, James A. Waterworth, W. S. Humphrey, J. B. Gazzam, D. F. Leavitt, C. S. Freeborn, B. B. Graham, W. S. Pope, B. W. Lewis, J. S. Fullerton, M. S. Snow. As there was not a quorum present of the Vestry, the organization was deferred.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

The attendance at the annual parish meeting of St. George's church was materially affected by the miserable weather. After the retiring vestrymen had concluded their executive meeting they entered the church, where, after the parish meeting had been formerly opened by Dr. Fulton and Mr. Richard Perry had been made Secretary, they submitted their annual report for the year ending April 1. It showed the receipts for the year to have been $13,307 51, which with the $265 39 on hand April 1, 1883, made $13,572 90. The expenditures for the year amounted to $13,202 35, leaving on hand $370 54. The liabilities of the church were put down at $784 50, and the assets, from back pew-rents, etc., $414. A memorial on the death of Capt. R. B. Wade was read. The report was referred to the incoming vestry. A vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Manny and Mr. W. H. Phelps and others who had been instrumental in getting up the handsome communion plate presented to the church. The following gentlemen were elected vestrymen and trustees for the ensuing year: Edwin Harrison, Joseph W. Branch, I. M. Mason, Hugh Rogers, D. E. Garrison, George Martin, M. W. Alexander, H. H. The Treasurer's report shows the receipts for the year to be $5,227 68 and the expenditures, $4,519 95, leaving a cash balance on hand of $707 73 and all debts paid. A vote of thanks was given to the Treasurer for admirable management of the finances during the past year, and also to the two sewing societies for their worthy efforts in behalf of the church and the cause of charity.

The following vestrymen were chosen for the ensuing year: Dr. H. H. Bickford, Hinman Clark, Thos. Miller, Jr., Chas. Hoffman, F. N. Judson, Henry Pitcher, G. D. Reynolds, Wm. R. Donaldson, Chas. H. Alexander, S. D. Barlow, R. F. Phillips, A. R. Donaldson and D. M. Houser.

Crow, R. P. Johnson, T. Ewing White, J. M. Thompson, D. Robert Barclay, H. Given Hagey and Geo. H. Auchmuty. Preliminary arrangements were made for the collection of funds for the erection of the new Trinity church.

HOLY COMMUNION CHURCH.

The annual report of the vestrymen of the Church of the Holy Communion stated that the $7,500 debt on the church with interest amounting to $346 60 had been paid off at the commencement of the fiscal year, which ended April 1. The receipts for the year were, including the above, $16,726 70 and the expenditures $16,147 19, leaving a balance on hand of $579 51. In three years the Sunday-school raised $957, of which amount $94 was raised Sunday. A portion of the church is to be turned into a separate chapel. The following gentlemen were elected vestrymen: J. H. Tennent, Frank Carter, W. C. Day, Charles Miller, E. C. Simmons, L. E. Alexander, D. P. Dyer, F. W. Risque, C. Hamilton, W. R. Pye, T. K. Skinner, M. F. Watts and T. B. Blake.

MT. CALVARY CHURCH.

The members of Mt. Calvary church, at the corner of Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, held their annual business meeting in the basement of the church. Reports were received showing the church to be out of debt and in every way prosperous. In his report the Rector spoke of the need of more accommodation to meet the demands of the rapidly increasing congregation in a growing neighborhood.

The Treasurer's statement showed the total receipts during the year to be $6,000, and the amount on hand above all expenses $350. The following vestrymen were chosen for the ensuing year: Lewis Lipman, Alexander G. Cochran, Joseph Franklin, R. L. Dowmon, D. M. Edgerton, C. H. Albers, Gilbert Elliott, Lloyd G. Harris, Emmet Funsten, Hiram Sears, Dr. E. W. Saunders, Roger Hayne.

The following were elected vestrymen: Ezra H. Linley, James T. Benson, William H. Webster, C. R. Blake, Charles T. Shaw, J. Percival Smith, R. J. Compton, George H. Goddard and George D. Barnard.

EASTER DAY IN ST. LOUIS.

There were many persons disappointed when they looked out at an early hour, and found that the day was going to be overcast, and chilly. For several days before the weather had been rainy, and heavy wraps were still needed. The clouds broke away for two hours before noon, but it became heavy again later. The weather, however, seemed to have little effect upon the size or the spirits of the congregations. The churches were full, and in some cases densely crowded. Their financial condition generally was easy, and, therefore, there was not the dread of the spectre of an Easter debt to be met. We have not heard about all the churches, and note down what has reached us.

At Christ Church the choir was strengthened, and had nearly twenty voices, and rendered the music beautifully. The flowers were, as usual, a bright feature in the chancel. The rector asked for $2,400 to make up a deficiency in the income of the year. Of this $1,100 was received on Easter, and the remainder is expected to be raised.

At St. George's the choir also was increased. The principal feature in the Service was the presentation and use of the new and beautiful Communion Vessels, which were greatly admired. The church was crowded at night for the Sunday-school festival.

At St. John's the Service was probably the grandest which has ever been had in this city, and in excellent taste. To the choir of nearly thirty men and boys there were added some trained female voices, and six pieces of instrumental music besides the organ. The effect was thrilling. There had been presented a large brass altar cross, and a pair of vases in memoriam, a magnificent altar cloth, and from the choir a font cover in black walnut and brass. The congregation was by far the largest that had ever been in St. John's, and many had to leave after the aisles and spaces had been filled. The offertory amounted to $730. The church was again crowded at 5 p. m. for the Sunday-school festival.

The choir of the Church of the Holy Communion was increased, and rendered the musical portions of the Service very effectively. The large Sunday-school of the parish, as usual, densely crowded the church on Sunday night at its festival.

Grace church was crowded, and there were 143 communicants. At the Sunday-school festival it was reported that the offerings for the year had been $226 44; the average attendance of teachers had been 12, and of scholars, 131; the lowest attendance had been of teachers, 8, and of scholars, 76. There had been 30 who were perfect in the Church catechism, 140 were members of the Missionary Host, and the collections for this object up to Easter had been $44 40.

There is not a church in the city which has within the past five years made the relative progress that All Saints' Mission for colored people has done. At all the Services the church was filled. Sixty communicants were present in the morning, and at night when the Bishop administered Confirmation the pews and gallery were crowded, and many had to stand throughout. The chancel was tastefully adored, and the music was especially good. The responses were hearty and general. Very few white persons were present. When it is remembered what a meagre handful composed the regular attendants when Mr. Mason began, the present large, well-instructed, interested, and influential congregation is most note worthy. Of the twenty six confirmed, a very large proportion were men, and of intelligence and position.

The Bishop visited, as usual, the Orphans' Home, at 9 a. m., and catechized and addressed the children, and distributed the prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hayne had been particularly kind in training the children in the singing of the carols. They answered, as usual, very heartily. The Rev. Mr. Reed, the Chaplain, Mr. and Mrs. Bascome, Mr. and Mrs. Hayne, Mrs. O'Dell, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. Sears, and some others were present.

At St. James church, West St. Louis, they think that their little chapel was decorated more completely, and looked prettier than any other church in the city. The congregations were very large, and the attendance at the Holy Communion greater than ever known before.

ORPHANS' HOME ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting was held in Mt. Calvary Church. There was quite a good attendance, and yet on the part of many there had been a misapprehension as to the hour. The notice in some churches was not given out at all, and in others was put at various times. The meeting is always at 10 a. m.

After the Service the Bishop took the chair, and the Rev. B. E. Reed was elected Secretary. The report of the Secretary referred to the resignation of Mrs. Burchard as Matron, and Miss Corbett as teacher, after years of faithful service, and the choice of Miss Hunt as Matron. It spoke of the great loss which the Home had sustained in the death of Mrs. Gantt, for years Manager from Christ Church, and of the kindness of the sewing societies of the St. Louis parishes, in the garments which have been given. The health of the children has been excellent, the two who had died in the year were only in the Home a few weeks, and were very young. There were received during the year 27 children, 4 had been bound out, 2 had died, 1 adopted, 12 restored to parents or friends, and the present family numbers 70.

The Treasurer's report covered a period of nearly thirteen months. With $186.55 to begin with, the total receipts had been $7,179 79, and the expenditures $6,645.75, leaving a balance of $534 04. Christ Church had given $1,052.80, St. George's $411, Holy Communion $351.50, St. Peter's $106.73, Mt. Calvary $100.50, St. John's $64.50, Trinity $60.25, Emmanuel $53 75, St. Paul's $21 60, Grace $20. From interest and rent $2,695.75, and the Fair Grounds dinner, $464 28.

Mrs. W. Bascome was re-elected First Directress, Mrs. A. C. Moore, Second Directress; Mrs. T. M. McLe'n, Secretary; and Mrs. H. R. O'Dell, Treasurer. The Managers elected for the parishes were as follows:

Messrs. Silas Bent, J. M. Franciscus, John Wickham, and F. N. Judson were elected members of the Advisory Committee.

GOOD SHEPHERD, ST. LOUIS.

The consecration of the Church of the Good Shepherd, April 20th, was a service of gratifying interest to the many present. The parish felt it to be a day of real triumph over debts and difficulties, well repaying them for their great labors and sacrifices. The Bishop preached from St. John 12:3: "And the house was filled with the odor of the ointment." He spoke of the way new parishes were formed,—first, in the desire of a few earnest people for religious worship. In whose faith the house first stands before it comes to its often long deferred completion. The humble and obscure beginnings, the slow progress it often has to make through lack of sufficient means and workers. Sometimes losing ground, and then again going forward with double force and energy. These obstacles all parishes must needs meet before the house of faith reaches permanent structure. Then it has in its walls the love, the faith, the self-denial, the joys and tears of many people. Then it is a temple ready and worthy to be consecrated to Him in whose hands we are, and in whose service there is great reward. The Bishop proceeded to give a brief historical sketch of the parish, commending the work of its former zealous rectors, Rev. Messrs. Wickens, Hyde, and Jardine.

The following is a statement of the Treasurer, Capt. W. P. Martin, covering a period of two years, during which he has been Treasurer:

MEXICO.

The Bishop's visit to Mexico was the occasion of the first regular services in the new St. Paul's church there. The Rev. Robt. Talbot had solemnized a marriage and baptized a child there before. The building is of brick and takes the place of the frame structure built fifteen years ago, and which had suffered several times by the winds, and on account of faulty construction had become unsafe, although much money had been expended on it in building.

This church measures 25 by 70 feet, has an apsidal chancel, and a vestry room. Its interior is very neat. The roof is open timbered, with narrow pine ceiling and wainscoting, finished in oil, the ceiling being put on diagonally. One of the lots had been sold, and the church faces to the west, instead of to the south as before. It cost about $2,300, and is all paid for. The liberality and energy of the senior warden, Mr. J. F. Llewellyn, contributed largely to the happy result. The townspeople very largely contributed also, and nothing was asked for outside of the place.

The congregation on the occasion was large and interested. A failure in the matter of music caused the Bishop, as he has often to do, start the tunes. The Bishop called upon the parishioners to remain after the services, and consulted with them as to the supply of services. The place is large, having a population of 7,000, and busy and growing. It must have a resident minister, and ought to have services all the time. The amount which the parish is able to pledge for salary, however, will probably compel it to join with another town in order to secure the support of a clergyman. Probably this will be with Perry, in Ralls county, 25 miles away, by country road, where there is a strong desire for the ministrations of the Church, and where lay services have been held.

MACON CITY.

The services on Easter day in St. James church, Macon City, were attended by thronging congregations, with all the attendant accessories of beautiful flowers and music. The offertory amounted to $77.05, which was to be expended in improvements on the church property. Mr. Talbot has purchased the corner lot on the main street, near the church, on to which he proposes, this summer, to remove the dwelling he is now occupying, next the Academy, and throw this lot into a campus for the school, which is much needed. As new gains are made for the Academy, other needs are all the time appearing, in order to equip the school for its work. Besides the money needed to finish the last portion of the main building, there ought to be a gymnasium for the boys to drill in and take exercise in disagreeable weather. Very few in the diocese are at all aware of the very valuable accession to our property, and our facilities is had in the Academy at Macon. It would be an excellent thing if some of those gentlemen in St. Louis who have done so nobly for it, could engage a sleeper, and put it on the night train, and have it side-tracked at Wabash and visit the Academy, at the time of the close of the term, and then take it back the next night. The day would be most delightfully spent, and they could see what has been done, and what is yet proposed.

The Rev. E. Talbot was sick for a week about Easter. It is so unusual for him to be off duty, that while he was assured that it did not come from overwork, as was to be feared, any cessation of his activity aroused comment.

The occasion of the Bishop's visit, on the 6th inst. to Macon, had been looked forward to with more than usual interest by the boys of St. James' Academy, hoping that he would exercise the Bishop's prerogative on the occasion of his visit, and ask for a half holiday. He did so, and was the most popular of men in consequence. The cadets were not able, however, as they expected, to give him a dress parade, as they had hoped, on account of the rain.

The church at night was filled, and the singing was led heartily by the choir of boys. The Bishop preached, and confirmed fourteen, among whom were the head master and nine of the young men of the school. Very few can estimate the deep religious influence of the training upon the young characters gathered there.

It is hoped that the third building will be enclosed by the time of the close of the term. The applications for admission for the next school year are beginning already to come in, and exceed those of any previous year.

ST. JOSEPH.

The day of the Bishop's visit to the churches in St. Joseph was the culmination of deep religious interest. The attendance during the Lenten services had been unprecedentedly large. The congregations on Sunday and the work of the parish in all its forms of activity were showing a condition of large prosperity. The indefatigable rector was quietly pressing home the sense of privilege and duty. It was evident that the confirmation class was going to be of unusual size and representative character.

Sunday, 4th inst., was a thorough spring day, with clouds and sunshine at intervals. Morning prayer was said early. Later the congregation wholly filled the large church, made more beautiful by the recent frescoing of its walls, and by the superb chancel window made by Lamb, which was put in at Easter as a memorial to the first bishop of the diocese. Besides the Bishop and the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Runcie, the Rev. Mr. Safford, of Kansas, and the Rev. L. T. Minturn, of Amazonia, were present. The Bishop preached, and when the call for the candidates was made, they came from all parts of the church in great numbers. Forty-four were confirmed. The Holy Communion was then celebrated.

At night the Bishop visited Holy Trinity Chapel in South St. Joseph, which also was full, and there confirmed six others, who had been prepared by the Rector of Christ church. Together, this makes, we understand, the largest number ever presented in one year by any clergyman in this diocese. They came from all ranks of life, and they witness to the faithfulness and wisdom of the administration of the honored Rector who has for so many years presided over this congregation.

In the evening, in Christ church, the Rev. Mr. Leonard, of Atchison, Kansas, was to have preached, but owing to a delay the duty was taken by the Rev. Mr. Safford. There ought to be a clergyman in charge of Holy Trinity Mission, and the time is not far distant, judging from the rate of growth of the city and the parish, when the creation of another parish in North St. Joseph will be a necessity.

KANSAS CITY.

The Bishop's visit to the Kansas City parishes was made on the 27th ult. He spent also the previous day in the city. It is growing with all its previous rapidity, and in no year, apparently, will so many houses be put up as during this season. Its growth for residence purposes is mainly to the eastward, and another mission ought very soon to be established by us a mile east of Trinity, and yet another to the south.

At Grace Church on the Sunday morning of the Bishop's visit, the congregation filled the spacious church. There must have been 600 or 700 persons present, with a very large proportion, as always, of young men. The Bishop preached, and confirmed fourteen persons. The offertory for diocesan missions was over $50. The music was very sweet.

In the afternoon the Bishop made his first visit to the new Trinity congregation, which meets in a hall on Ninth street, near Tracy, and not far from the lots on which they propose now very shortly to build the basement, at least, of their church. The hall will hold 125 persons, and was overflowingly full. The Bishop preached, and confirmed eight persons, and then addressed the congregation, felicitating them on the auspicious circumstances under which they begin a work, which has not been initiated in any unkind spirit, but simply from the growing spiritual wants of the city. He also said that as the other older churches in the city, as they had successively been started, were aided, so he did not doubt but they would in turn, now in the time of their greater strength, help this work, now struggling, to its feet.

The Rev. Mr. Talbot, in canvassing his district, has found one hundred and thirty Church families, a greater proportion of whom had never attended any of our services since they had lived there, owing to the distance. The plans of the building, which contemplate ultimately a structure 130 by 40 feet, have been adopted, and contracts will soon be let out. An earnest canvass is being made for the money needed, and, as usual, the ladies are very zealous. A handsome alms basin of brass was presented at Easter by Mrs. Musson, of Grace Church.

The Bishop visited St. Mary's Church at night. The other churches in the city were closed, and their rectors were present. The Bishop preached again, and confirmed ten persons, all but one of whom were females, who wore veils. The congregation was large. The fine large pipe organ was admirably managed.

The Rev. Mr. Cummings, of the Augustine Mission, has started for some Eastern cities, hoping to secure the $1,000 needed to pay off the debt on his church, and to finish it. His colored people can of course do but little for themselves, however well disposed they are.

COLUMBIA.

The Bishop of the Diocese visited this parish on Wednesday, March 26th, and confirmed sixteen persons presented by the Rector, the Rev. A. M. Whitten. Nine of the class were males, seven of whom were in the prime of manhood, occupying permanent positions in the community. The church was filled from chancel to vestibule. The Bishop preached, as he always does, a clear, logical sermon. He also delivered an impressive address to the class. The occasion was one calculated to encourage the friends of Calvary Parish.

The Easter Services at Calvary Church, were unusually interesting. The Church was tastefully decorated with plants and cut flowers, the music of high order, the offerings liberal, the congregations large and attentive.

In the afternoon the church was again crowded to witness the Children's Festival. The Easter hymns and carols were beautifully rendered by the children under the excellent leadership of Mrs. Dr. Moss. This estimable lady, a proficient in music, takes great pleasure in cultivating a taste for it among the "little folk."

The order of Services was as follows: Processional Hymn, Lord's Prayer and Versicles, Psalm CXVIII., Gloria in Excelsis, Lesson; Creed, Versicles and Collects, Carol, Catechism and Address, Carol, Distribution of Easter Eggs, Hymn, Offerings, Blessing, Recessional Hymn.

Thus ended a very happy day to the Rector, children and friends of Calvary Parish.

A MISSIONARY TRIP.

Here is the notice of a few hours missionary trip made by the Rector of Macon City, with some of his interested parishioners. It did him no harm, and the memory of the visit will last for years among the people of the place. It is just such a trip as could be taken by scores of our rectors, if they would take pains and extend their interest. The strong should help the weak by such practical evidences of good will.

On Wednesday evening, the 25th inst., the Rector accompanied by a number of parishioners, took the train on the Wabash for La Plata, where a service had been appointed. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Scovern, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Hagy, Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. Tibbs and Miss Moulton. Although the train was about two hours late, and it was fully eight o'clock when we reached the church, we found a large and intelligent audience awaiting us. Indeed there was such a crowd that a number of gentlemen had to stand up during the entire service.

Through the energy and musical taste of Mrs. Doneghy, a number of persons were interested in the rendering of the chants, and though unaccustomed to our service, the choir did remarkably well.

Mrs. Swartout and Mrs. Doneghy entertained all the visiting brethren at their respective homes, and their warm hearts and generous hospitality will not soon be forgotten. With two such devoted and zealous Churchwomen as Mrs. Doneghy and Mrs. Swartout to begin with, there is scarcely a doubt that regular service at La Plata would result in great good. It is hoped that an arrangement will be made soon by which at least a week-day service may be given them.

La Plata is a thriving town, and its people seem to take an uncommon interest in religious matters.

We all returned home on the midnight train, having enjoyed our missionary excursion greatly.

—The Bishop of Florida has recently made a visitation to Cuba, where services have been held in Spanish by the Rev. Mr. Baez. He confirmed in Matanzas 61, and in Havana 55 persons, more than half of whom were men, and all of them of exceptional intelligence. He reports that the immorality and venality of the Romish priesthood on the Island have lost for them confidence and respect. All over the Island it is a common thing for the priests to live in open and shameless concubinage, surrounded by their families; and when they are reproached, they say the only difference is that they care for and support their offspring, while the others do not. As resulting from this the revolt and indifference of the people as to all religious attendance is open and universal.

—Mr. George Armour, of Chicago, who has recently read himself into the Church, and who has large wealth, is about to erect a beautiful church in the southern part of Chicago at his own expense. Canon Knowles, late of the Cathedral, is to have charge of it. Mr. Armour is going to see that the work is well sustained. Is there the spirit, there is the ability to do anything like this in St. Louis?

FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION DIOCESE OF MISSOURI.

The Forty-fifth Annual Convention of this Diocese will be held on Tuesday, May 27th inst., in the Church of the Holy Communion, in the city of St. Louis, at 10 o'clock a. m.

The Clergy and Lay Delegates will assemble at 9½ o'clock, promptly. Clergy are requested to bring their vestments with them.

The new parochial report blanks have been mailed to all the Clergy and parishes in the Diocese, and the Bishop desires that they be filled up carefully and presented to him at the opening of the Convention, and it is hoped that this reasonable request will not be overlooked. Heretofore half the first day of the Convention has been occupied by a good many of the Clergy in making out their reports, which of necessity, must be inaccurate for want of the correct data before them.

The following committees are required to report at this Convention:

On Legality of the Charter of the Parochial Trust Fund.—Hon. John Wickham, Chairman. (See page 21, Journal of 1883.)

The reports of these committees will be called for in the early stage of the proceedings. The Committees will be kind enough to have their reports ready to present when called.

JOHN R. TRIPLET,
Secretary of Convention.

At a casual meeting of clergymen recently in this city, the matter of burials came up. Indignation was expressed at the degree in which those who rarely ever attend church, and contribute nothing to it, order their funerals on Sundays if possible, even though they have to delay three or four days for it, and fix them at hours inconvenient to the other duties of the clergyman, and without consultation with him. It was stated that hundreds of dollars were spent on flowers and the undertaker, and nothing was offered to the minister, who was expected to give eclat to the occasion, even though it took half his day. Some present said that it was in their knowledge that on several occasions amounts had been given by the family to secure the clergymen, and nothing had ever reached them. One minister said that it was a usual thing in his parish for an amount to be given him for a funeral. Evidently the undertakers and the others have traded on the well-known modesty of the clergymen, and the parson ought to strike.

OURSELVES AND OUR FRIENDS.

We are always glad to be informed when copies of the NEWS fail to come regularly to hand. The mistake will be repaired if it belongs to this office, and be endeavored to be remedied, if it is due to the Post Office. But occasionally complaints come of the stoppage of the paper, when it was not known that the subscription had expired. But what else can be done? We usually let the paper go on for three months longer, to see if the omission to remit was due to an oversight, and then if nothing is heard, what can be inferred but that it is no longer desired? If we are to go on honestly and pay our debts, we must expect that the subscriptions shall be met promptly, or the paper is stopped.

In order to promote clearness, and that no one may be in doubt, we have adopted the plan of placing on the direction the date up to which the NEWS is paid for. If there is a mistake in this, attention may be called it. When remittance is received, the date is moved on. But nothing is more easy than to forget, and charge one's own carelessness on the publisher. Once we received an indignant statement that the NEWS had not come for months. It was ascertained afterwards that the letter enclosing the amount was dated from the fancy name of the farm, with no other intimation of the Post Office address. The paper had been sent to Prairie Grove, or some such place as that, and of course did not reach the subscriber. It was never quite made clear to that person that the fault was in not sending the proper post office address.

Often the order comes to stop, or the notice comes from the Post Office of the removal of a person, when, perhaps, a year's subscription is unpaid. The law, of course, is, that the publisher is not obliged to stop until the account is paid in full. We have lost hundreds of dollars by reason of this dishonesty. We are not doing a charity business. We think we give full value for the subscription received. Certainly nobody about this office is growing rich over the NEWS; we only want candor and promptness, and an appreciation of the work that we are trying to do for the Diocese.

THE TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

A curious inquiry is suggested by a study of the Treasurer's monthly statement in another column. The amounts given in the first column are the sums due from the respective places to the Diocese at the time of the last Convention a year ago. The amounts in the second column are the additional amounts voted upon themselves by the parishes at the last Convention; one fourth of which was due July 1st last, another fourth on October 1st, the third fourth on January 1st, and the whole was due April 1st. All these amounts were voted by the parishes in Convention upon themselves upon equitable principles. They are for the purpose of meeting such charges as the Bishop's salary and traveling expenses, the expense of printing the journal, meeting the General Convention assessment, salary of the Secretary, taxes on lands held by the Diocese, &c.

The figures in the last column show what has been paid by the parishes and missions since the last Convention on the amounts due by them. This affords an interesting study. Some are evidently paid, as the portions become due, promptly and in full. In others the amounts due this year, and for former years, seem to have been entirely ignored and repudiated. In other cases the amounts, if paid, in whole or in part, are only met at the end of the year, or irregularly.

There are no other resources whence the salary of the Bishop or his traveling expenses, &c., shall come, except from the payment of these amounts. There is no endowment. To some the thought has come, how do those places which do not apparently pay or dream of paying, or give themselves any thought in the matter, expect that the Bishop is going to live, or travel? How is there to be a Diocese kept up? Do they look for visitations to be made to them, or confirmations held for them? Or in the postponement for an entire year of what they owe, how are the costs of living to be kept up in the interval? Is there to be a hibernation with no expenses or bills to become due until the end of the year? Or is there to be a wealth in the Diocese or the Bishop which will be sufficient to reach over an entire year of delinquency? Or how can the thought of division of the Diocese be more than a huge joke while parishes show no disposition to meet their present charges?

The fulfilment of duty by some does not help the shortcomings of others, because there was no overplus allowed for. All must act, or else there is a shortage somewhere, and a failure to meet debts, with all the embarrassments resulting from this. That statement of the Treasurer looks as uninteresting as a multiplication table, but the study of it is an interesting business.

PERSONAL.

—The inexpediency of Col. Ingersoll's infidelity in 1880 was seen in the fact that he was, in spite of his ability, dropped as a campaign speaker by the political party of which he was a champion because his advocacy injured it in the minds of solid people. The same result has happened again, until it is said that he is beginning to discover that the divorce between religion and politics, is not so complete as many suppose. Even the infidels have been pained of late by the Colonel's defense of all kinds of rascality. There ought to be some morality, they say, even in his irreligion.

—President Arthur attended service on Good Friday morning, and spent the remainder of the day in the White House, receiving no visitors.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of Rev. Samuel S. Maitland of Maryland.

—Bishop Riley of Mexico tendered the resignation of his jurisdiction on the 22nd ult. This simplifies the problem then.

—The Bishop of Rochester is coming to this country again this summer, and arriving about the middle of August, will remain in this country until the first of October. He will speak in the interest of the Church Temperance Society.

—Missionary Bishop-elect Ferguson is 45 years of age, and Missionary Bishop-elect Boone is 38 years old.

—The Rev. C. L. Hutchins, Secretary of the House of Deputies of General Convention has spent several days in this city lately, and was the guest of John R. Triplett, Secretary of our Convention.

—A ci-devant clergyman of this Diocese who was deposed from the ministry, and joined the Roman Catholics several years ago, but who was not admitted to their priesthood, was announced a few weeks ago in Kansas City as Prof. Wm. J. Philips, M. A., and to deliver a free lecture at the Cathedral which he used to deliver in his ante-diluvian days, on the Model Husband and Wife. He does not seem to have accomplished any more with them than he did with us. He has, however, added a middle letter to his name.

—The failure of the broker's firm in New York in which ex President Grant was a partner, and the loss by him of a large part of his property is likely to have the result of placing him on the retired list of the army, with a permanent and sufficient income. Whether even this, with such high-flying sons will have effect to keep him out of business, certainly the spectacle of an Ex-President going about Wall street, and waiting in the ante-rooms of railroad Presidents, exchanging accommodation checks, should not be allowed.

—The Rev. Dr. Huntington has intimated that he will not under any circumstances allow his name to be used for the vacant Maryland Episcopate.

—Our old friend, the Rev. J. G. Armstrong, D. D., of the Monumental Church, Richmond, has accepted a call to St. Phillip's church, Atlanta, Georgia.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

It will be noted what a long step has been taken this month toward the completion of the $3,000 which we started out to get. For the reasons stated in the last NEWS we will go on without interruption to complete the $4,000 needed.

THE undersigned begs to make a suggestion for the coming Convention to consider. The only reason I am at all modest about making it is that it relates to the change of a Canon, but I would like to see the parish year made conformable with the diocesan year. Rectors and parish treasurers having reports to make out will readily see the reason for this. Secondly, Vestry elections ought to be held at some other time than at the close of the Lenten season. Holy week ought not to be disturbed by canvassing or the thought of it. There are few parishes where the Easter elections do not involve more or less friction. Thirdly, Easter being a moveable feast the parish years are made to differ in length.

For the above reasons I advocated this change in Wisconsin, and the Committee on Revision, not on account of my suggestions, but in agreement with them, made the amendment.

I observe also that the Diocese of Springfield has made the parish year begin with the Church year, at Advent, for the sole reason, I understand, of avoiding Easter elections. This would also be the case if, as has been suggested to me, the civil year be made the parish year; but my idea about the diocesan year has all three of the above given reasons in its favor.

THE Tenth anniversary of the occupancy of the present home by the Orphans will be celebrated May 30th, from 2 to 6 p.m. The Board of Managers will be delighted to see the friends and patrons on this occasion. Any donations of tin acceptable.

—The rates to their General Conference, which meets this month in Philadelphia, for Methodist ministers and their families, from St. Louis and other places, by the Pennsylvania Road, were reduced to one-fourth of the regular rates. That is less than most others can get.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The proprietors of St. Paul's, Boston, one of the oldest and largest churches, have set an excellent example of conveying the property to the Trustees of Donations; thus securing it for ever from alienation and encumbrance.

—Phillips Brook's parish in Boston has a laundry department connected with its parochial charitable work, for women who want help, and yet can do no skilled labor. Of its $3,600 earnings last year, $2,000 was paid out for labor for those who worked in the laundry.

—The majority of the Congregational Church Society at Salmon Falls, Mass., voted their church, parsonage and properties to the Episcopal Church in that place. The members of the Congregational Church objected to this action, and called a council of pastors and representatives from the district; this council sustained the action objecting to the transfer.

—The high license candidate in Milwaukee was elected by an emphatic vote.

—An organized effort is being made in Chicago to restore in the work of the Sunday-school the use of the Bible as the divinely authorized text book for instruction, to induce every teacher and scholar to have a Bible of his own, and to use it in preparing the lessons.

—The Northern Methodist Bishops in their quadrennial address call attention to the laxity of the laws regarding divorce, and ask for more stringent legislation with regard to the solemnizing the marriage of divorced persons. They report 11,349 regular preachers, and a membership of 1,769,534, or an annual increase of less than one per cent.

—In St. John's Church, Detroit, on Easter Day, at the two Communion, there were 900 persons who received. They are about to put up a $12,000 Mission House for the parish.

—The Rev. Mr. Larrabee, of Springfield, Ill., from Bishop Seymour's Diocese, has entered upon the rectorship of the church in Chicago which Mr. Ritchie leaves. The farewell of the latter gentleman was not specially pacific. He evidently has no love for his Bishop, and wishes to band his people in their support of the policy which he pursued.

—At the special meeting of the House of Bishops in New York lately a quorum was only secured by inducing the presence of the very aged Presiding Bishop, who is generally unable to go out at all, and by calling a session at the residence of Bishop Horatio Potter, who is wholly unable to leave his house, but who answered the roll call. The size of the House is making the attendance of a majority of its members very difficult.

—A million dollar failure in this city lately gives point to the warnings against gambling in futures and on margins; and also against a St. Louisan going to Chicago with an idea of making money. The gentleman involved honorably insisted upon paying off dollar for dollar of all that he owed, even when an offer of compromise at one-third was insisted on by his creditors. This was done by a Hebrew merchant.

—At the meeting of the House of Bishops call in New York on the 22d ult., great difficulty was found in securing a quorum, which was not done until two days after. The Rev. William J. Boone, son of the late Bishop Boone, of China, and who has been for years a missionary there, was elected as Missionary Bishop of Shanghai; and the Rev. Samuel D. Ferguson, a colored minister, and one who has been a missionary in, as he is a native of, Liberia, was chosen as Missionary Bishop of Cape Palmas. The action was very sensible. Those were chosen who had practical knowledge of the work, and were accustomed to the climate and the languages, and who would not require years to begin to get ready for duty. This is the first colored clergyman elected Bishop in this country, and is significant. Bishop Williams, of Connecticut was chosen to represent the House of Bishops at the Centennial anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Seabury in Scotland in October. It was very proper that the successor of the Bishop, and one who so worthily adorns his See should be chosen to represent his brethren on the interesting occasion.

—St. John's Church, Troy, N. Y., has a department of their ladies society which collects the church and literary papers in the parish, which have been already read, and sends them to Western clergymen. We in this Diocese profit by it.

—Four days ago, on the 4th inst., was the centennial of the first representative gathering for the purpose of organizing the Church in the States of the Union, after the Revolution. It met in New Brunswick, New Jersey, advantage being taken of a meeting there of the members of the "Corporation for the Relief the Widows and Children of Deceased Clergymen," an old incorporated society. Out of this grew a call for a larger meeting the next year, and the first General Convention.

—A country merchant visited the city a few days ago, and purchased from a dollar store a table castor, which he took home with him, and after putting a tag on it marked $14, made a present of it to a Methodist preacher, whose church his family attended. The Rev. gentleman took the package home, opened it and examined its contents. The next day he took the castor (with the tag attached) back to the groceryman, and said to him: "I am too poor a man in this world's goods to afford to display so valuable a castor on my table, and if you have no objection, I should like to return it and take $14 worth of groceries in its stead." The merchant could do nothing but acquiesce; but fancy his feelings.

The time of immigration setting toward our shores is subject to fluctuations, but there exist no reason to anticipate that during the present generation it will fail to reach the average height of the past ten years; immigration, therefore continues to be one of the great economic questions of this country. That our naturalization laws are defective in many respects is notorious, and the demand for their revision will no doubt acquire added force from the publication of an article by Justice William Strong upon that subject in the North American Review for May. In the same number of the Review, Edwin P. Whipple offers a candid judgment of Matthew Arnold, as a thinker and a man of letters. Richard A. Proctor, under the title of "A Zone of Worlds," writes of the vast multitude of the pigmy kindred of the earth, known as the asteroids. In "The Railway and the State," Gerrit L. Lansing essays to prove that the multiplication and extension of railroad lines, and the establishment of low rates of transportation, are hindered rather than helped by governmental interference. Prof. Henry F. Osborn, of Princeton College has a highly interesting article on "Illusions of Memory." Helen Kendrick Johnson contributes an essay on "The Meaning of Song." Finally, there is a joint discussion of "Workmen's Grievances," by William Godwin Moody and Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, Harvard University.

LECITOZEN AMERICAN comes to us from Minneapolis. It is a French Journal, with English translations in alternate columns. It is a high toned paper, and illustrates the cosmopolitan character of the young city of the northwest.

THE MAY CENTURY. Portraits of famous soldiers have been a feature of recent numbers of The Century; and the frontispiece of the may number (beginning a new volume) is a portrait of a famous warrior, "Chief Joseph, the Nez-Perce," whose character and valor are picturesquely described by Lient. C. E. S. Wood.

Henry James's new three-part story is begun in this number. The title character, "Lady Barbarina," is the charming daughter of an English marquis, and the hero, Jackson Lemon, is a young American millionaire who makes a pretence of practicing medicine. It is clear from the first part of the story that the noveliest had undertaken to describe a new phase of international society. The short story of the number is "Reese Madder," an illustrated romance of artist life. Mr. Cable contributes the seventh part of "Dr. Sevier," and Robert Grant's story of "An Average Man" is brought to an interesting conclusion.

Of special value among the popular illustrated papers is Julian Hawthorne's description of the Salem of Hawthorne," which contains much new and valuable biographical analysis. The continuation of Mr. Benjamin's narrative of the cruise of the Alice May deals with the west of Newfoundland. — "The Bay Islands, in Calm and Storm."

A careful series of papers by Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer on "Recent Architecture in America," which has been in preparation, opens in the May number with a consideration of the merits of many new public buildings. Dr. Charles Waldstein contributes an important archeological paper on the "Metopes of the Parthenon," in which illustrations are given of the head in the Louvre, which, as he recently discovered, is a fragment of one of the Parthenon marbles in the British Museum.

In timely essays, the May number is unusually rich. Thomas Hughes writes of "Trades-unionism" in England; Mrs. Helen Jackson (H. H.) makes a clear statement of the religious convictions and consolations of the Mormon women in an article entitled "The Women of the Bee-Hive"; John Burroughs writes suggestively of "British Fertility"; and Frank R. Stockton satirizes the growing tyranny of children in a short essay "On the Training of Parents." "Topics of the Time," contains editorials on "Military Morality," "Wanted, A Party of Progress," and "The Dorsheimer Copyright Bill." And among the "Open Letters" are articles on education, prohibition, and tenement-house reform; a biographical sketch of the late Wm. M. Baker, by Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis; and reviews of "The Bread winners" and other new novels.

The poetry is contributed by Austin Dobson, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, Christian G. Rossetti, Edmund Gosse, Andrew Lang, Lucretia P. Hale, Richard Watson Gilder, John Vance Cheney, Robert Underwood Johnson Frank Dempster Sherman and others.

THE CHURCH REVIEW. May. The leading article of the number by Bishop H. C. Potter on the better support of our underpaid clergy, proposes that all who receive incomes of $3,000 and over should contribute say two and a half per cent for the creation of a sustentation fund. He thinks this, after the manner of the Free Church of Scotland would attract gifts from other sources. There is a steel plate of Rev. Dr. Shelton, and several excellent articles. Monthly $3 a year. P. O. Box 1839, New York.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR MAY. Is a notable number in its contributors and in their contributions. J. T. Townbridge opens the second part of the volume with a new serial story of the strange adventures of a young naturalist, entitled "The Scarlet Tanager"; Maurice Thompson, an authority on all out-of-door matters, also begins a six months' serial, called "Marvin and his Boy Hunters," an account of out-of-door sport from Indiana to Florida, and Mayne Reid's thrilling story, "The Land of Fire," is brought to a satisfactory conclusion in four interesting chapters.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps contributes an article with the suggestive title, "Supporting Herself," which should be read by every girl in the land. It is a clear, concise statement of the obligations of girls to support themselves, and of the ways of doing so. Charles G. Leland, in his paper on "Leather Work in the 'Work and Play Department,'" describes an employment that bids fair to be as popular as his article on "Brass Work," last June. It makes a fitting supplement to "Supporting Herself."

Frank R. Stockton writes one of his quaint and inimitable fanciful tales, "The Philopena"; and in a different key is the pathetic story by A. G. Plympton of "The River-end Moreys' Rab."

Louisa M. Alcott's fifth "Spinning-wheel Story," "Little Things," is a capital girl's story of the times when our great grandmothers were young; and E. S. Brooks tell graphically of "Olaf of Norway: The Boy Viking," another "Historic Boy."

"Rosy Snow" is a delightful bit of verse, a poem in two stanzas, by Helen Gray Cone. A charming poem by Julia C. R. Dorr is "The Doves at Mendon," which has three full-page illustrations by G. F. Barnes. There are also poems and verses by Malcolm Douglas, Joel Stacy, and others, and pictorial contributions from a long list of well-known names.

IN THE HEART OF AFRICA. Condensed from the Works of Sir Samuel W. Baker, F. R. G. S. Perhaps there never was a traveller more renowned than Sir Samuel Baker. The culmination of his travels was the discovery of the great reservoir from which the Nile issues—a discovery that had baffled generations of explorers, and the story of which, as here given, is more thrilling than the best romance written. The interest is greatly heightened by the fact that the explorer's wife accompanied him in all his hazardous journey and at least once redeemed the expedition from almost certain failure. In the condensation much of the dry scientific record has been omitted, but the unity and thrilling charm of the narrative have been well preserved, as well as the instructive descriptions of the natives and countries observed. Of especial interest at the present time are the graphic chapters on the Sudan and its capital, Khartoum. Published in Funk & Wagnalls' (10 and 12 Dey Street, N. Y.) Standard Library. Paper 25 cents.

"Fathers O'Connor's Letters to Cardinal McCloskey," Fourth Edition, Tenth Thousand. The "Letters" in this volume, the author says in the preface to this edition, contain the chief points of the sermons and lectures he has delivered in the Reformed Catholic Church in New York for the last five years. He gives in them an outline of his life as a Roman Catholic priest in Chicago for eight years, the evangelical way of salvation for all who desire to worship God in spirit and in truth, and a through exposition of the false doctrines of the Romish Church. Many Roman Catholics have been enlightened by them, and they are good for all Protestants to read.

Published by James A. O'Connor at the "Converted Catholic" Office, No. 60 Bible House, New York. Price paper covers, 35 cents.

TIP LEWIS AND HIS LAMP. By Pansy. Price 25 cents. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. This capital story was one of the first from Pansy's prolific pen, and so bright was it, so pure, and so healthy in tone, that it sprang at once into popularity, and since that time it has been in steady demand. It was an excellent idea on the part of the publishers to begin their new series of cheap editions of good books with one which is already so widely and favorably known. It is a book powerful for good, and one that no boy could read without feeling its influence. The story itself is deeply interesting, the style is fascinating, and the lesson it teaches is skillfully mingled with the incident. By this reduction in the price it will find a multitude of new readers, and particularly among those who need its teachings most.

AN HOUR WITH MISS STREATOR. By Pansy. With a beautiful emblematic frontispiece. Few books embody in equal space so many useful lessons so wisely and entertainingly presented, as "An Hour with Miss Streator."

Every primary class teacher in every Sunday-school in the land will find this last book of Pansy's invaluable. It is full of hints and helps for faithful workers, and will be most heartily welcomed everywhere.

It will be sent, postage paid, on receipt of six cents (three two cents stamps) by the publishers, D. Lothrop & Co., 30 Franklin street, Boston.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.—And then, remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around you, my son, you will see that the men who are the most able to live the rest of their days without work are the men who worked the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with work, my son. It is beyond your power to do that. Men cannot work so hard as that on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it's because they quit work at 6 p. m., and don't get home until 2 a. m. It's the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals, it lends solidity to your slumbers, it gives you a perfect appreciation of a holiday.

There are young men that do not work, my son, but the world is not proud of them. It does not know their names even; it simply speaks of them as old so and so's boy. Nobody likes them, nobody hates them; the great busy world doesn't even know that they are there. So find out what you want to be and do, my son, and take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are, the less deviltry you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.—Hawkeye.

We call the special attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mrs. Lizzie E. Cotton, in another column, under head of Honey Bees.

A Column for Ladies Only.
THE LITTLE PETTICOAT.
Diaphanous Fabrics for Women's Wear.
Robinson Crusoe and the Mignon
A NEW USE FOR SILK HANDKERCHIEFS.
YOU CAN LEARN IT ALL AT BARR'S.

Among the mysteries of the feminine wardrobe there is an abbreviated garment known as the little petticoat, whose merits will always remain a marvel to those women who were not brought up to a realizing sense of its protective virtues—seeing that they are scant—and whose existence is not known to even those prying men who, like Clara Bell, delight in exposing to public view all the vanities of the feminine wardrobe. The little petticoat is beyond dispute a vanity, and on its brief breadths a woman can lavish more lace, more needlework and more time than on anything pertaining to her stock of lingerie. It is too short to be seen of men and too sacred to be passed around as a pattern to other women. Southern women, for the most part, pay no worship to the little petticoat, reserving all their petit soirs for the more venerable yet not less lavishly garnished chemise, the only classic garment left to the human race. Long may it flourish! Really it was in rivalry of the little petticoat that the respectable chemise first demanded trimming for its lower edge, and now nothing is too decorative for it, and its lace and ribbon adornments outdo those of the little petticoat, only the most prudish garments adhering to the simple hem.

To what high estate both the little petticoat and the festive chemise have attained you may judge, dear reader, by asking for these articles in the ladies' department of underclothing at Barr's, where yesterday I was shown some most beautifully adorned garments of both kinds, reveling in real laces, tiny tucks and embroideries all combined, and to some of the garments a coquettish touch of color was given by the introduction of the narrow Ottoman ribbons in the meshes of the lace. Superb sets, consisting of chemises, gowns and drawers (petticoats to match are sold separately), selling from $9 to $37.50, are worth from $12 to $50. One set is a mass of lace of finest hand-run Maltese, in clover leaf and pansy designs, blended with fine embroidery. One of the late Easter brides bought its counterpart for her trousseau. Close beside are wonderful bargains in single garments, and the little petticoat is an independent affair that seems to go in "sets." There are gowns well made and trimmed with three bands of insertion and Hamburg edge, for 75 and 85 cents, and skirts of correct shape, good sewing and good fabric, with only tucks as a trimming, for 65 cents.

Full boned corsets of sewed coutil, side steels and double busk, for 85 cents. "Where-with shall we be corseted?" is a constant query with women. Those who are not satisfied with their figures may be glad to learn of a new corset (covered with patents) in which the bones are so prepared that no strain nor wear can deflect them from the curves of beauty into which they have been bent into shape upon the model of a perfect figure, and the wearer, instead of shaping her corset, is molded by it to the symmetrical proportions of the perfect model. Absolute comfort is yielded by this new corset, which claims the honor of being

HER MAJESTY'S CORSET.

But if one is going to pack her trunks for a summer resort there are other things besides underclothes to be thought of, and in the annals of shoppers, prices were never so low as at Barr's this season. Let us take some lovely fabrics from the departments at random, and drift, as shoppers sometimes do, from one to another, whether we intend to buy or not. There are white dress goods as enchanting as a dream of bliss. For example, this white canton crepe, all pure silk, and shimmering with a pearl-white luster in every crinkle of its diaphanous fabric. For neckerchiefs, fichus and scarfs, as well as dresses, it will be worn. And a very thin silk grenadine, brocaded with small wheels, comes in all the cream and ivory hues. Another silken web for summer evening—robes in Persian silk mulls in all the faint tints of pink and pearl and blue and ivory. French mulls and India lins in these tints and in bright red are shown in this department.

ROBES OF WHITE BATISTE.

have flounces and bands and ruffles for trimming the basque, and drapery embroidered with floral designs in shaded browns, blues, pinks and lavenders. Still handsomer box suits of "French Medium"—a fabric between French mull and Paris muslin—are all white, the flounce, that forms the chief feature of the dress, being thirty inches deep, and bands and ruffles for the waist trimming following the leading design. There is an ample allowance of fabric and trimming in these suits, whose prices range from $15 to $50. The embroidery is really beautiful and the patterns all unique.

A NEW CRAZE IN QUILTS has arisen in which silk handkerchiefs will be consumed by the score. A handkerchief is taken and folded, first in a half square, and each half square again folded on the half square, dividing the handkerchief into four parts of the half handkerchief square. To make one square of the quilt it will require parts of four handkerchiefs, selected according to taste, light and dark, and the triangular pieces must be so put together that the cut edges will join, having the straight side as the outer edge of the completed square. Sixteen handkerchiefs will make a large-sized quilt.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."—[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St.

He desires that the Holy Communion may be prepared for on Sundays and Festival Days. On week days, unless otherwise arranged, it is desirable that the service shall be at night; any other service which the time will permit will be had. The Bishop will be glad to meet the people socially when they can be conveniently arranged for. He desires that the parish register may be written up, and that he may see it.

WHITSUNDAY is the day which by long habit has been given to the offertory for the Bible and Prayer Books Society. The day on which we commemorate the giving of God's Holy Spirit is the fit time for remembering the gifts of that Spirit in the revelation imparted to us. This offertory should always especially be made by the Churches which have received gifts of Bibles and Prayer Books. Attention was not called to this as it should have been, last month, but even now collections could be and should be made for the purpose. The Bishop will send on the amounts sent to him, to the societies in New York and Philadelphia which have so liberally helped us.

THE LATE PRESIDING BISHOP.

Bishop Smith died on the 31st ult. at his residence in New York, where he had lived for a number of years, the more conveniently to perform his duties as Presiding Bishop. He was within a few days of his ninetieth year, and the fifty-second of his Episcopate, and the sixty-seventh of his entrance upon the ministry. He had been Presiding Bishop for the past nineteen years, since the death of Bishop Hopkins. Bishop Lee, of Delaware, now succeeds him as Presiding Bishop. He was consecrated in 1841.

Bishop Smith had taken part in the consecration of more Bishops than any previous Presiding Bishop. He was the last surviving Bishop in whose consecration Bishop White took part. He was the first Bishop of our Church who consecrated a church and administered confirmation in this Diocese having administered for that purpose in the first Christ Church, May 25th, 1834.

For several years he has been growing more feeble. He was present at the organization of a meeting of the House of Bishops in April last. He was buried in Frankfort, Kentucky, on the 6th inst. Bishop Dudley becomes Bishop of Kentucky.

THE ADVENT'S NEED.

The Church of the Advent was recently released from debt, and largely by the kind acts of those not in the congregation. It is in a neighborhood in which there are no rich and many very poor. It will probably never be otherwise. Its glory is in the fact that it is near to, and will reach those who cannot and will not attend the rich churches. Our standards of success are that we make things pay, and get as many well-to-do people as possible into our congregations.

Paying the debt on the Advent was, however, only the mere thrusting out of the devil. It left the congregation exhausted and poor. The building needs repairs and improvements and brightening up, to make it the cheerful place to which persons will gladly go.

Perhaps more even than this it needs a parsonage, a home for its clergyman. When out of the scanty stipend that has been all that was possible to be paid—and very few know the straits to which the minister has been reduced, and with no complaint uttered—there has to be the large and exhausting monthly demand for rent, it is almost impossible to sustain the clergyman there. It is not a question of individuals, but of the work itself. It ought to have a brighter and better equipped building, and still more, it ought to have a clergyman's home.

Next to the church is a vacant lot, on the corner, which might be had cheap. It would be the natural completion of the property. On it a simple parsonage could be built, to be afterwards enlarged. The church could be opened and brightened on that side, and when necessary a large Bible class or infant school room could be added.

This would be an economical measure in relieving the missionary of rent and the Missionary Board consequently of a larger drain on it. It would tend to permanence, as assuring the minister of a settled home, beyond the danger of drifting about in rented quarters. It would be in the interest of efficiency, as placing the minister near his work, where he could be found by those who were seeking for him for any offices. Something like this is needed, at any rate, to insure the stability of this much needed mission in that needy quarter, and to prevent the temptation to seek a place where the wealthier live. We know where at least the beginning of the money needed for the purpose can be found.

—After the Bishop had placed in the printer's hands the article on the parsonage for the Church of the Advent in this city, he was informed that on the corner lot mentioned, three small houses were being built. The proposal made is, therefore, out of the question now, and it is a great pity.

ST. LOUIS CEMETERIES.

The following rather vigorous remonstrance from our old friend and correspondent, Mr. Southack, refers to some articles which we have not seen, and is on a subject of which we know little. It shows how clearly our actions are being watched from a distance. Many years ago we urged that a surrender of the titles be secured to the lots while their owners were yet living. As there could be allowed no more interments, this would not have been difficult. We fear that this was much neglected, and now it will be more difficult, among many heirs, to secure the surrender, and the land will consequently bring less.

The avails ought to be put aside sacredly to form the beginning of an endowment, to sustain Christ Church in its present location. It should be spent on no debts, or any improvements. The time is rapidly approaching when the maintenance of Christ Church where it is, will be an anxious matter. Its quiet and privacy will soon be destroyed by the Exposition and hotel, and it will have to be approached by going past shops and public buildings.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12, 1884.

Dear Bishop:

* * * * *

I now write about another matter which has given me much grief and surprise to hear about. I have recently read in one of the St. Louis papers an article about "The Old Graveyards, which is a sorrowful picture of the thoughtlessness of the living for the dead.

In some respects the reporter has made some mistakes, and I may write an article if I get able, to correct these errors, as I have knowledge about some of the cemeteries for a longer period than the writer has. I wish to call especial attention to his report on the condition of Christ Church Cemetery. Among other things he says: "Numerous headstones and pretentious marble shafts with appropriate inscriptions, had no living person to command respect for them, or the place they occupied. These monuments have been hauled away by an enterprising builder, to be used in the construction of tenement houses, and to form a stone coping for an iron fence to be placed around his property."

And then he goes on to say further, "Tossed promiscuously among wagon loads of other stones at the corner of Todd and Eads Avenues was a four foot pedestal which had marked the grave of an English army officer," and others are mentioned; among them are some of my friends, whose funerals I attended, and saw their bodies buried many years ago.

Mr. Thos. Shore was buried there in 1847. He was a tobacco merchant from Petersburg, Va., had quite a large family, was a member of St. George Church, superintendent of its Sunday school for a few years, a devoted Christian and Churchman. Several of his descendants now live in St. Louis, and some in St. Charles county. Dr. John Shore of St. Louis, if now living, was his eldest son, and some of the grandchildren are now living in South St. Louis. I believe his body was reinterred at Bellefontaine, and it is a matter of surprise that his gravestone should still be knocked around. There are some of the old members of St. George and Christ Churches who will, I presume, remember him and his family, especially Mr. and Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Manny, Mrs. Waters, Mrs. Hough, and Mrs. Van Zandt and others.

Another whose funeral I attended was Dr. Henry, who was well known, and a member of Christ Church. Both him and his wife, and two of their children were buried there. I was well acquainted with his family; his wife was from Philadelphia, a granddaughter of Bishop White, and after his death, his wife having preceded him, their two surviving children went to their relatives in Philadelphia, and may be living there yet. I have never heard whether their bodies were removed to Bellefontaine, but I think something was done about it. Dr. Henry was like Mr. C., an humble and sincere Christian, and a devoted Churchman. At the time of his death he was boarding in the same house with my family on Fifth street near Olive. I also attended the funerals of many others there, whose names I have forgotten.

To myself this cemetery was the burial place of my firstborn child, who lived but twelve hours after its birth, and whose little body I had buried there in 1841. It being so young a child I never thought of having its bones removed any where else.

You may perhaps know the history of this cemetery. It was bought by the Vestry of old Christ Church while on Fifth street, when it was in debt, and subsequently portions of it were sold from time to time to help to reduce the debt, and now I hear that the balance of the ground has been laid off into house lots, and is to be sold at auction next month.

I hope before this is done the Vestry will see to it that every bone that can be found there will be taken care of, and every grave stone and monument will be removed to some place where they can be kept from desecration.

If what the reporter says about some of the monuments having been hauled away and used for the coping of an iron fence, is true, I think it is very strange that the Vestry should have allowed such a proceeding, and I hope the present Vestry will investigate the matter, and I trust no further desecration will be allowed.

In reference to the graveyard where Grace Church was built, the reporter has made a mistake in saying that the ground was given to the church in 1816, when in fact, the lot was not occupied by Grace Church until 1844 or 1845, and then the parish built their church right among the grave stones, and one or two large ones were close to the side of the church. When the excavations were first made for levelling the lot to the grade of the streets, many of the bones and coffins were exposed to public view, and the Vestry caused them to be gathered together and placed in a box which was deposited in the cellar of the church. I presume that now, since the hill has been reduced to a level with the street, the Vestry has seen to the care of other bones which were brought to the light.

I hope that you will excuse my writing so much on this subject; it is because I have felt, as an old citizen of St. Louis, that it is a reproach on her character, and also a reproof to those bodies of Christians who will allow such desecration, and make no efforts to prevent them in future.

F. W. SOUTHACK.

THE CONVENTION.

The weather was beautiful throughout for the annual Diocesan gathering, being clear and cool. The arrangements for the entertainment of the clergy and delegates were all made and announced to them before they started from their homes, by the Rector of the church where the Convention was to meet, the Rev. Mr. Robert. All were cared for; some who preferred it being lodged at the Bristol Hotel, convenient to the church.

The south transept of the church was curtained off, for the clergy to robe in. About thirty were in procession, others being in the body of the church. The line went out of the side, and came in the front door, and came down the middle aisle, singing a processional. Nearly all who were vested had seats on the choir floor, the older clergy being within the chancel.

The service was begun by the Rev. E. Talbot, the first lesson being read by the Rev. Dr. Gierlow, the second by the Rev. G. H. Ward, the creed and collects by the Rev. M. S. Woodruff. The ante-Communion service was begun by the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, the Epistle was read by the Rev. J. W. Dunn, the Gospel by the Rev. Dr. Runcie. The sermon was to have been preached by the Rev. Dr. Fulton, and had been nearly completed when he was stricken with a painful illness, under which at this writing he is, we are sorry to say, still suffering, and which prevented his delivery of the sermon. It was, however, at the Bishop's request, pronounced by the Rev. G. C. Betts, and with excellent emphasis and force. The text was Romans 15: 13, and it was devoted to exposing two dangers which at this time especially threaten the Church and the Christian faith; the first on the side of material science, and the other from the divisions among Christians. These difficulties were fairly stated, and then clearly and strongly combatted.

The offertory sentences were assigned to the Rev. Dr. Foster, the prayer for the Church militant and exhortations to the Rev. Mr. Scheetz. The Bishop consecrated and the Rev. Dr. Ingraham said the post-Communion. The offertory anthem was beautifully sung.

After the service the Bishop called the Convention to order, and the secretary of the last Convention, Mr. John R. Triplett, called the roll, and then or afterwards 44 clergymen belonging to the Diocese, of whom 39 had seats in Convention, answered to their names. On calling the roll of the delegates, 29 parishes and two missions were found to be represented. There has never been so full a representation. The Rev. Messrs. Woodruff, Griffith and R. Talbot were appointed a committee to examine the credentials of the delegates' certificates, and the Convention took a recess for lunch.

This was served during the three days of Convention at the Pickwick, two squares off, by the ladies of the parish in a most graceful and bounteous manner. The lunch was a charming feature of the Convention; the space was ample; the fare was abundant and nice; the attentions paid were prompt and kind; the relaxation after long sitting at business seemed to dispose all to good humor.

After lunch the organization was completed by the reelection of Mr. J. R. Triplett as Secretary, who appointed Mr. D. S. Crosby as his assistant. The hours fixed at were at 9 a.m., for service, 10 a.m. to 12.30, and from 2 p.m. until adjournment for business; and from 12.30 to 2 p.m. for lunch.

The Bishop read his address in the afternoon, some portions of which we give:

Our ranks among the clergy have not, during the year been reduced by death, although the steady change, year by year, occasioned by removals, causes the complexion of the convention for those who have been longer connected with it in a little while to be altered almost past recognition. I often have to confess to a sense of loneliness as I go from place to place and recall the names and characters of them with whom I had worked in the past, and who had been wont to greet me, but of whom now scarcely any one knows anything.

And yet the steady life work of the Church goes on with little respect to the individuals who for the time bear the burdens and administer the trusts. We scarcely have time to pause and shed a tear and speak the word of honest appreciation of those who have fallen by the way before the urgent needs of the present push us on to the duties which are yet before us. We shall feel the loss in the business of the Convention, in many ways, of the devoted service, the long experience and the uncompromising Churchmanship of Judge Ferguson, whose departure from this life during the year we have so deeply to deplore. He was a connecting link with the past. He had filled every position of honor and trust in the gift of the Diocese, on the standing committee, in the general convention, in the committee on canons and on boards of trustees. He had occupied the position of registrar ever since the creation of the office, and was thoroughly in sympathy with its purposes. The personal loss to us of a wise and and faithful counsellor is greater than I am able to say. In this body we shall often find ourselves waiting for his voice, and for the results of his ripe experience.

The very considerable accumulations of books and documents which the registrar had made have now been placed in one of the rooms in Christ church in this city, where are also the volumes of the diocesan library, which is now a large and valuable collection. This grant of space is a courtesy for which we are indebted to the rector and vestry of Christ church, who have also provided shelving. This collection of books, pamphlets and manuscripts is of large present and will be of increasing value. It should be carefully attended to, placed in the hands of a faithful guardian, so that the papers and volumes may not be lost, but at the same time be made accessible to those who need to consult them. There will then be imparted such a sense of security as will induce gifts of books and other material, valuable for consultation by clergymen, students and others, and which will be indispensable hereafter in writing any history of the diocese. I would recommend that the modest appropriation of $25 a year, which used to be made for the use of the registrar for binding be resumed.

With the exception of three days of sickness, I have been able to prosecute, without interruption, all through the year, the work of my office, and have visited all parts of the diocese and to some parts have gone several times. The greater facility with which I can now perform most of my journeys, by reason of the increasing mileage of the railways, by no means keeps pace with the vastly greater number of places to which I ought to extend my practical oversight, but many of which I am prevented visiting from lack of time.

Even at the risk of repeating what I have said before, but with an emphasis justified by a longer familiarity, which only deepens in me a sense of the truth and significance of it, I am amazed and overwhelmed by the extent and rapidity with which the state is filling up with the best class of people. Hundreds of miles of range to which I was once accustomed in many parts of the state are now all fenced up and under cultivation. Indeed there is almost no land which is at all valuable that is not now enclosed. Villages have become cities with all the comforts and appliances of modern life. All parts of the state show this prosperity; but perhaps it is of the western counties that the statement is more emphatically true.

Everywhere, too, the services of the Church are received with a candor and an interest which indicate that its growth will be only measured by the energy and ability with which we can push it. I have never known a time when as large results could be had with well-directed effort as now.

The year has been one of steady gain in strength. The numbers confirmed, 515, have never been, except in one unusual year, as great as those presented this year. I think, moreover that, to speak generally, I have never known them to have been prepared with as great care.

The number of clergymen, 63, has also increased, but not, of course, to the extent that we could all of us have desired. This smaller increase has been due in part to the small number of candidates for orders.

During the year I have consecrated St. Mark's church, Butler; the Church of the Good Shepherd, St. Louis, and Grace chapel, Eureka, St. Louis county. * * * Besides these there have been erected during the year churches at Lebanon and Cuba; St. Paul's church, Mexico, which was taken down because not deemed safe, has been replaced by a neat and substantial brick structure.

The church at Brunswick was in the month of June last blown down by a tornado which swept over the country. The loss greatly depressed the little congregation there, but work is now in progress for the erection of another building. At Clinton a valuable lot has been purchased for the church. At Odessa I think that a church will be built his fall.

During the year the commodious parsonage at Monroe City has been finished and the one at Carthage is under way. I hope that before long we shall have this almost indispensable adjunct to a clergyman's usefulness and comfort in Lexington and Chillicothe. The Rev. Mr. Talbot has pressed on the additions to St. James' academy, Macon City, so that he hopes to have the third building in condition for use in time for the opening of the next term in September. He has had a largely increased number of boarding and other pupils, with excellent prospects for next year.

Our educational facilities will be increased also this year by the establishment of a Church school for girls, St. Agnes' Hall, by Mrs. Smith of Staunton, Va., in Macon City.

* * * The subject of divorce with which this diocese memorialized the convention was not considered at length but was referred to a strong committee to be reported on 1886. I am glad to notice that the position of the Church, which is that of the Word of God in respect to this important matter, is being better understood in parochial administration in this diocese.

Ministers are not, of course, compelled to solemnize marriage in any instance, but considering the office which they hold and the possible social consequences involved, they should do so on application, except where they may not rightly do so.

They are not, according to the order of the Church, forbidden to marry the innocent party, when the divorce has been for the cause of adultery. Rather, the presumption would be, on account of the exception explicitly named, that if applied to they should solemnize such marriage. In any question referred to, the Bishop under the canon with regard to the facts concerning an alleged adultery when such has not been in the case explicitly alleged and proven it must not be expected that any unattested allegation of an interested party shall be taken as equivalent to proof of adultery. The Church's blessing cannot be expected to be given so easily, especially when persons have deliberately chosen the easier course of procuring a separation on lighter grounds. The proof on which they ask the Church's offices must be ample. Christian persons must enter into the marriage relation only when they can do so reverently, discreetly, advisedly and in fear of God. They may not, then, without sin, lightly separate from the person to whom they have plighted their troth. Clergymen will notice that the withholding of the sacraments is not from those who are separated because of such separation, but because of some marriage such as God's word did not allow.

A minute commemorative of Judge Ferguson, presented by Dr. Ingraham, was adopted by a rising vote.

The following Standing Committees were announced.

Admission of New Parishes: Rev. P. G. Robert, Rev. B. F. Newton, and H. H. Curtis.

Unfinished Business: Rev. E. M. Pecke, Rev. W. A. Hatch, and R. Burroughs.

Finance: Messrs. Bent, Gill and Branch.

Assessments: Messrs. Alexander, Carter, Freeborn, Motter, Munger, Winner and Rollins.

Constitution and Canons: Rev. Messrs. Scheetz and E. Talbot, and Hon. G. Porter.

Missions: Rev. Dr. Runcie, Messrs. Silvester and Bolmer, and Messrs. Wallace and Lycett.

Christian Education: Rev. Messrs. Jardine, Waterman and Dr. Gierlow, and Messrs. Twinning and Donaldson.

Missionaries Travelling Expenses: Rev. Jos. De Forest, Messrs. J. A. Waterworth and D. A. Stewart.

Sunday School Work: Revs. G. H. Ward and John Davis, and Mr. H. H. Dennison.

State of the Church: Revs. G. C. Betts, B. E. Reed and C. Mann, and Messrs. John C. Orrick, and A. A. Lesueur.

Discussion having arisen as to right of a delegate from Palmyra to a seat, the President ruled that delinquencies on assessments only which had arisen since the ratification of the present constitution in 1882 had effect to debar from a seat in Convention. Mr. Dennison gave notice of an amendment to Section 4 of Article V of the constitution, by striking out the last clause, and inserting, "but the Convention may, by a two-thirds vote, admit the delegates from a delinquent parish to seats in the Convention."

The Bishop's reception was held in the evening, and was attended by throngs of persons, who seemed to greatly enjoy the reunion.

THE SECOND DAY.

After service said by Rev. Messrs. Leonard, of Atchison, Kansas, and E. Talbot, the President took the chair.

Hon. John Wickham reported that the committee for testing the legality of the Parochial Trust Fund, had arranged an agreed case for the Supreme Court, but it had not yet come on. The committee was continued.

The Rev. P. G. Robert from committee on the Admissions of New Parishes, reported in favor of Christ Church, Afton, St. Louis County, which was then received into union.

Mr. Silas Bent offered a resolution touching the taxes on the Bishop's residence, and the following substitute, offered by the Rev. G. C. Betts, was adopted: "that the Chancellor be requested to test the legality of assessment of taxes made against the property occupied by the Bishop."

The committee on the division of the Diocese made a report in which they stated that certain propositions were before them, and asked to be continued which was adopted.

The Treasurer of the Diocese reported that for general purposes during the year he had received $6,271.85, and paid out $5,418.13, leaving on hand $1,066.34. Apparently $53.78 had been paid out in discounts, which could have been saved if each parish had paid what it owed when it was due. The delinquencies amounted to $1,952.78, a less amount than for many years, and of these two parishes owed nearly $900.

The Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund reported as received since last Convention $498.93, and stipend paid out, $250. There is invested on real estate security $8,350. Many parishes did not contribute to this fund.

The Theological Education Fund, to help in the support of the Candidates for Orders while studying, makes a still poorer report. It has received from the parishes only $261.42, and from interest $152. The payments were $145. There is $3,500 invested for this fund.

The Treasurer of the Permanent Episcopal Fund reported that he had received during the year from the parishes $485.49, from interest $115.04, from sale of land $700. He had bought two U. S. bonds of $100 each, one Henry County bond of $1,000, and loaned $700. He had invested for the Fund $3,944.95, had $126.67 cash on hand, and held 240 acres of land in St. Clair County at an estimated value of $2,400.

The Bishop's General Trust Fund Account showed that he had received $1,497.37, and had paid out $1,584.98. The Bishop's Purse account showed that he had received from three churches $45.88, and had paid out in charity, for needy clergymen and churches, $67.27. On the Children's Cot account he had received $2,909.10, of which $2,500 was invested, and the balance was in the Savings Bank.

The afternoon of the second day was devoted to the missionary business of the Diocese. Mr. F. J. McMaster, Secretary of the Missionary Board read his report, which showed, among other things, that 24 clergymen of the Diocese are depending on stipends from the Board. Mr. D. F. Leavitt, the Treasurer, reported that during the year he had received $500 from the Sunday School Missionary Host, and from the Parishes $2,500, about $100 less than last year. The expenditures had amounted to about the same sum. The report of Miss Triplett, Secretary of the Missouri branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, was also read, which showed a large amount of work done by the societies.

A general discussion followed as to which were more needed, men or money. The usefulness of a general missionary for the Diocese, of the visits of city clergy to country parishes, the wider use of the convocational system, of the need of infusion of more information; all these were urged in many addresses, and the debate was very animated. In the election of a new Missionary Board, the older members were chosen, except that Mr. F. W. Risque takes the place of Mr. L. E. Alexander.

Mr. Chas. Thaw moved an amendment to Sec. 5, Article V. of the constitution, referring to delegates to Convention, striking out the words, "baptized persons," and inserting "Communicants." Referred.

On motion of Mr. Geo. D. Reynolds, instead of the amendment to Sec. 4, Article V. of the Constitution, proposed by Mr. Dennison yesterday, the following was adopted as a substitute, to strike out the last clause, beginning with "But the Convention may by a two-thirds vote dispense with such proof of payment." This, if ratified finally next year, requires that parishes must pay their assessments, or else not expect a seat in Convention.

The amendment to Sections 1 and 2 of Canon X, requiring that no church shall be built within 500 yards of any other church, or land acquired for building a church, and applying this rule to old as well as new parishes, reported by the Committee on Canons, was adopted.

At night a large congregation was present at a general missionary meeting, at which a number of the Sunday-school scholars were present, and assisted materially in the singing. The Bishop then made an address, in which he showed that the larger number of the clergymen at active work in the Diocese were missionaries; and that, while this was not what is called a missionary jurisdiction, it had in it more missionaries than any of these. With the aid of a map of the State he showed what had been done, and what the Church growth now was.

He was followed by the Rev. E. Talbot, who detailed how St. James Academy had gained steadily in strength, and what a useful part it had in the work of the Diocese. He urged that the boys should be sent there.

The Rev. S. H. Greene presented in an address the work, and methods, and results of the Woman's Auxiliary. The statement was marked by great clearness and beauty. He urged the parishes generally to work in connection with it. Messrs. W. Delafield and J. J. Wilkins, the President and Vice-President of the Sunday School Missionary Host, presented its work, and the inducements for larger missionary interest among the children.

THIRD DAY.

After the Holy Communion, celebrated by the Rector of the parish, the Bishop after taking the chair, appointed as tellers of the clerical vote for Standing Committee Rev. W. A. Hatch and Mr. T. K. Skinner; and for the lay vote Rev. J. B. Trevett and Mr. F. J. McMaster. The following gentlemen were elected: The Rev. M. Schuyler, D.D., Rev. F. B. Scheetz, Rev. John Fulton, D.D., LL.D., Mr. Silas Bent, Mr. Chas. Hofman, Prof. W. B. Potter.

The result was only reached fully after six ballots, and the business called forth great interest.

Mr. J. W. Branch was appointed on the committee to enlarge the Permanent Episcopal Fund in place of Judge Ferguson deceased.

The Rev. G. C. Betts from the Committee on the State of the Church commented severely on the carelessness and inaccuracy of the parochial reports, proposed a new form, and stated that with imperfect returns the totals were largely in advance of those last year. In the matter of communicants the net gain was 462, and in the offerings a gain of $40,000.

The Rev. Dr. Ingraham was elected Registrar of the Diocese, and Mr. Joseph Franklin, Treasurer. The Rev. B. F. Reed was elected member of the Ecclesiastical Court, and the Rev. S. H. Greene, Alternate, both to serve for three years.

The proposition to substitute the first Monday in May for Monday in Easter week for the time of the annual parish elections was lost; as was also that to confine the lay membership in Convention to communicants, the restriction now being to baptized persons.

Mr. M. W. Alexander, from the committee on assessments, after making his regular report, reported further on the matter which had been referred to them, to make an equitable apportionment among the parishes for the amount due by the Diocese to the Permanent Episcopal Fund for the amount which had been borrowed from it in 1869 to settle with the estate of the late Bishop Hawks, that since $1,723.40 was due, that ten per cent be added for three years to the regular assessment with which to pay off the debt. This was adopted with an amendment that the additional assessment be reduced to five per cent, and spread over six years.

Mr. S. Bent moved that all parochial delinquencies existing before the adoption of the present Constitution in 1882 be remitted, on condition that other dues are paid, and that all amounts received by the Treasurer for arrearages be turned over to the Permanent Episcopal Fund Trustees.

Christ Church, St. Louis, was fixed upon as the place for the next Convention.

A resolution was adopted against needless litigation, and after the usual and hearty votes of thanks for hospitality, and to Dr. Fulton for his sermon, and a brief address by the Bishop, in which he expressed his pleasure at the temper of the Convention, it adjourned at 4.30 p.m. on the third day.

It was a singularly quiet and good tempered body. There was plenty of spirit, and at times banter; but throughout a dignity and industry most marked.

THE MISSIONARY HOST.

Whitsunday afternoon, after rain on eight preceding Sundays, was clear except a few premonitory drops, until just after the close of the exercises of the Host. The children were there in numbers beyond those of any preceding year. Perhaps some of the little ones were held back by their parents for fear of the distance, and crowds and rain; but Prof. Snow, the marshal for many anniversaries, (we believe though that he has been a Marshall all his life), received word to reserve seats for 2,050 children, 150 more than last year.

At 3 o'clock it did not seem as though the immense space could ever be filled up, but from that time they began to come in without an interruption for more than an hour. With the experience gained with years all arrangements worked most smoothly. Besides the organ, which is too far away to lead effectively the children, there were two cornets, to whom in most cases the school had previously furnished the music of their processional hymns. These led the singing beautifully. St. John's came first, and the Advent last. The Orphan children came with Mt. Calvary, and were seated on the Chancel steps as the guests of the Host. Both of the side galleries were taken for the schools, and the church was densely packed with 2,500 people. Very few grown persons besides the teachers got seats in the pews.

The Host consists of Sunday-school pupils of the various Episcopal Churches of the State, who by monthly contributions of 5 cents per pupil raised a fund to promote Church work in the State. It was organized in 1869, and one year after had organizations in the following churches: At St. Luke's Church, Kansas City; St. Paul's Church, Carondelet; Christ Church, St. George's, St. John's, Holy Communion, Grace, Trinity, St. Peter's and Emanuel, of this city. The churches and Sunday schools participating in the anniversary were: St. James', All Saints (colored), Christ, St. George's, St. John's, Holy Communion, Grace, Trinity, Mount Calvary, St. Peter's, Good Shepherd and Advent, of this city; Grace Church, of Kirkwood; Christ Church, Springfield, Mo.; St. Paul Church, of Mexico; Church of the Holy Comforter, Montgomery City; Trinity Church, Marshall; Grace Church, Jefferson City, and Christ Church, Boonville.

In the chancel with the Bishop were Rev. Geo. C. Betts, Rev. C. Dyer, and Rev. E. C. Alcorn, of Trinity; Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, of Grace Church; Rev. P. G. Robert, of the Holy Communion, Rev. B. E. Reed, of Mt. Calvary; Rev. W. H. Assheton, of St. Peter's; Rev. B. F. Newton, of the Good Shepherd; Rev. Stephen H. Greene, of St. John's, Rev. J. N. Chesnutt, of the Church of the Advent; Rev. W. J. Speirs, of St. George's; Jos. DeForest, of St. Paul's; Rev. C. M. C. Mason, of the All Saints; Rev. W. W. Sylvester, of Christ Church; Rev. G. C. Tucker, of St. James; Rev. E. Talbot, of Macon City, Rev. F. R. Holman, of Florida; Rev. W. A. Hatch, of Maryville, Rev. J. Davis, of Lexington, Mo., and Rev. G. W. Van Winkle, of Chester, Ill. Preliminary to the regular exercises, the various Sunday school pupils connected with the Host marched into the church of their respective classes singing a processional, with cornet and organ accompaniment, presenting an impressive and beautiful spectacle. The walls of Christ Church never before reverberated with so much youthful melody. Prof. M. S. Snow officiated as Grand Marshal and was assisted by H. Miltenberger and W. B. Chittenden. The number of pupils and processions were as follows:

Trinity—E. S. C. Hunt, Superintendent, 100 pupils—"For all the Saints who in their Labor Rest."

Grace Church—J. H. Wilson, Superintendent, 250 pupils—"Let There Be Light."

Holy Communion—M. F. Watts, Superintendent, 300 pupils—"Onward Christian Soldiers."

Mt. Calvary—Roger Hayne, Superintendent, 350 pupils—"Stand Up for Jesus."

St. Peter's—Chas. Thaw, Superintendent, 100 pupils—"Onward Christian Soldiers."

Good Shepherd—W. H. Chadsey, Superintendent, 125 pupils—A whitsuntide hymn composed by Rev. B. F. Newton.

St. George's—Rev. W. J. Speirs, Assistant Rector and Superintendent, 225 pupils—"Lord Thy Glory Fills the Heavens."

St. John's—V. W. Tippet, Superintendent, 195 pupils—"Brightly Gleams Our Banner."

The Church of the Advent.—Dana Mansfield Superintendent; 75 pupils—"The Church is Our Foundation."

All Saints, colored—Albert Burgess, Superintendent; 75 pupils—"Creator's Spirit."

Christ Church—Rev. W. W. Sylvester, Superintendent; 150 pupils—"The Son of God Goes Forth to War."

St. James—F. J. Branson Superintendent; 100 pupils—"Marching Along."

After the classes had taken the places assigned them, the regular exercises commenced beginning with an anthem—"Glory to God in the Highest"—followed by prayer for missions, collect and Lord's prayer said by the Rev. Mr. Robert, who has for a number of years acted as chaplain and precentor.

Mr. W. P. Nelson, the Secretary, read his report, which showed the increase in the numbers and usefulness of the Host.

The hymns and responses were given with a voice and melody that nobody hears anywhere else than on this yearly occasion. The Creed as it is said, the Lord's Prayer, and the hymns; "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "The Old, Old Story," "The Strain Upraise," and "The Morning Light is Breaking," were enough to take one's breath away. The writer of this, after an observation in this and other lands, at the opening service of General Convention, and other representative gatherings, declares that at no time or place is there such a volume of response and song as in Christ church on the Missionary Host day.

The Treasurer, Mr. E. C. Simmons, submitted his annual report. It showed that there was a balance on hand last year of $1,024 67, and that there had been received during the year the following: Holy Communion, $199 28; Christ Church, $90; St. George's, $82 15; Grace Church, $53; Mt. Calvary, $50; St. John's, $31 75; St. Peter's, $24 95; Trinity, $20; Advent, $17 35; All Saints, $11 50; Good Shepherd, $18; Christ Church, Boonville, $107 20; St. James $8 80; Grace Church, Kirkwood, $53 30; Holy Comforter, Montgomery City, Mo., 60 cents, interest on $100. There was expended during the year, $595 20, leaving a balance on hand of $1,297 30.

After another hymn, "The Morning Light is Breaking," Bishop Robertson in a brief address presented a banner to the banner school of the Host. This presentation will be a regular feature in the future, and is awarded to the school that has the largest membership in the Host and contributes the largest sum annually, in proportion to its Sunday-school membership. This school on the present occasion was that of the Church of the Holy Communion. The banner contained on one side the words, "Sunday-school Missionary Host—Diocese of Missouri; Organized 1869," and on the adverse side, "Jesus Christ—Light of the World." "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," was sung and the doxology and benediction followed. The pupils then marched out in the order in which they had entered.

THE OFFICERS

of the Host are: Wallace Delafied, President; J. J. Wilkins, Vice President; E. C. Simmons, Treasurer; W. P. Nelson, Secretary, and Gains Paddock, Assistant Secretary. The regular election of officers to serve the ensuing year took place at St. George's Chapel on Sunday, 8th inst.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Palmyra, 7; Louisiana, 3; Shelby, 4; Monroe City, 8; Hannibal, 3; Lexington, 10; St. George's, St. Louis, 31; Holy Communion (supplemental) 5; All Saints (supplemental) 6; St. Paul's, 14; Kirkwood, 12.

—A few days before the Bishop's visit to Monroe City the ladies sent word to the Rector that they proposed to furnish one of the rooms in the Rectory, which had been finished since the Bishop had been there last, that it might be ready for the Bishop's use. They accordingly came, with some gentlemen, and were soon at work, putting down the carpet, and arranging curtains, and a most tasteful set of furniture. It was a most thoughtful and spontaneous work; but only of a sort which this kindly and energetic parish is all the time engaged in. The Rectory is a neat and convenient residence, next to the Church, with eight rooms in it, and makes a delightful home for the pastor. The new Rector, Mr. Ward, has secured the affection of his people, and has entered on his duty with strength and enthusiasm.

—This was the way that the hotel clerk put it. It was at Mexico, Mo. He was asked by some commercial travelers who were arriving, what was going on of interest in the town, "Well," he said, "we have Bishop Robertson at the Episcopal Church to-night, and Peck's Bad Boy to-morrow night."

—St. John's Church, St. Louis, was very much, and not unnaturally, exercised last month because the amount, $220, which it had paid in full for its Diocesan assessment, by the mistake, probably of the Treasurer's clerk, was credited to Grace Church, which apparently forgot years ago that there is any such thing as an assessment to be met. St. John's, in the meantime, was left with a ghastly blank opposite to its name. Such mistakes, however, in the Treasurer's statements rarely happen, and the parish which attempts to wrestle with him about any alleged error, generally gets worsted. It is right for a parish to be jealous of its good name and record.

—The festival held by the Mission of the Good Shepherd, in this city, mentioned in our last number, resulted in $30, and the pound party in $27.

—The oldest seven of the clergy belonging to this Diocese are the following, who were made Deacons in the years set opposite their names:

Rev. William Johnson, . . .	1834
Rev. C. A. Foster, LL.D. . .	1837
Rev. O. Buckley . . .	1837
Rev. E. F. Berkeley, D.D. . .	1838
Rev. M. Schuyler, D.D. . .	1841
Rev. Carter Page . . .	1843
Rev. J. L. Gay . . .	1843

—The Rev. J. L. Gray, of Fayette, has been serving the Church at Moberly for the last two or three months, giving services every Sunday night. The congregations are good, and the interest in the Church is growing. At the close of the morning service at Fayette, where he lives, on Sunday, he goes immediately to the train for Moberly, where he is landed within an hour thereafter. Being relieved at home by a lay reader, he is able to give, occasionally, an entire Sunday to Moberly, when the Holy Communion is administered to the faithful.

—The Easter election of Vestrymen in St. Mary's, Fayette, resulted as follows: Thomas Ward, J. H. Pearson, G. H. Wallace, John Talbot, N. W. Leonard, John Harrison.

—On the evening of Ascension Day, it being the twelfth anniversary of the Establishment of the Church of the Advent in this city, and the seventh anniversary of the beginning of the ministrations in it of the present Rector, the Rev. Mr. Chesnutt invited his parishioners to a reception at his house.

—A paper by the Bishop, read before the Missouri Historical Society in April, on "The American Revolution, and the Acquisition of the Valley of the Mississippi," has been put into pamphlet form, and has called forth strong praise from historical authorities east and west.

—The Rev. George Moore began duty at St. Charles on the 24th ult., and will hold Services in Trinity church there on the second and fourth Sundays in the month, and at Montgomery on the first and third Sundays. The paper in the town in Illinois from which he has come writes as follows of his work in Wyoming:

"Rev. George Moore, of the Episcopal church, preaches his farewell discourse here on next Sabbath. We are sorry to learn that duty seems to call the gentleman to other ministerial fields of labor. His faithful, quiet, unobtrusive, Christian demeanor has won for him warm personal friends here not only among the members of his own particular church denomination, but among all Christian and non-professing people as well. We commend the reverend gentleman to the kind offices of the citizens of St. Charles, Mo., where he goes to make his home on leaving here."

—Dr. Schuyler's address during his absence is, Care of Brown, Shipley & Co., Founder's Court, Lothbury, London, E. C., England.

—The Bishop in order to get into town to lay the corner stone of Trinity Church, had to be brought by private conveyance from Emmanuel Church, near Webster, where he had held morning service, as there were no trains which came in at the time. Mr. Wm. H. Thomson undertook the duty, and drove out in his surrey. The day was very hot, and when about half of the return distance had been traversed, the horse concluded not to go any further and stopped. Another horse was gotten at a house near by, the harness was transferred, and the journey continued.

—The Rev. Mr. Scheetz has resigned his position as member of the Diocesan Missionary Board.

—At the Bishop's visitation to Emmanuel Church, St. Louis Co., a very delightful reception was given to him and Mrs. Robertson at Mrs. Rebris, on Saturday evening, 7th inst. A large number of the parishioners spent a charming evening at the house and on the grounds. The Bishop confirmed one person. The Rector, the Rev. Mr. Griffith has been seriously sick.

—The Rev. Dr. Fulton, although reported to be a little better, is very ill yet. With other complications there has been a complete nervous prostration, which has rendered his friends very anxious about him.

—The Rev. Mr. Lytton of Oak Hill is confined to his bed.

—The memorial window in Christ Church, Lexington, of which mention is made in another column, is very handsome, and in excellent taste. Its beauty will be still further increased when they are able to complete the whole of the window.

—Through the generosity of the original donor the Corona hanging in the Chancel of St. John's Church has been enlarged by the addition of another "crown" of light, and beautifully gilded and painted. Forty-eight burners now shed light in the spacious chancel. The Vestry of St. John's are now making an effort to have the organ of the church entirely rebuilt.

—Some enterprising person in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch of St. Louis gave the whole side of the paper to wood engravings of some dozen or two St. Louis clergymen, of various kinds. It is not quite evident as to where he derived his information or impressions from. We give below what was said of those Church clergymen whose portraits were given and who were mentioned. It is interesting to discover what ideas others have of a person, whether correct or not:

BISHOP ROBERTSON.

The St. Louis Diocese of the Episcopal Church is presided over by a stout, fairly tall personage, whose jolly face is never covered with a beard—a capillary insufficiency that is atoned for by a fine head of brown hair. He is a scholar, but never stoops to pedantry. His sermons are read in an unassuming way but with easy, correct utterance. He is a conservative in thought and action, and though no great religious revolution would find in him a spirited champion, yet he would fight valiantly against anything like retrogression. He administers his diocesan duties with a sympathy that has made him universally liked. His presence at any social gathering is always the occasion for increased joviality. Bishop Robertson is a native of New York, and is 49 years old. He graduated from Yale College with honors. He was elected to the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri in 1868, and has labored actively in St. Louis ever since. He received the Doctor's degree from Columbia College, New York. He is connected officially with many of the general institutions of the Church, and is deeply interested in all the numerous educational and charitable objects of his Diocese. During the Bishop's administration the growth of the Church throughout the State has been very great. He has an interesting family and pleasant residence near Christ Church.

DR. SCHUYLER.

Very few of the old citizens are not acquainted with Dr. Montgomery Schuyler, whose pastorate at Christ Church began thirty years ago. Nearly all his Church work has been confined to St. Louis, and it is a matter of surprise that he still, at the age of 70, performs his duties as cheerfully and competently as when in his prime. He has a large frame and a robust constitution. His twinkling eyes and long beard match in gray color. His disposition is yielding, his habits correct, his manner complaisant and courteous. During the war he did good service as chaplain in the Union Hospital. He is married to his third wife. The church building is considered one of the grandest in the country. His salary is $4,000.

REV. GEO. C. BETTS.

Trinity Episcopal Church after a number of changes in the rectors, accepted Mr. Betts in 1876, and under him the church has made good progress. He is smooth-faced and would look boyish but for the lines that mark his thin face. His spare, wiry frame, of medium height, contains considerable energy, and when he takes a stand, right or wrong, he expects the other man to do the yielding. He has inaugurated High Church methods in his worship, and has gained some notoriety from criticisms of such a course. As a speaker he is intensely dogmatic, and throws out his conclusions as one would drop a weight to crush anything beneath it. His church membership is 450. He is noted as a champion of the cause of Ireland.

—The Rev. Peter C. Wolcott is to become the Assistant Minister of the St. Mary's church, in Kansas City.

TRINITY CHURCH, ST. LOUIS.

The corner stone of the new church, on the northwest corner of Channing and Franklin Avenues in this city was laid on Trinity Sunday afternoon, 8th inst., at 5 o'clock. It was a very warm day, and the streets were much occupied by a public pageant. The procession assembled at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Betts, the Rector, a square and a half away. The choir of St. John's, united with that of Trinity, made a body of nearly thirty men and boys in surplices. Besides the Bishop and the Rev. Mr. Betts, there were present in the procession the Rev. W. W. Silvester of Christ Church, the Rev. S. H. Greene of St. John's, the Rev. J. N. Chesnutt of Advent, the Rev. C. M. C. Mason of All Saints, and Rev. Messrs. Alcorn and Dyer of Trinity. Besides these there marched in procession from the residence to the site the ladies of St. Faith Society.

The service was that set forth by the Bishop, and used at the corner stone laying of St. Luke's Hospital Chapel. The stone is on the southeast corner of the church. There was a large concourse of persons present. The Vestry of the parish was also in the procession—Messrs. W. H. Thomson, H. Livermore, W. B. Potter, T. Ewing White, D. Robt. Barclay, John A. Harrison, B. M. Crow, R. P. Johnston, Mr. Auchmuty, and Mr. Thomson, the Senior Warden, read a list of the contents placed in the corner stone. The Bishop then made an address in which he recounted the story of the first building of Trinity, twenty-eight years ago, and of the need of its removal to its present site.

The procession then reformed, and again marched around the building, and back to the place of starting. The service passed off with great dignity and propriety, and was greatly enjoyed by those who had watched the work and results of the parish for many years. Mr. Betts held a reception at his residence on the evening following the corner stone laying, and his parishioners, and very many of his other friends gathered about him, to bid him God speed in the building of his new church.

SCATTERING SEEDS.

One of our younger clergymen showed an interest in the firemen in the town where he lives. It is a volunteer company, and sometimes has not a force sufficient to pull it up hill. In consequence he has lent a hand in the work, and at some fires. They have made him an honorary member of the company, and recently, after some bad boy had with a stone broken the chancel window, and it was desired to repair it; the firemen took he matter up when they heard that it was the Church to which their minister belonged, and raised the full amount, and would have given three times as much. He got acquainted with the Chinaman who did his washing for him, and the Chinamen came to Church. He did not know any better, and as he had confidence in the minister, he followed him in his postures all through the service. He could not read, but when the clergyman stood up, he stood up; when he kneeled, he knelt. Some of the people who saw this, declared that they were going to be more careful about their postures, and taking part in the service, and that they could not let a heathen Chinese do better than they. The Chinaman leaning on his flatiron the other day, said, "Me like your Churchee." There is a sermon in all this, if anyone will pick it out.

PERMANENT FUND.

It appeared after the Convention was over that a number of delegates from the country were desirous of going about the matter of increasing the Episcopal Endowment at once, and that they thought this was a favorable time to set about it, and they would themselves give and knew of others who would. Undoubtedly the real relief from the worry and burden of assessment is in the increase as rapidly as possibly of the Permanent Fund. There are also through the Diocese many persons to whom if the committee on the subject would present the matter to them, would give liberally.

One gentleman in Saline in consequence of but a single note from Judge Ferguson on the subject gave $250, having previously given $100. The committee should go about the matter at the first favorable opening. If the crop this year is good, a strong start could be made in the matter this year, and then a reduction soon be wrought on the assessments from the income which could safely be looked for from the Permanent Fund. The Fund is now being gotten into a shape where the securities pay a reliable income.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a Cot and a room for a child at our Hospital where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—The general term of the Supreme Court of New York has affirmed the judgment for $10,000 damages against Bishop Hare in the suit for libel brought by Mr. Hinman. The Bishop has, however, appealed to a higher court.

—Professor R. A. Proctor, the English astronomer, is building a house, and will take up his residence in St. Joseph.

—The clerical obituary for the month includes the names of the Revs. Thomas Cook, of Long Island; Parmenio Anaya, of Philadelphia; John W. Lee, of West Virginia; Rev. J. S. Brayton, of Ohio.

—It is announced that the following American Bishops have signified their purpose to be present at the centennial observance of Bishop Seabury's consecration in Scotland, in October next, for which large preparations are making: the Bishops of Connecticut, Ohio, Minnesota, Long Island, Albany, Northern New Jersey, and Iowa.

—The Bishop of Alabama was unable to be present at any of the sessions of his Convention on account of illness. He has been urged to give up all duty until October.

—Dr. Holland presented 37 persons in his first confirmation class in Trinity Church, New Orleans. Among them were Unitarians, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Roman Catholics.

—Bishop Clarkson gave directions that all his sermons should be destroyed. "You know," said he, on his deathbed, "that my sermons took their force chiefly from what people called my sympathetic voice, and the manner of their delivery. There are a thousand men in the Church who can write better sermons." They were all burned but two.

—Henry Ward Beecher was among the worshippers in Trinity Church, New York, on Ascension Day. He heard a sermon that gave no uncertain sound.

—Capt. Eads of this city received $10,000 for an hour's speech in England lately, before a committee of the House of Lords, against a proposed canal from Liverpool to Manchester.

—The Rev. F. R. Holeman is in this city from Florida, and will remain all through the summer. The Rev. E. C. Alcorn, of Arkansas, has also been in the city, and at Trinity Church for several months.

—The Rev. Theodore Hopkins visited St. Louis last week after an absence of 26 years. He was rector of St. George's from 1855 to 1858. He found not a dozen of his old friends in St. George's. He went down to old St. George's, on Locust near Seventh street, and which from being a lumber room, and a roller skating rink, has had another floor put into it, and a new front on it, wholly changing its appearance. He asked to go through it, and went up stairs and saw the panelled ceiling, which cost $1,500.

—Our old friend, Rev. Dr. Jennings, formerly of this Diocese, has on account of bodily infirmities, retired from parochial duty.

WOMAN'S AUXILLIARY.

On the 2nd ult., on a call from the Bishop, many ladies, from all the city parishes assembled in Christ Church for a service in the interest of the Woman's Auxilliary of the Board of Missions. The service was said by the Rev. W. W. Silvester, a stirring address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, in which he traced the growth of the organization of woman's work in the various activities of the Church, and the Holy Communion was administered. After a pleasant lunch was spread in the guild rooms of the church, at which besides the ladies, the Revs. B. E. Reed, and G. C. Betts were present.

Following this, in the Chapel, was a conference held by Mrs. A. T. Twing, of New York, Honorary Secretary, in which she showed why and how women could do much more by proper organization for Christian work. She recognized what the ladies in this city in the different parishes had done, and only incited them to greater effort and system. She both convinced and captivated her hearers. The result was that a committee of ladies was appointed from each parish to meet on the following Wednesday at St. John's Church, to organize a permanent diocesan society, and elect officers.

On that occasion the committee elected Mrs. Robertson, President; Mrs. E. A. Manny, of St. George's, Vice President; Miss Triplett, of Christ Church, Secretary; and Mrs. C. L. Seaman of the Holy Communion, Treasurer. They are proposing to take vigorous measures for the prosecution of their work.

At the service held in the church afterward the Bishop delivered an address, and assisted by the Rev. S. H. Greene, celebrated the Holy Communion. The ladies then retired to the chapel in the basement, when Mrs. Twing held another conference. The results of the visit, and of the enthusiastic and wise words spoken, and the organization effected, are likely to tell very much for a better understanding among the ladies of our various parishes, and for more effective work.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

The annual meeting of St. Luke's Hospital was held in the chapel of Christ Church on Thursday night, 29th ult. There was a much larger attendance than had been present for many years at the annual meeting.

The Bishop said the opening service, and then took the chair. Mr. S. S. Hutchins was elected Secretary of the meeting. The Vice President, Mr. Wm. H. Thompson, on behalf of Mr. Shaw, who was absent, read the President's report. We are unable to give this, and the report of the Treasurer, because the Secretary has not been able to furnish us with a copy of them. The Treasurer reported that he needed $1,500 immediately to pay off debts now due and urgent.

The former Board of Directors was re-elected.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. SCHUYLER.

One of the pleasantest features in the service for the opening of the Convention was the presentation at the close of it by the Bishop, of a testimonial which he had drawn up and engrossed on a large sheet, and which had been signed by all the clergy of the Diocese assembled for the Convention.

After the blessing, Mr. John R. Triplett, the Secretary, brought the testimonial from the Vestry Room to the Bishop, who after saying a few words to the congregation in explanation of what had been proposed, turned to Doctor Schuyler, who had been at the Bishop's right during the service, and presented him with a brief address, on his own behalf, and that of his brethren, with the engrossed paper.

It bore the following words:

The Rev. Montgomery Schuyler, D. D., Reverend and Dear Brother:

Your brethren in the Sacred Ministry, assembled this day in Annual Convention, take occasion from the fact that this is the thirtieth Annual Convention which you have attended, over more than one of which you have been called to preside, and of your rectorship in the mother Church of the Diocese for a period of nearly one-third of a century, and from the further circumstance that you are this evening to leave this city for much needed travel and rest in Europe, to offer you their respectful and affectionate salutations and good wishes.

They recall your unflinching devotion to duty in times of pestilence and distress, the lofty standard which you have always maintained of pastoral fidelity and industry, the dignity with which you have adorned every office of trust which has been committed to you, and the suavity which has uniformly characterized all your intercourse with your brethren.

They pray that you may gain from your temporary release from long continued duty the rest and the strength which you need; that you may be brought on your way in peace, and that having returned in safety to the haven where you would be, your days may be prolonged still further to illustrate the grace and the virtues of which by life and voice you have long been so faithful an advocate.

Your brethren will follow you with their prayers that God may ever have you in His holy keep ing.

Your faithful brethren in Christ.

St. Louis, May 27th, 1884.

The above was signed by the Bishop and nearly forty clergymen.

Dr. Schuyler made a touching reply, in which he referred to the circumstance of his first Convention in the Diocese, at which only one clergyman now in the Diocese, the Rev. J. W. Dunn, who stood near, was then a member, and when the whole clerical representation was no larger than those gathered within the chancel rails. He modestly disclaimed all deserving, and thanked his brethren for their kind estimate of him.

The whole scene was very beautiful. To almost all in the church it was an entire surprise, and there was much emotion shown.

After the collect for those going to sea the Bishop gave his blessing. Dr. Schuyler left the next morning, and will have as his companion in travel the Rev. J. I. Corby, an old friend, and formerly of this Diocese.

HELP FOR ST. LUKE'S.

EMMANUEL CHURCH, May 24, 1884.

Dear Bishop:

You asked me yesterday to send you an account of the way I work the jelly glass system for the hospital.

I was for many years in charge of what is called a working man's parish in Allentown, Pa. The church was built by myself, i.e., I established the first service, the first Sunday school in the manufacturing part of Allentown, a district containing a population of over 3,000 souls, and separated from the main city by an interval of at least a mile. While working in the church, I was compelled to devise many ways to get the people interested in the eleemosynary interests of the Church, and among the ways was that of inducing them to put up jellies for the hospital. Every one desires to do for the Lord, and it is only a question of giving them a practical opportunity. The first year I asked the people to give out of their own family stores, and the result was about 40 glasses of jelly. I then thought it was possible that I had not taken the right way, as the results were so meagre. So the next May I went to the china store and purchased a gross of glasses, and gave notice (somewhat after the form I enclose) that to any who were willing during the coming season to fill glasses for the hospital, I would furnish glass. The result was that the calls were so numerous that I had to buy another gross, and the next Thanksgiving there was a pyramid of glasses of jelly that looked absolutely imposing on the Communion table, and resulted in so stirring up the interest of the whole Diocese in the matter that from that day to this the hospital has never had to buy a glass of jelly or preserves. Then came the idea of the paper bags; the people were working people and poor, yet I knew they would be delighted to do anything they could, so I conceived the idea of giving out two-pound paper bags, to be filled with anything they could. The result of that was, that in that working man's parish a full barrel of sugar, more than a sack of coffee, over a chest of tea, more than two barrels of flour—indeed more than I can specify was sent from my parish to the hospital. It stirred up the whole Diocese, and to-day there is hardly a church that on Thanksgiving does not send paper bags to St. Luke's as well as glasses of jelly, independent of the money offering that is taken up in the whole Diocese. My working man's parish gave the first $6 to start an Orphans' Home; it stirred up the Diocese and an Orphans' Home at Jonestown, Pa., is a blessed fact.

If I could go to every parish in this Diocese, and spend a day in each, no longer would the Hospital report appear with a meagre and paltry number of two parishes making an annual offering to St. Luke's, but instead every parish would send in its offering.

—The Bishop of this Diocese makes long visitations in parishes even if he remains only twenty-four hours, if we may judge by the standard set by the Bishop of Albany, who is one of the five Bishops in New York State. He held a confirmation in the evening at a certain place, then the next morning went a dozen or twenty miles, held a service beginning at 10 a. m., which included Confirmation and the Holy Communion, went on twelve miles, and held another service at 3 p. m., and then went on about as far again and held service at night. He has, however, a cathedral which probably takes much of his attention.

WHITSUNDAY HYMN FOR MISSIONARY
HOST, June 1st, 1884.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GOOD SHEPHERD.—By B. F. N.

Coming from the heavens,
Piercing thro' the night
First of God's commandments,
"Let there be the light,"
And the darkness scatters
At the daylights birth,
Life and growth and gladness
Springing from the earth.

This was nature's morning,
Symbol of the ray
Which the tender Shepherd
Sends from heaven to-day,— Light of Spirit, holy Comfort and consols,
Pour the streams of mercy
On the troubled soul.

Send the Gospel spoken,
Send it far and near,
Bread of Life be broken,
Christ the Lord is here.
Come thou Holy Spirit,
Seal the work divine,—
Are we not thy temple,
Ruined and yet thine.

Come then Holy Spirit,
Set to us thy Hand.
Build us as the mansions
That in heaven stand
Forward with our mission,—
Years are but a breath,
Endless life awaits us,
Faithful unto death.

LEXINGTON.

MY DEAR BISHOP:

You kindly referred to our beautiful Chancel window in your recent Convention address. I beg for a little space in the CHURCH NEWS to speak further concerning it.

The window is the gift of the children of the parish, and is a memorial of Bishop Hawks. Mr. Charles Booth, of N. Y., was the designer, and it was executed at his works in England. The scene of the Nativity forms the central panel, with symbols of the Baptism and the Ascension as medallions in the two side panels. We next need to fill three rose windows above, to represent some suitable emblems of the Bishop's office, and complete the scene, to do which we are driven to outside aid, as our little ones have actually exhausted their means on the panels. Will not some of the Bishop's many friends assist us a little? The sum we need is $75, and I am happy to state that already $5 has been contributed by a generous St. Louis friend. If the contributions are sent to me they will be duly credited in the CHURCH NEWS.

Hoping that I do not ask in vain, I am, very faithfully,
JOHN DAVIS.
Christ Church, Lexington, Mo.

Editor CHURCH NEWS:

I learn from the Report of the Treasurer of the Missionary Host that Christ Church Sunday School, of Boonville, gave $107 as the result of last year's labor, which is a noble work considering the size of the Parish, and should put to shame the meagre contributions of some of the larger parishes in this city, only one exceeding it, the Church of the Holy Communion, which by the way has the same system of collection. Now what does this show? It shows a regular system of collecting, viz., a strict account being kept with each member of the Host by a system of debits and credits, and having a treasurer or collector for that especial purpose. It also shows that the Superintendent is heartily in the work, and that every scholar, teacher and officer is a member of the Host, and that their prayers and alms go up together as a memorial before God of the good work done. Will not our city schools follow this noble self-sacrificing work of Christ Church Sunday School, and then the thousand dollars promised for next year will be easily secured. Respectfully,

A MEMBER OF THE HOST.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Out of a population of 1,400,000 in New York city, there are only about 15,000 who are subject to jury duty there, the large proportion of those best qualified being exempt because of business, health, militia service, or some other reason; consequently the duty has fallen largely into the hands of professional jurors, hence the frequent miscarriage of justice.

—The Supreme Court of Iowa, in the case of a wife who had made application for a divorce on the ground that her husband was a confirmed drunkard, when the evidence showed that she had knowledge of his intemperate habits before she had married him, refused the petition. The Judge said: "You voluntarily chose a drunkard for a husband, and you should discharge the duties of a drunkard's wife. His failure to keep a pledge of reformation made before marriage does not justify you in deserting him. Having knowingly married a drunkard you must make yourself content with the sacred relationship."

—It was not unusual in earlier days to use the churches for purposes which now would be considered secular, and not fitted for the sacredness of the edifice. In 1775 Patrick Henry delivered his famous speech, "Give me liberty, or give me death," before the House of Burgesses which was assembled in St. John's Church, in Richmond, Virginia. In 1790 Gen. Washington mentions that he listened in St. Paul's Chapel, New York City, where he usually attended service, on the 5th of July to an oration delivered by Mr. Brockholst Livingston, before the members of Congress and others, on the subject of the day.

—The Bishop of Mississippi has transferred all his administrative functions to Bishop Thompson. He may occasionally administer confirmation.

—There were 1,650 persons who attended the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., on Good Friday last.

—The Church Congress of this year is to be held in Detroit, and is to begin on October 7th, and continues for several days. The list of speakers and readers includes many very able persons.

—In the Massachusetts Convention the secretary declined re-election, having served thirty-five years. Their Episcopal Fund has increased to $92,000.

In the New Jersey Convention the motion was passed that the General Convention be memorialized to change in the Communion Office, so that the lesser Exhortation, Confession, Absolution, and Words of Humble Access, be placed after the Consecration, immediately before the reception of the elements.

—In the Louisiana Convention order was taken that the Bishop be paid monthly, and eight per cent be allowed on deferred payments.

—The English government has offered the Duke of Malborough over two millions of dollars as commutation in full, for the annuity which was to be paid perpetually to the heirs of the victor of Blenheim.

—The Cincinnati Clericus entertained the clergy of Southern Ohio, to the number of forty-two, at dinner handsomely on the day before the Convention. The toasts were such as the following: Our Guests; Manners; Morals; Poem; The Muse and the Clergy; Science; Aesthetics; Our Club.

—The laying of the Corner Stone of the Jesuit Church in St. Louis on the 8th inst. was the occasion of the gathering of a great concourse of people. One of the Bishops who delivered sermons was Bishop Gross, of Savannah, who, among other things, said, "If you ask a small boy who founded this country, he will trace back to Washington, through Arthur and Garfield, or whoever our next President may be—(a voice 'Ben Butler,' on which ensued a laugh.) . . . It was our Presidents who carried on a war with England, and I guess that some of my audience would not be sorry to see another such. (Applause.) *

* * Do the people of the South thank God to-day that the Northern people went down to release their slaves, and take a few spoons besides? Do you want high tariff or low tariff? Do the ladies think alike on the subject of bonnets? You do not ask whether your Bishops are French, or German or Chinese." All of which was received with much applause.

—In the Maryland Convention, Dr. Leeds received a majority vote of the clergy for Bishop, but not the two-thirds vote required to elect.

—The Convention of Chicago resolved to raise $50,000 for the endowment of the Diocese during the coming year. The Bishop reported the gift of Dr. Wheeler of $200,000, for the Western Seminary, and of Mr. Geo. A. Armour, of $100,000 for a church in South Chicago.

—Next year is the centennial year of the Diocese of Virginia, and they resolved to raise $100,000 in memory of it for the Alexandria Seminary.

—The citizens of Faribault propose to mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of Bishop Whipple's accession to the Episcopate by observing with festivities the 17th, 18th, and 19th of this month. They state the obligations which their town owes to the Bishop and his friends, and placing so many and such beautiful institutions in it—the Cathedral, Shattuck Hall, St. Mary's School, and the Seabury Divinity School. Five hundred thousand dollars would not cover all that has thus been invested. The days concur with the close of the scholastic year of the Institutions. The city has asked many persons to be their guests during the time named.

—The Maryland Convention after many ballots and conferences failed to elect a Bishop. The clergy were nearly evenly divided between Drs. Eccleston and Hodges. Afterwards Dr. Leeds received such a vote as would have elected him if a majority could elect, but which failed because a two-thirds was required. It adjourned until October.

MISCELLANY.

—The following is a part of an editorial from the New-York Tribune on the spiritual value of Easter Day:

But if he be a wise preacher he will not attempt to measure the spiritual results and influences of Lenten discipline and retirement, nor to say that this is a better Easter than the last. The best work that is done, the best results that are accomplished, can never be recounted. The best thoughts and deepest joys of Eastertide cannot be expressed. The activities of spiritual life and progress operate secretly—without observation. The sacred silences of Lent are more impressive than the services and litanies. The secret stirrings of the human heart impart to Easter its highest significance, whether the altar be bare or crowned with lilies, whether the music be triumphant or cold and lifeless, whether the preacher be dull or eloquent.

The Andover Review (Congregational) says: "The chief suggestion of the Lenten season, to those who do not keep it, is to be found in the prominence which it gives to the disciplinary element in the religious life. This is its idea. It stands for repression and self-denial. We are, of course, aware of the evasions and misuse of the season. Lent is an institution of society, as well as of the Church. And society uses it for its own purposes, especially as the time in which it may recover its tired and worn devotees. Very well. We are not now concerned with the misappropriation of the idea nor with the misuse of the time.

The idea itself remains, and is worthy of consideration by those who rely for their spiritual development upon another training and culture. For it is not possible for the Church to overcome the world simply through its activity and benevolence. Luxury will gain upon charity. The sphere of self-indulgence will widen even beyond that of service. The idea of Lent, that we must discipline ourselves in denials if we are to repress luxury and not rely simply upon our benevolence to reduce by a little its volume—this deserves careful study and exemplification by the modern Church in all its branches.

"Lent has also a suggestion for the Christian believer who has been trained to faith in the doctrine of Christ without a corresponding fellowship with Him in person. To such a mind the Cross of Christ is hardly more than a figure, of which the reality is to be found in the doctrine of the Atonement. The Passion of the Redeemer is lost sight of in the endeavor to measure the uses of His sufferings and death, their relation to God, their effect upon man. A more sympathetic consideration of the personal element in the sufferings of our Lord, the meditation upon the sorrows of the Messiah would prove a source of spiritual quickening, not only to those who are accustomed to live in the region of philosophic thought, but also to those who are in the midst of evangelistic work. The following of Christ down into the valley of humiliation and death, the study, day by day, of the last days of His earthly life, the reverent watch by the Cross, the waiting for the Resurrection—these are spiritual exercises which cannot fail to give warmth and reality to the Christian faith."

—The average cost of running an ordinary passenger train of from six to ten coaches is from $1 to $1 25 a mile.

BOOK NOTICES.

The North American REVIEW for June opens with an article on "Harboring Conspiracy," by Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, who examines the question as to how far our government may and must go in suppressing plots against governments with which we are at peace. Henry D. Lloyd, in the same number of the REVIEW, shows how every branch of production is coming under the control of "Lords of Industry," corporations and monopolies. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has an article marked by rare philosophic force upon the "Struggle for Immortality." Other articles of not less importance are: "Sociological Fallacies," by Prof. W. G. Sumner; "The Rise and Fall of Authority," by President J. C. Welling; "Walt Whitman," by Walker Kennedy; and a symposium on "Expert Testimony," by Rossiter Johnson, Dr. W. W. Godding, T. O'Connor Sloane and Dr. Charles L. Dana.

ILLUSIONS: A psychological study, by James Sully. Complete in two parts. Part first. Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York. The aberrations of the mind always possess a very deep interest, whether they assume the form of insanity or only indicate a departure more or less wide from the assumed normal mental constitution. The present work is strictly popular in its character, and gives a very clear insight into the curious phenomena which occupy the disputed borderland between entire sanity of mind and insanity.

Though there are four profusely illustrated papers in the June CENTURY, and four full-page pictures, this number of the magazine is perhaps even more notable for its literary features than for its pictures. Of special interest is Miss Fanny Stone's "Diary of an American Girl in Cairo during the War of 1882." President Eliot, of Harvard, discusses the question, "What is a Liberal Education?" in which he claims that the sciences and English should be given leading places in the school and also in the college course. In a paper on "The Use and Abuse of Parties," Dr. Washington Gladden advises independents to try to act with their party in the choice of candidates, and to bolt bad nominations. In "Topics of the Time," an editorial called "Reaping the Whirlwind," is a sequel to the editorial of the April CENTURY entitled "Mob and Magistrate," which so surprisingly anticipated the Cincinnati riot. The illustrated papers of the June CENTURY are "A French-American Seaport" being an account of the Island of St. Pierre, near Newfoundland; a picturesque anecdotal description of the seamen's retreat on Staten Island, or "Sailor's Snug Harbor;" "American Wild Animals in Art," and a curious and scholarly paper, interestingly illustrated, by Dr. Edward Eggleston, on "Commerce in the Colonies."

In fiction, Henry James's new story, "Lady Barberina," in this number, concerns itself with the complications of marriage settlements; Mr. Cable's "Dr. Sevier" is continued; and Robert Grant's story of "An Average Man" is concluded.

ST. NICHOLAS for June is a bright out of door number, nearly every article taking the reader out into the woods and fields, yet without sacrifice of the variety of subject and interest which is so distinguishing a feature of the magazine.

J. T. Trowbridge's serial, "The Scarlet Tanager," shows how much easier the hero found it to get into a scrape than to get out of it; "Marvin and his Boy Hunters," tells of hunting small game on the Indiana prairies.

"The Banner of Beaumanoir," is a vivid boy and girl story of devotion and adventure in the middle ages; "Frederick of Hohenstaufen, the Boy Emperor," is another of E. S. Brooks's "Historic Boys."

A live story for boys is called "Two Boys of Migglesville;" it shows what energy, push, and perseverance will accomplish under the most unfavorable circumstances. A hintful paper for girls is "Margaret's Favor-Book," though its lessons are quite as much needed by the boys of our generation.

"ARCHIBALD MALMAISON," by Julian Hawthorne, 15 cents.

"THE FORTUNES OF RACHEL," by Edward Everett Hale, 25 cts. Two numbers of the Standard Library, in which with good paper, clear type, and s'out covers, at a very small price, the best works are issued. There is a fortnightly issue, for which the subscription price is $5 a year. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

"STEPPING STONES TO HIGHER THINGS," by Capt. Seton Churchill. These searching and deeply spiritual words, put out originally as extempore addresses, by a lay man can be read with great profit. Good in their clearly expressed thought, they abound in apt illustrations which enforce what is told. Dutton & Co., 39 West 23rd St., New York. 75 cents.

Young Folks Library. No. 2. June, "Magie's Mission," by Marie Oliver. Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co. have begun an excellent series of good stories, in stiff paper covers, and of convenient size at 25 cts. a number, or $3 a year, pp. 404. Reliance can be had on the tone and quality of the reading. D. Lothrop & Co., Franklin St., Boston.

THE NORTHWESTERN PULPIT. Sermons preached by Waldo Messaros, Vol. 1, No 8, semi-monthly. Subject: "The Eye Omniscent." $2, a year, 10 cts. each. F. A. Wunder, 1716 Jefferson St., Philadelphia.

Fernand Lungren furnishes an exquisite frontispiece for the opening story of the June WIDE AWAKE, "The Cow with Golden Horns." Somewhat akin to this quaint tale in original shaping and freshness, is Mrs. John Sherwood's boarding-school story of the "The Little Jade Lizard;" for this, H. Pruett Share has drawn a full-page picture illustrating the "trial by lizard." The boys will greatly enjoy Mr. Holder's paper "About White Elephants" in general, and Barnum's white elephant in particular, it is accompanied by a picture of Toung Taloung. Edward Everett Hale contributes an instructive article descriptive of his visit, as chaplain, to the Boston Court House. Generous installments of the serials are given: "A Brave Girl," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps; "Masks Off!" the historical romance by Rev. Charles R. Talbot; "In No-Man's Land," the wonder story by E. S. Brooks; "Through France in Sabots," the Picture Serial by W. P. Bodfish, and "His Three Trials," WIDE AWAKE is $8.00 a year. L. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

THE ILLUSTRATED ENGLISH MAGAZINE, June. This number has an attractive table of contents, and some fine illustrations; 15 cents, $1.50 a year. Macmillan & Co., 112 Fourth Ave, New York.

THE PANSY, June. Weekly, 75 cents a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

THE AMERICAN EPISCOPATE. By the Rev. H. G. Batterson, D.D. Second edition, revised and enlarged. At the first issue of this valuable work we noticed it, and commended it to all who desired full and accurate knowledge of all of our American Bishops. Dr. Batterson, the painstaking author, has, however, taken advantage of a call for another edition of the work, to enrich it with biographical notices down to Bishop Watson, and valuable chapters of documentary history of the English and Scots Succession, and other interesting matter. The work is beautifully published in blue cloth. Pp., 368. $1. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia. For sale by the St. Louis Book and Stationery Co., Fourth street.

CHINESE GORDON. By Archibald Forbes. This last volume of the Standard Library is the abridged story by the renowned journalist of the English soldier now in the Sudan, who combines so many of the qualities of Cromwell and Havelock, and Bayard. It is clearly told. Funk & Wagnalls; 10 Dey street, New York. 15cts.

THE CONTINUITY AND PERFORMANCE OF THE EPISCOPAL OFFICE.—Sermon by Bishop Lyman, preached at the consecration of Bishop Watson, Wilmington, N. C., April 17th. A strong and clear discourse on an important occasion.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.—This medicinal preparation is one out of a thousand of the patent kind placed before the public which has what it claims, "intrinsic merits," and does afford relief in diseases like dyspepsia, general debility, and many kinds of disorders peculiar to females. It has received the endorsement of hundreds of people of good standing throughout the country, and should it sometimes fail to effect a cure, it may be taken with deleterious results. It has become a staple medicine with druggists. One or two bottles, used in a season, may save a heavy bill from the family physician.

"Messrs. Wood, Taber & Morse, of Eaton, Madison County, N. Y., were pioneers in the manufacture of Agricultural Engines in this country, having been one of the first firms to engage in it. Their Portable Engines have won a national reputation for perfection of principle, finish and durability, and hundreds of them are annually shipped to foreign countries."

GO WHERE BEAUTY WAITS THEE

A Second Week of Shopping Excitement

For the Ladies of St. Louis and all Their Country Cousins.

BARGAINS AT BARR'S

"There never were such bargains!" This is the universal exclamation of all the women who go to BARR'S and those who meet upon the street. Indeed this fact was the leading topic of women's talk last week, for despite the diurnal rains the bargains at Barr's drew out the earnest shoppers of St. Louis, and their general verdict was: "There never were such bargains." And the bargains are not all gone; indeed thousands of dollars in fresh goods will be thrown on the counters this coming week. May I point out a few? Let us begin in the flannel department. There are found white lawn tennis suitings, the prettiest thing for sea side dresses, reduced from 65 to 40 cents. Ladies are having this beautiful woollen fabric made as tailor suits, trimmed with white braid and small pearl bullet buttons. Nothing could be more elegant.

English cashmerette is a wool and cotton fabric thirty-two inches wide, and warranted not to shrink, which is particularly suitable for and as underwear for mountain tourists. Its combinations all include white, blended with stripes of different colors, only one showing in each combination. Lawn tennis suitings of white and colored stripes have been reduced from 95 to 25 cents. Arabian suiting is the name of a light weight all-wool fabric that comes in charming shades of medium and dark mixtures reduced to 18 1/2 cents—wonderful bargains, for these are "splendid value," as the shop people say. And those beautiful New-market cloths in pin checks, 54 and 58 inches wide, are reduced to 85 cents.

From the flannels let us go to the white goods, for India linens, India lawns and Victoria lawns are marked down to 10 and 12 1/2 cents, and beautiful flowered Swiss muslins that were cheap at 50 cents are reduced to 35 cents. Indeed, in summer fabrics there are so many bargains that ladies will do well to examine organdies, muslins, linen lawns, gingham, zephyr cloths, satens and calicoes. The latter include some of the prettiest designs, on the new grounds and of the most beautiful colorings, that these popular American goods ever produced, and marked down to 7, 8 1/2 and 10 cents. Among these are the finest Cocheco prints and percales. Lawns for 5 cents mean pretty dress goods—not trash.

LACES GIVEN AWAY.

Laces, the ladies declare, were almost given away last week, and the bargains in embroideries nearly drove the women wild because they could not buy them all. BARR'S is a house of great resources, and from their immense reserved stock, filling one entire story of the great building, they could furnish several ordinary stores; so shoppers need not fear the bargains in laces and embroideries, in handkerchiefs and hosiery, gloves and ribbons, will come to an abrupt end. It would really seem that the run on kid gloves at 58 cents would soon exhaust the supply; but there are still some left, and an inexhaustible supply of ribbons, especially those elegant wide fringed sashes reduced from $4.50 to $2.50.

CINDERELLA'S SISTERS

never made more desperate efforts to get on the famous glass slipper than the troops of womenkind—maids, matrons and little maidens—to fit their feet with the beautiful slippers, ties and boots at 75 cents and $1, which tempted the crowds to the shoe department all week. Nearly every patient soul and sole could be fitted in one kind, but some women acted as if they were centipedes, and wanted about ten pairs of every kind, because they never got hold of such bargains before. Being in such proximity, those who go to get shoes are sure to look at the millinery, and she will be a strong-minded creature indeed who can resist the bargains offered in plumes, pompons and tips, and in French pattern bonnets and untrimmed straws. But as women naturally gravitate toward millinery, space need not be consumed in recommending them to go—they could not keep away.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."

—[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]
 For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. Louis, Mo.

THE formal call to St. Andrew's church, Ann Arbor, Mich., the Seat of the State University, to the Rev. Ethelbert Talbot to the Rectorship, was accompanied by an intimation that the salary was $3,000, with rectory of stone. If he declines it, his act of renunciation of such a flattering summons because of his love for his native Diocese, and his chosen work at Macon, ought to be marked by corresponding gifts to the school that he is striving to found permanently, and by scholars sent and entrusted to his care. Do not let us by carelessness allow him to become sorry for staying with us.

DR. FULTON.

Reference was made in the NEWS last month to the attack of sickness under which Dr. Fulton was suffering. It was hoped then that he would soon recover and resume duty. He had been intending to leave for Sewanee so soon as he was well enough to spend the summer.

The malady, however, assumed a more severe form, involving acute cerebral disturbance, and on the 11th ult. he was removed to St. Vincent's Asylum, where he now is. He is much reduced in strength, and can only walk with assistance. He has only momentary lucid intervals, and these but feeble and partial, and some mania. The physician gives hope of a restoration to health, but says it will take months at the best. There is very great anxiety over the daily fluctuations of the disease, and as to the final result. The affliction is most distressing; the collapse of mental action is almost incredible.

The reports in some of the papers that Dr. Fulton had been south lately were erroneous. He has not been away from this city. If the reserve of exact statement of the condition as it is at this moment, and no more, were removed, much could be said of the painful, but touching interest, of the manner in which he often thinks that he is receiving or celebrating the Holy Communion, or praying, or conversing with Bishop Polk and others. All join in the prayer that such strong powers may be yet spared to the Church.

—The last news about Dr. Fulton, while reassuring as to his general health, does not indicate such a return of lucidity of mind as his friends have been hoping for. And still there is ground of encouragement.

CHURCH BUILDING SOCIETY.

The Bishop received a letter lately, and it is one of a kind which he often receives, which recounts the energy and self-denial of the people in a certain town, in getting together the money with which to build a church for themselves. Now it goes on to ask, "I wish to know if we are entitled to any assistance from the building fund of the Church, and the terms on which it is allowed."

Now it ought to be known, and we have tried to say it distinctly many times before, that there is no building fund available in this Diocese. It may be a shame for us that there is none; and yet this is the precise situation. Outside of what is given on the spot and what can be procured by personal requests, there is, so far as we know, no resources from what a building can be erected. From these elements it can be known what can safely be expended and planned for.

Southey's Doctor had in his chapter, "On the Snakes in Ireland," only the words, "There are no snakes in Ireland." This article on the Church Building Society, contains little more than the fact that, as available for this Diocese, there is no Church Building Society.

REMOVALS.

There are some evident, self proving considerations which are so often brought before the Bishop's attention that it might not be unwise for him to have some blanks printed containing the propositions. They are frequently called for, and it might save some trouble if they were printed out for use

One such comes out in the complaint frequently made that our Church people will move away from the place, that often so soon as they become such they go elsewhere, that if all had stayed the Church would hardly have been large enough for them.

There is no use of deploring the inevitable. They will not stay. One of the features of our Western life is that people will move. They come and go.

But they do come as well as go. The separate communities are nearly all gaining, by removals, either in Church people or else in those who can be made such. People will not stay in order to gratify us by keeping their names on our lists. The river sweeps on. Its level, however, keeps up. As much comes in to take the place of what flows out.

This complaint comes from inefficiency or lack of thought. Ingenuity, a tireless industry, a brave hopefulness will make into our people the others who come. Tears will not help. Our numbers can and should be more than kept good, in spite of removals in a swelling State like ours. Complaining compels an inference the reverse of complimentary.

THE CIGARS.

One of the clergymen present at our last Convention, who himself smokes occasionally, was reckoning up, during the lunch one day, and going about after the lunch, and he made it out that the annual cost of the smoking of the clergy, supposing it to be kept up at that rate throughout the year, would be $1,500. This he rightly thought was a very large sum to be spent by clergymen for a personal indulgence, which does little personal good, is a source of no beneficial influence, and has been constantly in every one's observation, the cause of reduced vitality, enforced vacations, sometimes personal unneatness and of injured or destroyed health.

The person in question computed how much good could be done with this money that was rolling away in smoke; how much comfort if the amount was given each year in a lump to a clergyman; how many churches it would build.

Cynic, did you call him? Surely, a kindly one, who would offer a pipe of tobacco in one hand, and in the other give choice of a new parsonage each year, or a chapel, a long trip to Europe, a college course for one's boy or girl, or a blessed big lump of comfort and luxury to the purse of the patient wife.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The fourteenth anniversary of the connexion of Mr. Liverpool, the faithful sexton of Trinity Church in this city, with the parish was recently noted.

—On Sunday, 15th ult. in Grace Church, Kansas City, the Bishop preached, and admitted Mr. Samuel N. Watson to Deacon's Orders. Mr. W. is a member of this year's class at Faribault, and Bishop Whipple in transferring him to this Diocese characterized him as one of his very best candidates. He has taken charge of St. Paul's Church, Mexico, and the Mission at Perry.

—A movement is on foot to secure a new Rectory for Christ Church, St. Joseph. The present one was built very many years ago, is of frame, thin and shabby. It ought to give place for a building better representing the ability of the parish, and their appreciation of their faithful Rector. It is hardly safe in a winter, like last winter, to go through it in a building so poor as this one is.

—The Rev. B. E. Reed of Mount Calvary Church in this city started for a summer vacation tour on the continent and in England on the 12th. He will be gone until September. The Bishop will take his duty for one Sunday in August, and when other clergymen are not present, the lay-reader, Mr. Roger Hayne, will say the service.

—The June steamboat excursion of St. George's Church netted nearly $1,000, which is to be added to the $700 or $800, which the ladies had before, for the enlargement of the chapel in front by the addition of some rooms above and below, and the facing of the building with stone, like the Church.

—The steamboat excursion of Mt. Calvary resulted in $500 clear. This puts into the building fund of the new church $2,800, and it is growing.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Marshall, 6; St. Paul Station, St. Louis Co., 7; Blackburn, 6; Miami, 2; St. Joseph, 2; Afton, 3.

—The net result of the journey of the Rev. Mr. Dunn to the East to seek for aid in paying for Trinity Church, Independence, was $1,040. Besides this he obtained gas fixtures, the worth of which was $100, and a carpet for the chancel worth $36. There was a debt on the church of $1,000. It was a laborious work in which he was engaged for nearly six months. He will hardly undertake such another mission. He deposited $800 of the amount which he collected in Donnell, Lawson & Co.'s bank which has recently suspended. Mr. Dunn has, however, good hopes of getting the amount without loss. It will involve, however, a vexatious delay, and may possibly take away the main results of his visit.

—The Standing Committee of the Diocese met for organization on the 19th ult., and elected the Rev. Dr. Schuyler President, and Mr. Chas. Hofman Secretary.

—John S. Lemon, Esq., has at his own expense put up a handsome iron fence about the front of Christ Church, St. Joseph, which greatly improves its appearance. It is proposed also to spend $500 in the improvement of the basement of the Church.

—The Bishop has visited the following places, and held services lately, in which no confirmations were held: Platte City, Amazonia and Oak Hill.

—The Bishop's family has gone for the summer to Madison, Wisconsin, where the Bishop will be for the next six weeks when his duties do not call him back to the Diocese.

—The Rev. Wm. A. Hatch has relinquished the charge of Maryville, and removed to St. Joseph, where he has taken charge of the Chapel of Holy Trinity, South St. Joseph. He still retains the care of the Mission in King City.

—They had recently in St. Charles a representation of Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works, and afterward the drill of the Broom Brigade, in which last the following young ladies appeared: Maggie Edwards, Clara Clauss, Emelia Clauss, Tinnie Friedrich, Annie Blackburn, Sue Temple, Bettie Aiken, Mary Powell, Virginia Kinney, Sallie Blackburn, Addie Owen, Liza Gill, Lulu Clauss, Georgia McKinney, Bevie Gill, Lucy McDearmon and Lottie Stonebraker. One young gentleman was announced as about to give an Essay on Man. The curtain was raised when the person appeared with his back to the people, having between his shoulders "S. A.," in large letters. The amount realized was $102, which is being used to improve the church building inside and out.

—The Rev. Chas. E. Cummings was absent in the East six weeks in his quest for the means with which to pay off a part of the indebtedness on his church in Kansas City. He got $180 in cash, and $400 in good pledges. All obligations have now been met except the note of $300 due in about one year, and the means will be in hand to complete some of the necessary improvements on the church.

—The Rev. Wm. P. Case has resigned the rectorship of Christ Church, Springfield, in order to take charge of Grace Church, Memphis, Tenn. The city is filling so fast—there are now nearly 20,000 people in Springfield and North Springfield—that when the parish chooses its rector, it should be in reference to the large prospective importance of the place.

—The Rev. C. M. C. Mason, of All Saints, is away for a rest which he greatly needed, as he was much run down.

—The Rev. E. Talbot spent Sunday, 22nd, and some days following in Ann Arbor, Michigan, the seat of the State University, to the parish in which place, he had been called. The Bishop wrote him that it was in his judgment one of the most important places in the country, and that he, in conjunction with the Bishops of Connecticut, New Hampshire, &c., had advised him that Mr. Talbot was of all others the person to be in a place where 1,500 young people were all the time gathered as students. Mr. Talbot was afterwards to visit Racine College, and study its buildings and methods.

—At the request of the General Missionary Society in New York, the Bishop has nominated the Rev. W. W. Silvester of this city as Local Secretary, to look more closely after its interests and make reports.

—Mr. Wm. W. Love, of Macon, Candidate for Orders, and a student of the State University, is canvassing for the Church Cyclopaedia, of the excellence of which work we have already in these columns borne witness.

—The Sunday School of the Good Shepherd took its annual picnic Thursday, the 26th ult., spending the day at that charming suburban paradise, Montesano Springs. Despite a little rain in the morning that kept the smaller children from going, the day was greatly enjoyed by all who went. In fact a place so full of health and beauty of nature as Montesano, with its grand old forests, healthful water, and magnificent hotel, can hardly be surpassed by any watering place in the country. Mr. H. P. Williams, the proprietor, takes great pains to make all visitors, whether for a day of picnicking, or for a complete summer vacation comfortable and happy. The children returned at eight in the evening, covered with ferns and wild roses, and the radiant glory of rural sports. Like wild deer, well fed, they ran over the flowery hills and through the grassy dales of this favored retreat.

—The Bishop visited Christ Church, Afton, on Sunday morning 29th ult., said the service, preached and confirmed three persons. The Rev. Mr. De Forest gives services on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, driving over from Carondelet.

—The Rev. Mr. Newton will take his summer rest as usual in Ipswich, Mass.

—The Rev. S. H. Greene of St. John's has removed to La Salle St.

—Sister Catherine and Sister Susan are away for the heated term, having gone East.

—The Rev. Dr. Lowell, of Schenectady, the Bishop's brother-in-law, spent a couple of weeks in St. Louis, and preached at St. George's and St. John's. The Rev. Dr. Gray, Dean of the Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., spent a couple of days in the city en route for Mexico.

—On the 26th June, Mount Calvary Church of this city held a picnic at Montesano Springs. In spite of the cloudy weather the day was delightful. Mr. R. Hayne, the Superintendent, assisted by Mr. G. Elliott and a number of young gentlemen, made extensive preparations in swings, croquet sets, base ball, football, &c., for the amusement of the children, and a large provision of lemonade and confections for the refreshment of the inner man. The picnic was a grand success, and the pleasures of the day were heightened by the presence of the Sunday School of the Good Shepherd.

The Rector of Mount Calvary sailed for Europe on 12th inst. He will travel through the British Isles and into France. A few of his friends originated the idea of sending him abroad, and the parish joined so heartily in the plan, that he lacks for nothing to make a delightful summer trip. The Vestry voted him two months vacation longer if he needed it. During his absence Rev. Mr. Holman, of Florida, will officiate, Mr. Roger Hayne lay reading. On the 10th of August Bishop Robertson will officiate. The church will thus be kept open till his return.

The steamboat excursion of the parish cleared $470, and the Mount Calvary Church Building League has now about $3,000 in the bank. The parish prospers and grows in a most gratifying way.

—The annual report of the Missouri Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary shows that 18 boxes and packages, including surplices, stole and altar linen have been sent out during the past year, valued at $960.50, and that $97.66 has been sent in for missionary purposes, part of which was devoted to the education of foreign missionaries' children. For the three years that the auxiliary has been represented in this diocese 45 boxes have been sent out valued at $2,923 60, and $109 66 in money, making a total of $3,033.26.

DR. SCHUYLER.

The many friends of the Rector of Christ Church, now in Europe, will be glad to read the following letter, written on shipboard, and mailed when the steamer touched in England. He carries his friends and his work in his thoughts:

SUNDAY, June 8, 1884.

My Dear Bishop:

I have thought that a few words of our movements and present position may be of interest to the readers of the CHURCH NEWS. We left New York at 3 p.m. on Thursday, June 5, and have now been at sea 72 hours, and have passed over between 800 and 900 miles. This is Sunday, and it has not been altogether unrecognized as the Lord's Day. Though we have on board but few American or English, yet a desire was expressed that we should have some religious service. It is not common on the German line of steamers, in fact I do not know but this is the first instance. The captain when appealed to shrugged his shoulders, and said, "we might do as we pleased," and was so kind as to grant permission to any of the steerage passengers to come aft who might wish to do so. The service began according to my watch, which is St. Louis time, at 8:30 a.m., but according to the time on the boat at 10 o'clock. Notice was given among the passengers of the service, and we had a congregation of 60 or 70 persons. We began by singing the doxology, then reading two of the opening sentences, then the Lord's Prayer, the Versicles and the Venite read responsively, then the lesson from the New Testament, then the Te Deum responsively, the Creed and the Prayers, a hymn before the sermon and after the benediction. We had a Jewish Rabbi present, who expressed himself as greatly pleased with the appropriateness of the service. We prayed for Emperor William, King of Prussia, as well as for the President of the United States, using the prayer for those at sea in behalf of all on board ship. So far, we have had a delightful passage, the ocean smooth, save a ground swell, which, however, has sufficed to make some sensitive stomachs rebel. Our first day out was unpleasantly cool, but since we came into the Gulf Stream the weather has been warm and balmy. We have a variety of characters on board, but no disagreeable element. There is an Englishman on board among the steerage passengers, who has been sojourning for a while in Kansas, who has come to the conclusion that wickedness abounds in America, and while there he was not inactive in trying to bring about a reformation. He is really an earnest, good-meaning man, though verging on the fanatical. All the officers on the boat are very courteous, and seem disposed to do everything to make their passengers comfortable and contented. The table fare is all we could ask, and there is nothing to make us discontented, save as our Jewish friend remarked, we are "bound" for 12 days to Hamburg.

TUESDAY MORNING, June 10.

Since writing the above, we have had quite an exciting event to interrupt the usual monotony. In the early part of the morning we heard the fog whistle sounding occasionally, giving us the premonition of the vicinity of icebergs. As I was sitting writing in the upper cabin, I noticed a commotion among the passengers, and soon ascertained that one of those dreaded visitors from the Northern sea was in sight. It appeared at first but as a speck in the horizon, and no one not familiar with such a sight could have guessed what it was. The captain very kindly invited us to go with him on what is called the "bridge," where the steersman stands on the forward part of the deck, and furnished us with a glass. For awhile it seemed a huge fort, rising out of the water, and one could easily fancy battlements and parapets. We watched it for miles as we drew near, and as it rose and expanded in all its grandeur. According to the estimate of the captain, it must have been 150 feet high, and at least 1,500 feet front. It was ribbed in different directions on its face, and these ribs through the glass appeared a deep blue color, and along the top of the huge mass there was a crown of all the colors of the rainbow. We ran within about three-quarters of a mile of the iceberg, and watched it for nearly an hour, as we approached and receded from it. It was a sight to be remembered as long as one lives, and was worth a journey across the Atlantic to see.

I was surprised to learn from an officer of the ship that on Sunday the water in the Gulf Stream indicated 80 degrees Fahrenheit, while on Monday, as we came in the vicinity of the iceberg it sank to 54 degrees. We keep a record of the log of the ship as it is placed on the bulletin board daily, so that we know just where we are and how far we have traveled from day to day.

But while we know this, how little do we know of what is going on in the outer world. It is a week since the nomination of a candidate by the Chicago Convention was made, and yet we are in blissful ignorance of the nominee. We have some Republicans on board who are very restless under this restraint. With them this ignorance is not bliss.

What we all feel most in being thus cut off from all communication beyond the narrow planks of our noble ship is that we can not hear from the dear ones at home. We know that the same kind Providence watches over them as over us, and that "He doeth all things well."

SATURDAY, June 14.

We are nearing our first landing place, as we are within about 300 miles of it, and hope to reach there to-morrow. Our mail will be sent from there. So far the voyage has been unusually pleasant, but for the last two days rather cool. I wonder whether you are sweltering in the heat. I thought all night of the commencement exercises of the Sisters' School, which according to our St. Louis time would have been 3 o'clock this morning. And I often wonder how the chapel is progressing, and think of the Sisters there in their ministries of love. They deserve more of our care and sympathy than they receive. With prayers for yourself, and the brethren, yours in loving respect.

M. S.

BERLIN, June 19, 1884.

My Dear Bishop:

When I last wrote we were nearing Plymouth, England. It was Sunday morning, and there was too much excitement among the passengers to attempt to have service, had there been a suitable place, as it was too cold on the hurricane deck where the service was held the Sunday before. We caught sight of the first lighthouse about 8 a. m., and soon after the Scilly Islands came into view, where, as I remember reading in our St. Louis papers, some eight years ago, the ill-fated Schiller was wrecked with over 300 passengers on board, of whom but very few escaped with their lives. There are, as I am told, some 70 islands in this group, some of them simply isolated rocks, and I could easily conceive that a vessel a little out of her reckoning, might be lured within their inhospitable shelter. We ran near enough to see the danger we escaped. At 10 a. m. we were in sight of Wolf lighthouse and Lands End; at 1 p. m. the Eddy lighthouse, and the Lizard Point; and at 5 p. m. we reached Plymouth. One can scarcely imagine who has not been at sea for ten days, and with nothing but a dreary waste of waters about him, with what a sense of delight his eyes first rest upon the solid earth, the green fields, and the habitation of civilized man. While you may have a crowd upon the ship, you can not escape a sense of loneliness, and a certain insecurity which you never feel when you tread terra firma. The green fields of "Merrie Old England" which I first saw will be remembered as long as I live as the bearers of glad tidings. When we rounded into the bay of Plymouth, and drew near the shore, though only those who were to leave the ship were permitted to land, yet I was conscious of a sense of inexpressible satisfaction, that the charms were breaking which had held us bound for twelve days to Hamburg. And yet we have had a remarkably pleasant voyage, calm seas most of the time, congenial company, courteous officers, good fare, and the best of quarters on the ship. But to a landsman, the best place is on the land, and I have often wondered during the voyage, what earthly inducement could tempt me to follow the life of a sailor.

Our passage through the English channel was all we could have desired. There was a gentle breeze, mild and balmy atmosphere, and as we ran near the coast of England, we were continually greeted with the sight of her green fields and villages on the banks, with the graceful spires of their churches pointing heavenward. But we had a taste of a different scene when we entered the North Sea. Very soon old Boreas let loose his messenger, and the waves began to roll, and the ship to toss, and for the remainder of that day and during the succeeding night, it was difficult to maintain a foothold on the deck, or to rest quietly in the berth. There was a general rejoicing, as in the evening of the next day we entered the mouth of the Elbe, and steamed up her calm waters, which reminded me in their color of the Mississippi, for about 50 miles, and reached Hamburg at 11 p. m. We remained on board till the next morning and went to our hotel happy and contented.

Hamburg is a most beautiful city. I can hardly find words to express my admiration of it. As I have not traveled on the continent, I cannot compare it with other cities, but my traveling companion who has, and is now on his third tour, says, "others may sing of beautiful Venice, but we will sing of beautiful Hamburg."

We had made the acquaintance of a gentleman and his wife, educated and refined people, residents of Hamburg, and with their advice and guidance, we saw more of it in a day, than we could otherwise have done in a week.

We took a drive of over three hours in various directions about the city, and for the most of the time we were in streets lined with houses of various styles of architecture. Standing in the midst of extensive and tasteful grounds filled with flowers and shrubbery, fronting upon the lake, or streams of water which seemed to wind about without reference to the points of the compass. The lake is in the heart of the city, and is some two miles in length, and is filled with graceful little steamers, which leave their landings every five minutes, taking passengers to their several destinations.

At the head of the lake and fronting upon it, is one of the principal business streets, and our hotel, with many others look down upon it.

There are hundreds of swans floating about, which have houses built for them on the water, and nests where they hatch their young, and are fed at the expense of the city. They are public pets, and are regarded by both young and old with peculiar affection. They will come at the call of any one who may wish to feed them.

The streets in the resident portions of the city are shaded by double rows of trees with luxuriant foliage, principally of the linden and horse chestnut, with a carriage drive in the centre, and walks on either side.

As for the churches they are large and ungainly, with the exception of one, St. Nicholas, which is truly grand and impressive, and was built by Gilbert C. Scott of England, who was one of the greatest architects of the present day. It is Gothic in its style of architecture, with a massive tower and graceful spire, built of variegated brick, with facings of stone. It has a transept, with bold buttress, and in the niches are the statues of the Apostles. All the churches are of the Lutheran religion; and yet to enter them their interior ornamentation would satisfy the most advanced Churchmen. The altar was most richly decorated, furnished with a highly wrought altar cloth, with a crucifix over it of marble, and of life size. The pulpit was of marble, elaborately ornamented, and glittering with precious stones. But with this description I will relieve your readers of the tedium of this article.

ST. PAUL'S STATION.

On Wednesday, 18th ult, the Bishop consecrated the Chapel of the Holy Cross, at St. Paul's Station, in St. Louis County, about twenty five miles west of this city. It is a very neat structure, which was put up six years ago by Mr. Wm. S. Cuddy of this city by his own means and by gifts made to him for this purpose, in the first instance for the purpose of gathering children within the Sunday school. It is near the residence of Mr. C., and the school for years had had his personal care and that of his family.

The day chosen was one that had a special and pleasant significance to Mr. C. The request for consecration was read by Mr. Cuddy. The property has been conveyed to the Parochial Trust Fund. The Rev. Mr. Scheetz, who has the parochial charge, read the sentence of Consecration. The Bishop preached, and afterward confirmed seven persons, the first who had there received the rite. A number had come from long distances to be present, and remained to the generous repast which was spread. In the afternoon the service of the Holy Communion was had.

The building is about forty by twenty-five, and ceiled within in narrow pine varnished, and the walls are tastefully decorated. It is in a grove of fine old trees. After a day delightfully spent, those who had come from Kirkwood, from off towards the Missouri river, and the others, with many good wishes to those for whom the auspicious day had been so pleasantly marked, bade their entertainers good bye, with grateful hearts that another beautiful spot of earth had been specially consecrated for God's abiding presence.

—If all the saloons in New York were placed in a straight line, each having 25 feet front, they would reach from the Battery to West Point, nearly 60 miles, while all the churches would scarcely reach to the end of the Island.

ST. JAMES MILITARY ACADEMY.

MACON, MO.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 9th, 10th and 11th, were the closing days of St. James' Military Academy, Macon City. The regular annual examinations were held during the daytime of each day. They were well attended by many friends and patrons of the school, and were very creditable.

On Monday night the exercises of the little folks were held at Bearne's Hall. Although it was a rainy evening, still the hall was filled. The entertainment consisted of recitations, music and a fairy play.

On Tuesday night the prize declamations were delivered. The crowd was immense, and there was not standing room. The participants were twelve in number — five girls and seven boys. The selections were admirably rendered, and won the applause of all.

Wednesday afternoon the cadet corps had a dress parade on the campus. They showed a wonderful improvement since their first dress parade in December last. Under the instruction of the Commandant, Major A. C. Longden, A.M., the cadets have made rapid progress in military tactics.

In the evening the commencement exercises took place. The class motto, "Tu ne cede malis," was placed over the stage. The graduating class were seven in number, and below are the names, the order of speaking and the subjects.

Salutatorian. — Franklin Smedley Moore, Kingston, N. M., oration, "Memories;" Mary Maude Dysart, Macon, Mo., essay, "While I was yet Musing the Fire Burned;" Katie Mabel Thomas, Palmyra, Mo., essay, "Yesterday, a Tomb or a Temple;" Edward Franklin Smith, Macon, Mo., oration, "Adversity, the Secret of Success;" Bertha Marie Hubbs, Macon, Mo., essay, "To the Palace of the King;" Laura Lincoln Nottingham, Macon, Mo., essay, "From Childhood to the Grave."

Valedictorian. — Laurence O'Neill Weakley, St. Joseph, Mo., oration, "America in the XIX Century."

After the valedictory an address to the class was delivered by the Bishop of the Diocese, who then presented the diplomas. He also made a delightful speech to those who had taken prize medals. They were awarded as follows:

General Scholarship. — William Rogers, Bevier, Mo.

Latin. — Laurence O'Neill Weakley, St. Joseph, Mo.

Arithmetic. — William Rogers, Bevier, Mo.

Declamation. — Katie Mabel Thomas, Palmyra, Mo., and George Bogert Black, Mexico Mo.

Essay. — Carl Willis Kimball, Cameron, Mo.

First Choir Medal. — Richard Grimes, Kansas City, Mo.

Second Choir Medal. — Edward Ronleff Martin, Kansas City, Mo.

A chorus by the boys was then sung, with which the entertainment closed. All the boys, each with his particular lady friend, then repaired to the school parlors where a delightful time was spent, and a bountiful and delicious collation was served. Thus closed the ninth year of St. James' Military Academy. The next term promises to open with a very full school. Already the enquirers and applications for catalogues have been very large.

The buildings will be finished, and accommodations for 100 boys will be furnished.

The greatest need is a Drill Hall, where the boys can drill in the excessively cold weather, and also on rainy days. A hall 40 x 80 would be just the thing, and for $1,200 could be erected in a most substantial manner. Won't some of our friends help us?

The school is also in sore need of $3,000 to complete its third building, and place the whole in good condition. F. S. M.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

The treasurer's annual report shows that in the year ending on May 1st, the receipts from patients amounted to $9,027.10; from subscriptions, $1,137.50, and from donations, $2,153.82. Nothing was received from entertainments. The interest on the endowment of the Little Harry Cot was $350. Two churches outside of the city contributed, St. Jude's, Monroe, $2.56, and Grace, Kirkwood, $20. The offertory at the United Service on Maundy Thursday night was $45. The current expenses of the Hospital came to $11,160.90, for coal $1,085.13, interest $900, insurance $76.65.

Of subscriptions and donations there were from Christ Church, $601; St. George's, $240; Holy Communion, $326; Trinity, $75; St. Peter's, $40; St. John's $15; Mt. Calvary, $2.50.

Besides the mortgage debt on the property of $15,000, there is an amount also of $2,068, due for the building account, and $1,500 of floating debt due and unpaid.

There was on May 1st, 1883, remaining in the Hospital 26 patients; during the year 399 were received. Of these 22 died, 363 were discharged, and 40 remained on May 1st. This was an increase of 60 patients over last year, as that year, the first in the new Hospital, showed an increase of 105 over the previous year.

Of the patients 57 were entire charity, and 50 were partial charity patients, — one fourth of the entire number. Religiously, 78 were Churchmen, 44 Romanists, 159 Protestants, 4 Jews, and 140 of no religious profession.

The Chaplain, Rev. Dr. Schuyler, reports one adult Baptism, one Confirmation, and 6 Burials.

ST. AGNES HALL.

St. Agnes Hall is nearly finished. The builder will turn it over completed to Mrs. Smith on the 15th of August. But already the furniture is being moved into the finished part.

Quite a number have applied for catalogues and the outlook is very favorable. There is no reason why the school should not be full when it opens. The Church people throughout the diocese should take the matter in hand and if they have girls to educate should send them to our own Church schools.

The beautiful location of St. Agnes Hall with its commodious grounds, its comfortable buildings with rooms elegantly furnished, and above all the well-known character of the Principal, Mrs. L. A. Smith, all commend the school as in every way worthy of the cordial support of those who have daughters to educate. F. S. M.

WOMAN'S WORK IN CONEXION WITH THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

The following address was delivered in Christ church in this city on Friday, May 2nd, by the Rev. Dr. Schuyler. It contains many wholesome words in regard to woman's work in the Church, and some facts which will be of interest to all who are interested in the cause of missions.

A second Conference was held at St. John's church on Wednesday, May 7th. In calling the attention of the churches to these conferences the Bishop used the following words in commendation of the work and of Mrs. Twing:

I have just heard that Mrs. Twing, the Honorary Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Board of Missions, to whom has been confided by the Board the duty of maturing such a system for the training and distribution of women's services, particularly in Missionary matters, as may be found most practicable and efficient, proposes in coming West in the latter part of this month, to make a visit in St. Louis. She is willing and desirous while here to hold a conference with the ladies of our congregations, and especially those who are interested in any form of Church work, as she has done in many cities, and as her large experience entitles her, to encourage and to give direction to the Christian activity of women.

C. F. ROBERTSON, Bishop of Missouri.
St. Louis, April 11, 1884.

Sixteen years ago in the month of April and near its close three Bishops, Whitehouse, Lee and Bail, were present in this church, taking part in the funeral obsequies of our lamented Diocesan, Bishops Hawks.

Two days after this solemn service, on the second Sunday after Easter, the Delegate Meeting of the Board of Missions convened in this church, the delegates, beside the Bishops already named, being the Rev. Drs. Twing, Haight and Geer. These meetings continued during the day in this church over Monday and Tuesday, closing with the celebration of the Holy Communion on Wednesday morning by Bishop Whitehouse. Missionary meetings were held on the evenings of these several days in the different churches throughout the city. A new and deeper interest was excited in the cause of missions by the influence of these meetings; and they were remembered long afterward with grateful appreciation by many who before had taken little interest in the general work of the Church.

Standing in the forefront of that delegation was the Rev. Dr. Twing, conspicuous by his noble, manly form, and with his great soul alive with enthusiasm for the cause he had espoused, he spoke with a fervor that could not fail to stir the sympathies and enlist the co-operation of his hearers. Of the delegates who were here then, the larger part are gone to their reward, only one bishop and one clergyman still left to fight the battle for Christ and in the Church Militant on earth.

We have with us to-day the widow of our long loved and dearly cherished Secretary of the Domestic Board. Mrs. Twing, stirred by the same holy enthusiasm which characterized her late husband, has come on a somewhat similar errand, and it is a singular coincidence that there has been no meeting of a like general character in this Church since that period, until she comes as the Honorary Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, to present another phase of the General Missionary Work to those of her own sex, and it may not be inappropriate here to state that the Bishops and clergy sitting as the Board of Missions, confirmed Mrs. Twing's appointment unanimously by a rising vote, giving us thereby their assurance of their unreserved confidence, in her fitness for the discharge of her duties gained by years of unselfish service rendered to the Church.

After this introduction, it will not I trust be out of place to say a few words on the general subject of the duty and privilege of woman's work in the Church.

It is a matter of history that on the landing of St. Paul, the first missionary on the shores of Europe at Philippi, a woman was the first convert, the reality of whose conversion was manifest by the prompt showing forth of her faith by her works. The service seems to have been an informal gathering, for the sacred historian simply states: "And we sat down and spake to the women which resorted thither." This you will doubtless think, was an experience not dissimilar to that of the Missionary of modern days, who in fulfilling his appointments so often speaks to the women. In this fact so far as the women are concerned, we surely have encouragement in our present enterprise. It is narrated in the history to which I have alluded—"And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple of the City of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us; whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul." She was evidently of the Jewish faith and a woman of more than ordinary prominence among the little congregation who had gathered for prayers. As the result of this visit, we are told, she and her household were baptized; and we have an illustration of her Christian graces, "distributing it to necessity of the saints given to hospitality," by receiving St. Paul as a guest in her house.

Some twelve years after this, St. Paul wrote an Epistle "To all the Saints at Philippi with the Bishops and Deacons," showing that in the meantime great changes had been wrought by the power of the Gospel; from a Missionary Station the Church had been fully organized, congregations had been gathered throughout the city and supplied with a regularly ordained Ministry.

He commended them for their fellowship in the Gospel and for their generous contributions; following him with their gifts, of which he says, "they are an odor of a sweet smell, acceptable, well-pleasing to God." And that the women had been chiefly instrumental in helping forward this good work he gratefully remembers; and in this Epistle singles out some by name, and adds, addressing evidently some prominent official, whom he styles "true yoke fellow," "helps those women which labored with me in the Gospel." Whether they had been organized into sisterhoods, or societies for the distribution of labor does not appear, but, clearly, they had made themselves a power in the Church, and had wrought effectively for the furtherance of the Gospel.

And does not this fact in the early ages of the Church furnish their sisters of the present day with an encouraging example, and an illustration of what may be accomplished through their instrumentality? The church at Philippi is presented as an illustrious pattern among all the Apostolic Churches, and in the history of none other is the agency of woman's work so prominently put forward. This is not the time nor the place to discuss the question as to the existence of deaconesses in the Apostolic Church, nor the expediency of the association of women specially fitted by education and providential surroundings into sisterhoods for works of charity and beneficence. The experience of the past five years has demonstrated not merely the feasibility of such organizations, but their eminent adaptability to do work which would otherwise be neglected, or be most irregularly and imperfectly performed. But "The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions" does not make its appeal to any special class; nor is it confined in its work to the parish or the Diocese. It calls upon every woman who has been baptized into Christ, and who is not ashamed to confess him before the world, to enlist for active service in the cause of our dear Lord. It has been organized now for only about 12 years, and yet it has, according to its triennial report, branches in 31 Dioceses. Upon the same authority we are told "our gifts in money and boxes have amounted in value, in 1880-81 to $143,695.80, in 1881-82 to $164,250.30, in 1882-83 to $157,246.88, or in the three years past $455,193.04." This is surely a most creditable showing for an organization of such comparatively recent date, amounting to nearly half a million of dollars in the space of three years.

We have had no regularly organized branch in this Diocese, and yet we have been helping in the good work, there having been a corresponding secretary in this parish for the last ten years. We have now a corresponding secretary for the Diocese, whose reports are made to the Convention; and a few of the churches working under her direction, in connection with the Bishop, have contributed during the past year, in money and boxes, $1,012.44.

I do not design in this address to give particulars as to the several objects or modes of work, or to specify to what ends, or by what measures it should be directed. All this doubtless will be fully stated to you by the honorary secretary in your Conferences.

But there are two or three branches of the work upon which I wish particularly to dwell.

And 1st, the question, as to the practice of sending boxes to the missionaries.

I know there has been a delicacy fallen on the part of some of our missionaries as to the propriety of receiving these boxes. And some of the clergy have not encouraged their parishes in undertaking this work, on the ground that it was treating the minister of Christ, who is entitled to his support from the Church, as a pauper—sending as a gratuity a small portion of what had been honestly earned by hard labor, and often, too, by cruel self-sacrifice.

But this is entirely a one-sided view of this question. The Missionary when he goes out to work for Christ and the salvation of his fellow men, does not make the amount of salary he is to receive the sine qua non of his mission. He must go oftentimes resting not alone upon the promises of man, but with faith in God for the full measure of his support. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and he is entitled to look to the Church for a decent maintenance, and there is no excuse for a failure to make such provision. Through the Missionary Board a portion of his support is promised. The appropriation made by the Board is limited entirely by their ability, and is never proportioned to their estimate of what is fairly due the Missionary. Had they the ability they would in the majority of cases double their appropriations. Now, the Woman's Auxiliary comes in and says, "We acknowledge the debt due these noble men who have entered the field to work for our Lord; we know the Board have done all they could, and we wish partially to supplement their appropriation. We wish, too, to do it in a way so that we can, in many instances, make one dollar count two, and at the same time relieve, in a practical manner, the anxieties of the hard-worked wife of the missionary, taking upon ourselves a portion of her household cares, by making the necessary garments for herself and children. It is, indeed, a beautiful exemplification of true sisterly affection, elicited by the love of a common Master, and is not in any way to belittle those to whom they feel it a privilege thus to minister.

And aside from the benefit to others, there is a great good accomplished by opening the hearts and enlarging the sympathies of the women who are engaged in this work, and helping them to feel that they are not living purely selfish lives, but that beyond their own family circle, and even beyond the parish, there are co-workers whom they are proud to recognize as associates. Nor should the aid thus rendered be permitted in any wise to detract from the sense of manliness and self-respect of the missionary. The lawyer or the physician feel no delicacy in fixing the amount of their fee and sending their bills as the evidence of their claim. They have done their work and are entitled to their pay; and though the minister of Christ does not look upon his work as measured by dollars and cents, and places no such estimate upon it; yet, as work, it has its own claim for remuneration, and the necessities of the laborer makes the demand imperative—"Even so hath the Lord also ordained, that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel." By the constitution of society the ministry must derive its support from those who are ministered unto; and there is no more charity in a living thus derived, than from the fee of the lawyer or physician, or from the income of the merchant or mechanic. And it is high time that the public sentiment of the Church should be corrected and enlightened upon this point, for it is a most disgraceful fact, that in the case of those who have devoted their lives to the sacred ministry not one tithe of the number are decently supported. Let me give you a brief quotation from an article by the Assistant Bishop of New York in the last Am. Church Review on the subject of ministerial support. He says, "At a recent meeting of a Woman's Auxiliary Association, its members were addressed by a western Bishop, the late Bishop Clarkson, who told them of the comfort which their work had carried to many homes in his missionary jurisdiction, and in illustration of the fact, mentioned that one clergyman to whom the association had sent, was obliged to support a wife and children on $300. He added with reference to another case, where the association had furnished clothing for a family, that so narrow were their means that without such aid from without, they would have been left absolutely naked, since their missionary stipend barely sufficed to furnish them with food and fuel." No farther comment on such startling and humiliating facts is necessary.

There is another feature of this work to which, in closing, I wish briefly to call your attention.

It seems to have entered into the minds of the first projectors of the Woman's Auxiliary Association. And just here let me say that though its first conception embraced only domestic missions, it very soon took a broader aspect, embracing in the range of its undertakings every portion of the globe, where the Church had assumed the responsibility of a mission, whether by helping to send her priests to preach the gospel and minister her sacraments, or to establish schools for Christian education, or hospitals for the sick in body and soul. They have thus recognized the truer principle of the religion of Christ, which sees a brother in every descendant of the race, making no distinction between "Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free," but laboring alike to carry the good news of the gospel wherever Providence has opened the way, and to minister to human want under its manifold forms.

But the special feature to which I have alluded is thus stated in the annual report: "A new call comes to the auxiliary with the opening of a new year, in the request to furnish $750 for the education of foreign missionaries' children, sent home from China to pursue their studies in this country. This may seem unusual and a new departure entirely in the auxiliary, and yet on looking back to the report on Woman's work, presented to the Board of Missions in 1871, it will be found that the education of missionaries' children, is given out as one of the aims of the auxiliary then about to be formed."

To my mind, this is a most interesting and important feature of the work. Undoubtedly this aid, as far as practicable, will be extended to the children of missionaries at home as well as abroad. And I speak what I know every mother's heart will respond to, that in thus helping to care for the children, the association is doing a most Christlike work. It is often one of the heaviest crosses for the missionary and his wife to know that their children, in many instances must be deprived of the facilities of education, and that when they arrive at an age when they could go from home, they will not have the means to send them. And this is the more grievous, because the parents know how to appreciate such advantages, and are willing to submit to any amount of self-denial to secure them.

And now that the auxiliary has formally recognized this claim, and assumed the responsibility as far as comports with other claims, may we not hope that some of our rich men may be stirred to see what a blessed opening there is here to do a good work for Christ, and under this stimulus be led to build and endow a school where the children of our missionaries shall enjoy all the facilities of being taught that money can purchase.

The fact, that such a thought has been conceived by the women of the Church, may well awaken the hope that some one or more of those whom God has blessed with riches, may be moved to give it shape and permanence in the way I have suggested.

But I have already trespassed too long upon your patience. Let me congratulate you that you have one with you whose long experience, eminent wisdom and earnest devotion fully qualifies her for the work she has undertaken. In your conferences she will give you such information, such instruction and advice upon the various forms of woman's work and their several claims as will, I trust, issue in greatly increased interest on the part of all the Church women of the city. You cannot too highly prize this privilege. Neglect not to improve it—to work for our dear Lord should be the highest ambition of every daughter of the Church. The ointment which Mary poured upon His blessed head can never lose its fragrance but is ever distilling sweet odours as the offering of a woman's love, so that wherever the gospel is preached the holy savour of her example is felt, and though no such blessed opportunity can ever again be presented, there is not one of her sisters who may not now so do her work as to ensure the highest encomium of the Master.

"SHE HATH DONE WHAT SHE COULD."

BOTH the Domestic and the Foreign Departments of our General Missionary work are in sore straits on account of the business depression in the parts of the country whence the Board receives the largest help. There is a large deficiency to make up, and the receipts of both departments this year are below what they were at a corresponding date last year. Help during these hot months, when so many people are pleasuring, and not thinking about duty, but when, all the same, missionary obligations are going on and mounting up, would be peculiarly acceptable. Send, designating the department, to Rev. Joshua Kimber, 22 Bible House, New York. The same holds true, in many respects, of our Diocesan work, the address of whose Treasurer is D. F. Leavitt, 200 North Second St., St. Louis.

REMINDER FOR THOSE CONCERNED.

It will be noticed that the Treasurer of the Diocese has taken from the delinquent list in his monthly statement the amounts due by the parishes at or before the time of the adoption of the present constitution of the Diocese in 1882. The condition made by the Convention for the remission of the amounts was, that the amount which was due before or up to 1882 would be taken off, provided that any amounts which were due since 1882, and up to the Convention of 1885 should be paid by that time. If they are not so paid in time for the Convention of 1885, the whole will be due as though nothing had been done.

The amounts thus due are not outlawed. They would remain as parochial debts due the Convention indefinitely, unless they were by its action remitted. Only the amounts due since 1882 are all that could act as depriving of representation in Convention. The earlier amounts, however, are morally and legally due.

All payments on amounts due before this year's Convention are to be handed over to the Treasurer of the Fund, the Permanent Episcopal Fund, from which, sixteen years ago, $2,600 were borrowed by the Diocese, and on which now over $1,700 are due. These will apply to the cancellation in part of the Fund, as will also five per cent of the assessment of this year.

The amount of parochial shortage on Convention assessments has very greatly diminished of late years. It is not more than half as much as it used to be each year.

ONE REASON.

A correspondent of the Standard of the Cross last month in essaying to account for the scarcity of students for the ministry, gave it as his opinion that it was occasioned, at least in part, by the very small families which it has become fashionable for so many of our people to have, and that for this reason there were actually not enough children in the parishes to recruit the clerical force. If we come to think of it there is a great deal of force in the suggestion. Instead of the old families of from six to ten children, one or more of whom were quite likely to seek the ministry, now there are in many cases only one or two children, and the chance of getting one of these is reduced to almost nothing.

It is a large question which we touch upon in speaking of this one result of this form of social tyranny. Often it only calls for pity and sympathy. It involves, however, in many cases, before we get to the end of it, sin and shame. The wish to live at ease, the cowardly fear of the care of children, the purpose to insist upon luxuries, which, if indulged in, would make the cost of a family impossible; all this, besides much else of harm physically and socially, is robbing our American life of some of the noblest traits of character which belonged to our simpler and earlier career as a people; the self sacrifices gladly made, in order to ensure the education of the young; the self-restraint and example maintained, remembering its influence upon the offspring; old age as sustained and cheered by the children who have gradually and gratefully grown up to be the stay and support of the home.

As contrasted with this, we see the children pampered and spoiled, exacting duty from the parents; or the hope of advancing years vested in the life of a single child or two, and when anything happens to this, the declining years rendered desolate and lonely; or a childless home, in which during stronger years the lack is concealed by pets or business, but which perhaps has to seek later for some young companionship in a child adopted of strange blood.

What we had, however, in mind, in the first instance, as resulting from this social system of an enervated life, was as to the manner and degree in which the Christian ministry was being robbed in these attenuated households. It is, we may be sure, the fact that one of the causes which explain why our ministry, as well as all the forms of our business and professional energy, must be recruited from those, either of native or foreign birth, who maintain a simpler life, with fewer social tyrannies, is that there, in the larger households, and with the gracious traits there called forth, is the fuller and freer field in which the callings of God's Holy Spirit may be listened to and obeyed.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a Cot and a room for a child at our Hospital where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—The Rev. Dr. Worthington has declined the Bishopric of Nebraska. He felt that as he was in an independent position and doing great good, and having large influence, it was hardly necessary for him to leave it for an anxious position for which he was chosen only by a bare majority on the twenty-second ballot. The preference did not seem to be so controlling as to compel his decision.

—The long struggle in the Diocese of Central Pennsylvania is over. A large party, under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. John Henry Hopkins, wanted to divide the Diocese. The Bishop was opposed to this, and wanted an assistant. He thought that the theological complexion of the Diocese would be changed, if the part went from under his hands. At the late Convention Rev. Dr. N. S. Rulison of Cleveland, was elected Assistant Bishop.

—A few years ago, during the first days of the Cummings' trouble, Rev. W. W. Sever, of New York, left our ministry and went to the Methodists, who made very much of him. He has just been restored to the ministry.

—Rev. Dr. E. N. Potter has resigned the presidency of Union, and accepted that of Hobart College.

—The Bishop of Quincy spent several days last month in St. Louis, as the guest of the Bishop, and was present and took part in the closing exercises of the School of the Good Shepherd.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of the Rev. J. J. Elsegood, of Long Island; the Rev. Thaddeus Saltus, of South Carolina; the Rev. Henry Burroughs, D.D., of Massachusetts.

—In the election of the Assistant Bishop of Central Pennsylvania, the Bishop who desired it, and is possessed of private means, relinquished $2,000 of his salary, Miss Packer pledged $1,500 a year, and the Convention made up $500 more.

—The Convention of Minnesota is to assemble in the fall to elect an Assistant Bishop, which Bishop Whipple has called for.

—The Convention of Nebraska has elected the Rev. E. N. Potter, D.D., as Bishop, in place of Dr. Worthington, declined. Dr. Potter is the son of the late Bishop of Pennsylvania, nephew of the Bishop, and younger brother of the Assistant Bishop of New York, and had just accepted the Presidency of Hobart College, Geneva.

—The Bishop of Northern Texas proposes to build a Church College for girls at Dallas, to cost ultimately $50,000, and accommodate 150 pupils.

—The Bishop of Central New York suggested in his Convention address that any funds which had been intended to be at his disposal for a foreign trip might be applied for the payment of the debt on a church in Rome which had been gained from the Roman Catholics a few years ago.

—Bishop H.C. Potter recently at an ordination in New York introduced a new manner of conferring orders. He took his seat in his chair at the entrance to the chancel. The candidates were then brought up singly, and knelt before him, placing their head on his knees and were thus ordained.

—An interesting episode took place at the meeting of the Bishops recently in New York. Bishop Smith had been brought from his house to the residence of Bishop Horatio Potter, in order to complete the quorum. At the close, as all were leaving, he asked that the Bishops might gather about him, and remain for a moment, that he might give them his blessing. They all knelt, and he began on one form of blessing, then hesitated and stopped; then began on another and stopped; and then said words of still another, but could not recall it, and stopped. As he was bidding them good bye, he, in the extremity of his ninety years of age and weakness, cried, and said: "I have been going over that with my daughter for a week, and thought I knew it; but I did not." He was much troubled.

—The Bishops had waited in New York for two days without getting a quorum. By telegraph, however, enough had been summoned to make, with Bishops Smith and Horatio Potter, the needed number. So Bishop Smith was brought to Bishop Potter's who could not leave his house. But the Presiding Bishop could not go up stairs, and Bishop Potter who was on the third floor could not go down stairs. The Bishops had therefore to stretch along two flights of stairs. The Secretary took his place in the middle and when he failed of hearing an answer he would go up and down the stairs until reported to the Bishop presiding that a quorum had answered to their names, and the House was declared to be constituted.

On a recent Sunday the Episcopal Bishop of N. Dakota was walking on the streets of Wahpeton, Dak., with a clergyman. At one point of the street opposite a saloon, sixty or seventy men were huddled together. Many of them were rough-looking fellows, fierce and bloodthirsty. Drawing near to them and looking over the heads of the surging throng (Bishop Walker is a very tall man), he observed that there were two men in the midst who were struggling together in a desperate fight. Blood flowed profusely. Their clothes were torn, and they were pounding each other with a blind, fierce ferocity. It was a brutal sight. Not one man in the crowd uttered one word of objection to the fight. Instantly the Bishop rushed into the very heart of the throng, and going up to one of the struggling men who was kicking the other in the face attempted to drag him away. He then cried: "Is no man of you sufficiently a man to help in separating these men?" "Let them have it out" cried some brutal fellows. Then the Bishop, lifting himself to his full height said, his eyes blazing with indignation and contempt: "Is it possible that the manhood of all of you is gone? Are you only wolves? Shame on you all!" The whole throng for a moment stood dazed and amazed. Then four or five rushed forward and helped the Bishop to drag the men apart. His hands were soiled with blood in the struggle. Then, in a commanding voice, standing between the two men, who were glaring at each other and streaming with gore, he demanded of two or three of the crowd that they should take one of the men to his home, and of two or three others that they should lead the other away. This they did. Then the crowd slunk away. It was an unusual attitude for a Bishop on a Sunday, but I think he challenged more admiration as he stood alone in the midst of that wild crowd of men and subdued them to his will than when he stood in church and preached two superb sermons that day. I am convinced that he saved the life of one of the men. AN EYE-WITNESS.

—The Rev. Mr. Purucker, formerly of this Diocese, went from Indiana to Massachusetts, and now has gone to Central New York to take charge of a congregation largely composed of Germans.

—Robert H. Terrell, a Virginia born negro, who entered Harvard College as a waiter in the dining hall, graduated at the late commencement among the first seven of his class.

CLOSE OF THE SISTERS' SCHOOL.

The former habit of holding the closing exercises of the School at the School building had to be changed this year, because of the great number of those who desired to be present. It was with no little timidity that recourse was had to Memorial Hall, the best place of all in the city where such an exhibition could be had. It was seen in the evening, however, that the change was a wise one, as the hall was completely filled with four times as many persons as ever before attended the closing exercises of the School. The Bishop presided, and the Bishop of Springfield also had a chair on the platform. The Rev. S. H. Greene, the Chaplain of the School, opened the exercises with prayer, and he with the Rev. G. C. Betts, who was the orator of the evening, had chairs also on the stage.

The scholars occupied the centre of the Hall. The address was exquisitely adapted to the occasion. The night was hot; the fans were fluttering; it was no little task to know how to arrest and hold the attention. And yet it was done in the inimitable way in which Mr. B. can do it. It ought to be published. When reference was made to the great need of a School building for the Sisters, and the sentiment was loudly cheered, he turned to the Bishop and said, "Bishop, does not that applause mean $10,000 subscribed?" The Bishop added assent. Then the cheering was renewed, and Mr. Betts remarked to the Bishop, "I think that means $20,000."

Miss Estelle Johnson read the Salutatory, Miss Sharpe the Essay, and Miss Annie C. Wickham gave the Valedictory. The German scene, the French Dialogue, and the selection from the Merchant of Venice, were all admirably rendered. The music was all of the highest order, and showed great taste and skill.

The Bishop's Medal was awarded to Miss Mamie Sharpe.

The next term begins on the 10th of September. Notification of boarding pupils to be entered or returned should be made by August 15th. The terms for board and tuition, including Latin, French and Drawing, per session of twenty weeks are 175; for children under twelve years of age, $150. A deduction of one third is made to the daughters of clergymen. Catalogues may be had from Sister Catharine, 2029 Park avenue, St. Louis. The building has a beautiful frontage on Lafayette Park.

TWENTY-MINUTE-A-DAY SOCIETY.

One of the plans for work suggested by Mrs. Twing during her recent visit to St. Louis was the Twenty-Minute-a-Day Society. By this mode of work many women who are unable to give one day in the week to the parish sewing society can still carry on a definite work, hardly missing the few minutes out of the busy day, and yet have the inward satisfaction that amidst all the cares and duties of every-day life a little while can still be spared to do God's work for the furtherance of His gospel. It is proposed by members of the Auxiliary to work in this way during the summer, to make up a Christmas box for some Mission Sunday School that cannot afford to have a Christmas tree, and to make suitable altar linen where it is needed. The work can be done in various ways. Some people can find ready sale for pretty fancy work that they do, and can in this way raise funds to be used in supplying materials for other work, and some people can furnish the material and make useful articles for the Mission box.

Will not this work interest the young girls in the Diocese. Vacation is upon us, and to those who stay at home, 20 minutes is a very small part of the long summer day, and to the more fortunate ones who go away for rest and recreation, 20 minutes or its equivalent, can easily be given, and will be a check upon our selfishness and life of ease.

The Secretary of the Missouri Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, Miss Triplett, 2123 Pine St., St. Louis, will gladly give any information in regard to the work, in suggesting what to do, and how to do it, and what shall be done when the work is finished.

THE BISHOP IN SALINE.

The Bishop usually makes his annual visits in Saline County in the latter part of June. It is a large county, and the points in it to be reached are scattered. The clergyman in charge is the Rev. M. S. Woodruff, who has given twelve years of hard work to his duty, and in consequence very few in the county are better known, or more loved than he is.

The oldest parish is that which is now at Blackburn, and is twenty-eight years old. It was begun at St. Thomas, then moved to Waverly, and then, when the railroad came and the town was built, it first put up its church four years ago at Blackburn.

Before this had been built, however, a church and parsonage had been erected at Marshall, the county seat. All of these are of frame. The Bishop was at Marshall on Friday evening, 20th ult. The night was very hot, and yet the church was crowded to the utmost. The Bishop preached, and six were confirmed.

The next morning the Bishop baptized the infant child of the Rector, and in the afternoon went on by train to Blackburn, twelve miles, and held service and preached that night. The congregation is largely made up of farmers who own large tracts of land, and many of whom live twelve or fourteen miles from the church. They have services only one Sunday in each month, which does not seem to be all that they should seek to secure, or that they are able, if they were disposed, to have. Perhaps this coming to the church so seldom prevents them from seeing how shabby and dilapidated it is already becoming for so new a building. It should be painted again, have trees planted in front and behind, have a proper vestry room instead of a screen, should have a board walk from the horse block to the door, so that mud may not be tracked in, and a porch for shelter in winter and summer, should have floor and walls cleaned, and a new supply of prayer books. It ought no longer to have the goods box for the altar.

The congregation on Sunday 22nd came from far and near in the midsummer heat; a number were from fifteen miles away. They packed the church full. There are many from old Virginia, and retain their old habits of church going. They want to hear a sermon that has body to it. They live in a militant country, where modes of baptism are much discussed. Some of the staunchest and most intelligent Churchmen of the Diocese are in this county.

After the morning service the congregation scattered in the neighborhood for lunch, preparatory to the second service at half-past three. The Bishop catechized the children and addressed them. Gradually the church filled up until at 4:30 it was crowded again. After a short service and the sermon, the Rev. Mr. Woodruff presented six candidates under circumstances of peculiar interest. The congregation then dispersed to their widely separated homes, fortunately without any rain.

The Bishop stayed with his aged friend, the Rev. O. Buckley, who has long lived in Saline, and now in enforced retirement on account of physical infirmities. It is always a refreshment to be in his hospitable home. On the day following, under a harvest sun, the Bishop in the morning rode twelve miles to where he was expected to dine with an old Virginia Churchman, and then after a rest of two hours, went seventeen miles further with his host and the Rev. Mr. Woodruff to Miami, where the service was to be held at night.

The large Methodist church was used and was filled, and the Bishop preached, and confirmed two young persons. Here, too, the kindness was characteristic. On the day following the Bishop went on his journey to duties in the western part of the Diocese.

—In Paris lately during the session of a Congress of Free-thinkers, one of the members, striking an attitude, passionately exclaimed, "Gentlemen, I am an Atheist, thank God!"

CHAPEL OF THE HOLY CROSS.

ST. PAUL'S STATION, ST. LOUIS CO.

In the News of May, 1880, there was an account of the opening of this chapel by the Rev. Dr. Berkley, on the 4th of the preceding month. In that article it was said that the chapel had been built by Mr. W. S. Cuddy, a member of St. Peter's Church, St. Louis, on his own grounds, and is described as a model of perfection at the price which it had cost.

Since [that time except the winter months, a Sunday school has been regularly kept up, with an attendance of from 30 to 50 pupils, by Mr. Cuddy and his family. For the past two years, occasional services have been held by the Rector of Grace Church, Kirkwood, on week-day evenings, and on a few Sundays by the Rev. Dr. Berkley. The Bishop visited the Sunday school on Sunday, Aug. 1st, 1880, and addressed it.

On the 18th of last month he visited the chapel again, and in the morning consecrated it to the worship of Almighty God. The instrument of donation and request was presented and read by Mr. Cuddy, and the sentence of consecration by the Rev. Mr. Scheetz, of Kirkwood. After the Bishop's sermon seven persons were confirmed. In the afternoon the Holy Communion was celebrated by the Bishop, all the newly confirmed partaking, as well as friends who were present from Eureka, Baldwin and Kirkwood.

All those confirmed, with one exception were the results of the Sunday school. When it is remembered that the family of Mr. C. is the only Church family in the vicinity, and that there has been very little clerical assistance given, nothing can be more appropriate than to quote again from the article above referred to, "The whole work shows what can be done by a layman whose heart is in the right place."

DIOCESAN MISSIONS.

Canon XX, Section 2, reads thus:

"Offerings shall be made quarterly by all congregations of this Diocese which do not contribute through the Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society, in behalf of Diocesan Missions. They shall be made during the months of February, May, August and November."

Will not every congregation attend to this duty next month? Will not each one be disposed to give the above Canon a fair trial for one year, that its true worth may be determined?

The attention of all clergymen in the Diocese is called to Canon IX, Sec. 8. Are they not all law-abiding men? Will not each one be diligent to make himself a wholesale example and pattern to those committed to his charge, of obedience to law?

HEBREW SCHOOL.

ST. LOUIS, June 11, 1884.

My Dear Bishop:

I have just had the pleasure of attending the closing exercises of the Rev. Mr. Chesnut's Semitic and Christian School (1013 N. 16th St.), taught by Miss Mamreof Finkelstein.

Among other and more secular studies, I was much impressed with the amount of clear knowledge and understanding of the Pentateuch evinced by the children. Miss Finkelstein is certainly an admirable instructress. During the past year she has had 52 regular pupils enrolled, 24 of Christian parents, the balance Israelites. It is an interesting school. I could not but compare the fulness of religious instruction, received by a little daily drill, compared with the crumbs only of knowledge which our best Sunday schools can give. Very truly yours,

J. P. T. INGRAHAM.

NOTICE.—A worn leather satchel was left in the vestry room of the Church of the Holy Communion, presumably by some member of the last Diocesan Convention. It will be forwarded to the owner, by communicating with Rev. P. G. Robert.

ECCLESIASTICAL DEAD-BEATS.

Under this head may be classed a large number of the professed disciples of Jesus.

First. There is that dear old lady who is so fond of her minister and so devoted to her church, but, unfortunately for both, she is more fond of her own reputation for hospitality and more devoted to her guests, and so in her endeavors to maintain her reputation she invariably permits the cause of Christ to suffer want.

Then there is that devoted young wife who would do so much for her church if her husband were only a member, but as he is not, she could not think of asking him for money to spend on the church, (although, as he declares, she torments him to give her a season-ticket for the opera) and so that devoted young wife "endures hardness" for the cause of Christ, and in a spirit of martyrdom is compelled to see her poorer neighbors paying for her religion.

Then we come to old Mrs. Grumbler, who never did see such doings in the church in which she was raised: there is that organ and a fine choir, "highfalutin" music, and the minister bobbing his head in the Creed and saying amen with a long a. You could not expect her to support such a church, and while that thing goes on she won't give a cent, but for all that she is not going to be driven out of her church by any such popery, and so her part of the expenses has to be paid by some one else.

But Mr. Babblar cant be persuaded to support a church that is "so low." "If we only had a Churchman, you know I would not mind giving my share."

There is Miss Grubb, she has plenty of money, but she does not believe money was made to go around, and when Sunday comes she never has any change, and so her part of the expenses of divine worship come out of her poor neighbors.

"As for me," says Mrs. Gobetween, "I wouldn't mind doing as well as the best if I were a member of this church, but as I belong to St. M——'s, in B——, and I couldn't have my name taken off dear old Dr. B——'s book on any account. It would break his heart, dear soul." Of course she has no interest in the church she regularly attends and from which she gets all her spiritual food, because at any time she might go back to B., and so she simply partakes of the hospitality of her poorer neighbors who have to meet the expenses of divine service.

What with those who are too poor to give much and too proud to give little, and those who don't feel called upon to support a church because they are not communicants, although regular attendants, those who don't like the minister, &c., the few faithful members are left to bear all the expenses; while the "dead-beats," not content with "a complimentary ticket" by which to travel to the better land, are grumbling all the journey through because you don't give them better accommodations and did not send them by some shorter route.

Alas! alas! what a sad thing it is that professing Christians have not more pride than to allow others to pay for their religion!

What would such people think of their poorer neighbors going to the grocery store every Saturday and paying their grocery bill for them? and what do they think of their poorer neighbors coming to church Sunday after Sunday to pay for them what is morally and legally their just part of the necessary expenses of the worship of the sanctuary?

GENERAL NEWS.

—The San Leandro "Reporter" says: "The festivities of the Holy Ghost were celebrated with more pomp than ever before this season, at the house of M. P. Williams, on Dabner street. The Holy Ghost was taken from the house of Joseph Francis, where it had been for a week. A procession was formed, headed by a band, and the party marched to Williams' house, where a splendid display of fireworks was set off."

—The Church Review has changed from being a monthly to a quarterly.

—The necessary formalities have been effected, and the official announcement has been made that the name of the Diocese of Illinois has been changed to that of Chicago.

—Mrs. Clarkson, the widow of Bishop Clarkson, has had prepared a large and beautifully printed pamphlet, containing an account of the last days and the funeral services of her husband, the memorial sermon of Bishop Hare, and the action taken in Chicago and other places, and the minutes passed by the various bodies with which the Bishop was connected. It gives expression in various forms of the wide sympathy felt, and the very deep and sincere sorrow had in the departure of one who held for years such a commanding position in the Church.

—Col. J. A. Edge, of Bradford, Pa., who commanded a regiment at the battle of the Wilderness before he was twenty-one years of age, tells how he had to compromise with a rebel. He was shot in several places, and, going home to recruit, carried his arm in a sling. He was lionized, of course, and a ball given in his honor. He says: "Among the bright-eyed damsels who attended it was one who seemed to me the ideal of womanhood. It was a case of love at first sight, and was reciprocated. When I came to make her acquaintance, however, I found that she was a high-strung little rebel. One day I said to her: 'See here, I can't stand this; if we are going to be married you must make a contract with me; you must agree to be a Republican.' She was silent for a while, while her cheeks blazed. Then she seemed to soften down, and she said quite low, but clear: 'I'll do it if you join my church.' She was an Episcopalian, and I agreed. It was the best contract I ever made in my life. She has made the best Republican in all Pennsylvania, and I have made—well, the church costs me $200 a year."

—The Rock Island Railroad has made a rule forbidding its employes to swear while they are on duty for the company.

MISCELLANY.

—This is the way that Chaplain McCabe, head of the Methodist Church Building Society proceeds: "I went into a town on the frontiers one day, without knowing a soul; and I had a pile of my little books. I began to sing a piece, 'Behold, the Bridegroom Cometh.' I called the people together, and I had five hundred people around me in a little while. A boy came up and I said, 'Give the people the books and tell them page 58.' By and by, I said: 'There is no Methodist church in this town, and there ought to be', and I raised a collection and got $4,100 out of an audience I never saw before. I said to them, 'I am going to lecture for you to-night,' and I charged them nothing to go in, but charged them $950 to get out! And I said, 'Bishop Simpson will be here in seven weeks, and I want you to have that church ready for the occupancy of the Conference,' and we did, and we marched in with Bishop Simpson at the head and singing 'I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord.'"

—A Unitarian paper has the following, from which it says that it is learning some lessons:

"A gentleman went South, leaving behind a motherless family, and there married again a Catholic, who, dying a few years after, left a little boy to be brought up in the Catholic faith. He was sent to his Northern home. The day he arrived a priest called at the home to say that he had heard from the priest in the South that there was a little boy there who belonged to their fold, and knowing their Unitarian sympathies, he would see that some one came every Sunday to take him to the cathedral. You say, How bigoted! how sectarian! Well, it is for God to judge motives, but we say, we admire a church which has interest enough in its faith to lay a finger upon every child born in its fold—from Maine to Texas or from Italy to Alaska. The Church that will do that deserves to flourish."

BOOK NOTICES.

THE ENGLISH ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE. July. The full page illustration at the beginning is that of Mrs. Siddons. Then follows Two Centuries of Bath, with handsome Wood Cuts and Drawing Room Dances also illustrated. Both letter press and pictures excell. McMillan & Co., New York. $1.50 a year.

ILLUSIONS: A Psychological Study. By James Sully. In two parts. Part Second. Price, 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York. That department of Mental Science which treats of partial aberrations from the supposed normal standard of sanity possesses a profound interest for every one. It comes home to every one. The work named above contains the fullest and latest results of psychological study.

MARGIE'S MISSION. By Marie Oliver. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price 25 cts. This deeply interesting story, by the author of Seba's Discipline and Ruby Hamilton, forms the second issue in the Young Folks' Library Series, an honor it richly deserves. The plan of the publishers is to make this series a model in everything that goes to constitute good books—interest, purity of tone, and a direct purpose to teach lessons of truth, honor and usefulness. The present volume may well stand as a representative of the series in all these respects. Margie is the youngest daughter of a country clergyman, and at the age of fourteen is left without father or mother, but is cared for by kind friends. She is a thoughtful and sympathetic child, and anxious to be of some use in the world. She often wonders what her "mission" is to be, and at last it is opened up to her. It is by no means a pleasant or romantic one, but she bravely accepts it, and although her trials are neither few nor light, its fruits are abundant and permanent.

COOKERY FOR BEGINNERS, with Marion Harland's name as author, needs no other indication of its character and genuine value. It has been a fault of previous books on Cookery that they have taken for granted the possession of a certain degree of knowledge requisite to their successful use, not always possessed. This book, while affording a range of information unsurpassed by any other book, and thus suited to the use of all, has the advantage of being perfectly adapted to the needs of the veriest tyros in cookery.

Kitchen edition in water proof cloth binding, limp, 60 cts. With extra pages, blank, for new receipts, in extra cloth binding, stiff covers, $1.00. Boston, D. Lothrop & Co.

The immemorial institution of trial by jury, which for centuries has been regarded as one of the most essential rights of the citizen, and one of the most effective barriers against absolute power, is itself on trial to day, and is required to show cause why it should not be discarded and a more effectual method of administering justice substituted for it, or at least why it should not be reformed so as to yield more satisfactory results. Some suggestions for the improvement of the existing jury system, presented by Judge Robert C. Pitman in the North American Review for July, under the title of "Juries and Jurymen," should, in view of recent notorious miscarriages of justice, receive the serious consideration of every thoughtful citizen. "American economies," by Prof. Van Buren Denslow, is a lucid and forcible exposition of the grounds upon which the protection theory of national economy is based. Judge Noah Davis writes of "Marriages and Divorce." Dr. P. Bender, whose subject is "The Annexation of Canada," sets forth the advantages likely to accrue to the United States from the absorption of the Canadian provinces; Prof. D. McG. Means, in an argument against "Government Telegraphy," subjects the management of the Post Office to a most searching criticism; Charles T. Congdon writes of "Private Vengeance;" and, finally, there is a symposium on the "Future of the Negro," by Senator Z. B. Vance, Frederick Douglass, Joel Chandler Harris, Senator John T. Morgan, Prof. Richard T. Greener, Gen. S. C. Armstrong, Oliver Johnson and others.

The July number of The Pulpit Treasury will be welcomed by all preachers who love good expositions and sound doctrines. The Southern Pulpit, of Richmond, Va., a magazine in its fourth year, has combined its talent, interests and efforts with those of the Treasury, and the union, as shown in this number, insures a grand success.

Dr. Moses D. Hoge furnishes the first sermon, and with it is presented the portrait of this distinguished preacher, also a sketch of his life and a view of his church. Every department is overflowing with the best thoughts of eminent writers.

Yearly, $2.50. Clergymen, $2.00. Single copies, 25 cts. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

THE JULY CENTURY contains a remarkable contribution to the United States history in "The Ku Klux Klan." Its Origin, Growth, and Disbandment, who vouches for his facts, most of which are new to the public, and will prove a revelation to many who consider themselves well informed on all the outgrowths of the late conflict in the South. This paper also furnishes the text for the leading editorial in "Topics of the Time."

The Frontispiece is an engraving from a full length photograph of John Bright, accompanying a careful and discriminating estimate. Mr. Escott includes in his article several amusing and characteristic anecdotes of the great English radical. "The Scenes of Hawthorne's Romances" are described in a chatty way, with pertinent quotations, and they are charmingly illustrated among the pictures being several of "The Wayside," and "The Old Manse."

In fiction this number is particularly strong. Frank R. Stockton has one of his inimitable stories, "The Reversible Landscape," an art of a "kind that cannot be too high," and Miss Julia D. Whiting writes a pathetic New England love story; besides installments of G. W. Cable's "Dr, Sevier," in which we hear mutterings of the coming rebellion; and the conclusion of "Lady Barberina," by Henry James, in which there is an elopement.

Ex-Prest Theodore D. Woolsey has a suggestive essay on "Academical Degrees, Especially Honorary Degrees in the United States, which will be read with interest in the light of the announcements of the numerous titles which colleges of all ranks confer at this season. Eugene V. Smalley has a brief but comprehensive and popular account of the United States Patent Office.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR JULY is a brilliant "Fourth of July" number, which should arouse the interest and enthusiasm of every patriotic American girl and boy.

The number opens with, "How the Tories broke up 'Meeting,'" a spirited sketch of revolutionary times. "A Fourth of July among the Indians" tells of a very modern celebration of our national holiday, on the plains, by a large company of the nation's ward; the author, writes amusingly, and has illustrated it at once truthfully, humorously, and profusely.

Of the serials, J. T. Trowbridge's "The Scarlet Tanager" ends with an interesting denouement; "Marvin and his Boy Hunters" pass through many entertaining adventures; and Louisa M. Alcott contributes a "Spinning wheel Story" of healthful and helpful significance to hosts of American girls. There are poems and verses by Celia Thaxter, Charles G. Leland, and G. G. Francis; a paper on "Picnics" by Susan Anna Brown; an amusing and well executed frontispiece by Alfred Kappes, and many beautiful illustrations by other well known artists.

WIT, WISDOM AND PHILOSOPHY OF JEAN PAUL RICHTER. Edited by Giles P. Hawley. This volume is a cabinet box containing over 250 of the choicest gems literature has ever furnished the world. Richter has long since taken his seat among the "immortals," but with the exception of scattered quotations met here and there, American readers are comparatively little acquainted with his pungent and profound writings. It has been well said of him, "no writer has made such brilliant remarks and no ten have made so many." Published in Funk & Wagnalls' (10 and 12 Dey Street, N. Y.) Standard Library. Paper, 25 cents.

THE APOSTLES' CREED TESTED BY EXPERIENCE. By Charles R. Baker. These lectures on the several articles of the Creed were delivered in the Church of the Messiah by one of the most eloquent preachers in Brooklyn. They show the side of the Creed, which turns itself not to the historian; or the dogmatist, but that which presents itself to contemporary Christian experience. This form of presenting the matter brings out its value and force with wonderful freshness. We are greatly mistaken if the reading of these lectures did not prove very suggestive to preacher, and useful to layman. Bound in heavy manilla. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

THE NATURAL LAW IN THE SPIRITUAL WORLD. By Prof. Henry Drummond. New edition. $1.50. James Pott & Co., 12 Astor Place, New York. We were late in crediting the strong things that we at first heard about this work. Perhaps we were repelled by the operose Introduction. Often we think that the introduction to a book should be read last of all. It is labored and heavy, and this before the attention has become awakened by the book itself. In this work we have not yet accomplished the Introduction; but if one will begin with the book proper he will find a richness in the chapters which will be almost a revelation. Every clergyman who can should get the book.

THE MEISTERCHAFT SYSTEM OF ACQUIRING THE SPANISH LANGUAGE. By Dr. R. S. Rosenthal. This famous system, which has been in use for a few years past, gives the pupil a gradual and increasing knowledge of the spoken language. It has been adapted for the French, German and Spanish. There are fifteen pamphlets, by which the scholars gets a larger vocabulary of words and expressions, and their exact pronunciation. For five dollars the scholar gets these pamphlets, and also the privilege of asking, by letter, questions concerning each lesson, or consulting as to any difficulty. We made actual trial on the French by this system, some years ago, and know its value. Estes & Lauriat, 299 Washington street, Boston.

We are indebted to Messrs. Hoe & Co. for a very fine engraving of "Representative London Journalist." Each portrait appears in the centre of a miniature fac simile of the journal with which the editor is connected.

Oct. 3, Wednesday, Philadelphia, General Convention.

It is always better, and saves trouble and time, if persons desiring to know about the Orphans' Home, to procure children from there, or to place children there, will write directly to the officers of the Board of Managers, rather than to the Bishop, who can give less definite information. Mrs. Western Bascome, First Directress, No. 2305 Locust street, or Mrs. Henry R. O'Dell, the Secretary, St. Louis, would cheerfully give all desired information. And so of St. Luke's Hospital. For information as to terms, and accommodations, persons had better write to Sister Catharine, St. Luke's Hospital, corner of Washington avenue and Twentieth street, St. Louis.

SINCE the writing of his letter to the Diocese, the Bishop has been glad to hear that there have been received by Mr. Talbot very gratifying and substantial evidence of sympathy. There had been incurred a debt on the property before to complete the structure so far as it had gone. It would not be safe to increase this debt. But in order to prevent this, and yet put the building in condition for use this year, and to meet the pressure for room, there must be further and larger gifts. Many parishes have responded to the suggestion made in my letter; some had done so before it reached them. The Bishop suggests that, subject to the convenience of the rectors and congregations, the offertories in our churches for the Second Sunday in November next, or as near that as may be, should be appropriated to this common need, and to repair the results of this dire calamity.

IN the June number of THE NEWS, the undersigned, on the editorial page, in giving impressions that had come to him from various quarters with regard to the then recent Convention of the Diocese, among other things quoted from a letter which had been received, and in which liberty had been expressly given to show it, a rather severe criticism upon the result of some elections, and in doing so reflected upon St. Louis. The undersigned did not express any adhesion to the opinion quoted, and did not adopt it as his own. Almost all that was said was of praise; dissent was expressed on this point.

Shortly after, a communication was received from the Standing Committee in which, after declaring that the paragraph in question makes an indiscriminate and unjust charge against the Churchmen of St. Louis, and the Committee; they declare as their judgment that the publication of censures and charges is not among the purposes for which the NEWS was adopted as the official organ of the Diocese. As this was not sent to the NEWS, and there was no intimation of desire for its publication, it was not inserted in the last number.

To-day, for the first time, the undersigned is informed that some members of the Committee feel aggrieved at such absence of mention* or of explanation. When the article was written, there was not the slightest idea that there was anything in it offensive to the Standing Committee. Its election for years past has been almost by acclamation, and manifestly not at the seeking of its members. While the undersigned is not authorized to interpret the meaning of the writer of the paragraph, he is sure that no such intention was either in his mind. Afterwards, when his attention was called to it, the undersigned saw that there might be drawn such an injurious inference, and while the paragraph was not his own, and he did not adopt it as his own, he is desirous that the expression of his regret that pain should have been given to those with whom he has had such courteous, official relations, should be distinctly made in this column. C. F. ROBERTSON.

St. Louis, August 8, 1883.

PAROCHIAL FACTS.

A gentleman in a parish which is very much interested in our home missionary work, which has steadily endeavored to keep up a knowledge of its progress, and this interest and liberality toward it by monthly missionary meetings, at which all that is going on is told, asked the writer a few days ago whether he could put him in the way of getting knowledge regularly of all that was doing in the way of Church work in the diocese, right along, in order that it might be communicated to the regular missionary meetings, which are held one Sunday night in each month. He said that in the early days of the Diocesan Missionary Society, seventeen years ago, it was made almost a condition of appointment as missionary, and the receipt of stipend, that the persons so appointed should regularly communicate such facts as would impart information and stimulate interest.

Of course the NEWS was not then in existence, and whatever it does now in the way of imparting intelligence is so much gained. And how much it does in this line we have gratifying assurances of from many sides. But it will probably have been noticed how few of such contributions of intelligence have come directly from the parishes or clergymen themselves. What appears has been picked up, as the birds pick up their food, here and there. This matter has been often adverted to here. Persons think that what is taking place has little general interest; they intend to do what they at length neglect to do altogether. Now, outside of all other aspects which this neglect has, it has a serious bearing upon those who, giving statedly, and on principle, are interested in the progress of work in the diocese, who want to see what their money is accomplishing. It should be counted by the missionary, and others as well, a part of their duty, to maintain and increase the interest in aggressive work, by making known what is doing and undertaken in their neighborhoods. This does not imply long articles; it is an urgency in the direction of a prompt statement of the struggles and advances of the Church by those who are acquainted with the facts.

RALLS COUNTY.

The average weather in Missouri in July is scarcely favorable for making missionary journeys into a country that had not been previously traversed; but one took place recently of such exceptional interest, that an account of it should be given.

It came to the knowledge of the Bishop some months since that an earnest English Churchman living in Perry, had been joined by another quite as interested, and who was qualified in music and to act as a lay-reader. They came twenty-five miles lately to meet the Bishop at Mexico, and to state the situation. The Bishop gave a license as lay-reader, sent a package of Mission Service books, and promised to come very shortly, the more as he was told that some persons were awaiting confirmation.

In a buggy kindly sent to the railway station for him, the Bishop, after a rather hot and dusty drive of fourteen miles, arrived at Perry, on the afternoon of the 10th ult., the service having being announced for the next night. That evening, however, in the host's parlor, in which lay services are held every Sunday, and which was appropriately fitted up with altar fitly adorned, and cabinet organ and chairs arranged, the Bishop held the evening service and preached to the neighbors who had assembled. This service would have been held in the school-house, but for the rain.

The next day was hot, and showery and uncertain. A number of citizens called on the Bishop; he instructed several persons for confirmation, and in the afternoon baptized two children. Several wagon loads of persons, Church people, who had not heard the service for years, and their neighbors arrived, having come twelve miles. The evening, fortunately, was fine and bright. The service was to be held in a Christian church, nearly a mile from town in the woods. It was very large, holding five hundred people, and was well lighted. A screen had been arranged for a vestry room. On arriving the woods were seen to be alive with people and teams. It was harvest time; but the service had been announced in the county paper, twenty miles off, and seemed to be well known. The church soon became thoroughly filled with a most respectful and orderly congregation. With the aid of the Mission Service books, distributed through the congregation, and a few words of preliminary direction and invitation, and a mention of the page from time to time, the whole evening service was had, and was engaged in heartily by all; the responses were strongly read; the people rose and knelt at the usual places.

With some previous practice the chants were all admirably rendered, and the hymns, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," Arlington, Greenville, and Old Hundred, were sung with a relish which would have been a revelation to many a jaded city congregation.

The Bishop preached without manuscript, and then called up the four who were to be confirmed. The circumstances of each was interesting; one, the wife of the Bishop's host, had been awaiting confirmation for years; another, the mother of the children who had been baptized, had read herself into the Church, and this was the first service she had ever attended; another, an Englishman, said that these services reminded him of those to which he had been accustomed many years before in Lincolnshire; the other was an old man of 72, who had been baptized more than seventy years before, and who had lived on Linn Creek in this county for thirty-five years, who had been around the world in early life, but who had never before had this opportunity, and yet knew his well worn prayer-book almost by heart. The whole service was most affecting.

The next morning at eight the Holy Communion was celebrated in the little parlor, when those who had been confirmed and others, received,—one for the first time since he had come to this country, eleven years before, he having always lived away from where the Church was. The arrangements were all most devoutly made, and the Bishop served by one who had had good training for such service. Two hours after the Bishop started back in a temperature above 100°, for his ride of fourteen miles to the train, and for duty elsewhere, but with a feeling of the deepest joy and thankfulness that it was his happy office to minister to those who were so earnestly keeping and contending for the faith. Patience could be summoned to endure much worry, and misconstruction, and bitter speech, after the refreshment of three days of such helpful service.

BUILDING PLANS.

This has a good idea in it, and therefore we give the letter which has come from an intelligent layman in full. The plans of churches and the specifications ought to be preserved; and if they should be sent to the Bishop, either as drafted or modified as need might appear, they would be of great use for others contemplating building.

SHELBYNA.

Dear Bishop:—

Since we have been trying to get plans, etc., for building a church (without pay), which we are nearly compelled to do, I have thought that poor parishes might be aided by your requesting that parishes that now or may, have plans, specifications and prices of churches, so soon as contract is finished and building accepted, forward them to you, for the use of the diocese; such plans to be put in separate envelopes, and marked. This would enable you, with your knowledge of any parish wanting such information, to send such a plan as would in nearly every instance be acceptable, would save a good deal of money, and hasten matters up materially. The same to be again returned to you when the parties are through with them. Besides all the objectional parts could be removed and improvements suggested, from the fact that in your visitations you notice these. A suggestion from you through the CHURCH NEWS might be well.

Yours, very respectfully,
I. N. M.

THE DISASTER AT MACON.

Probably most persons in the Diocese have before this become aware of the heavy loss which we have sustained by the destruction by a tornado of the newer portion of St. James Academy, at Macon, by the fearful storm which swept through the State four weeks ago. It blew trains from the track. In crossing many fields of ripe grain it left them as bare as the middle of a road. In another column there is given a description of the storm, and the manner of the loss. At the first intelligence the writer was almost inclined to despair at the loss of what had cost so much labor and sacrifice, in the fear that it could not be replaced. But we are all in a Heavenly Father's hand, and even this loss came from Him. The only thing for us to do is to go forward and do our best.

The Bishop has put out the following letter to the Diocese, and hopes that there will be an early response made by those who can give large sums and small for this common and heavy loss:

ST. LOUIS, July 20, 1883.

To the Church People of the Diocese:—

In God's providence we have just suffered the heaviest disaster that the Diocese has for many years been called upon to endure. The newly constructed portion of St. James Academy in Macon City, the Diocesan school, was blown down by the fearful tornado of the 13th ult. It was a storm which caused millions of dollars of damage to this State. It was little wonder then that the walls recently put up, and not yet completely braced by interior partitions, should be prostrated. The strength of the older portion of the structure was tested by standing unharmed, except as to the flues and belfry.

The loss to us thus in a moment of seven thousand dollars, which has been expended on this noble building, and the delay in the work of the school, is distressing. No interest in the Diocese was accomplishing more solid good results than this, and it was entering upon a larger field of usefulness.

Shall the work pause in its career, because of this heavy blow upon us? I have anticipated your reply in directing that the ruins be instantly cleared, and the building begun with such strength as that no future disaster of the kind can again occur. Occasion will be taken to cause a modification of the plan of the building by reducing the height of the new part to two stories; and ultimately completing by making another addition, like the original building, so that the whole structure will be the shape of the letter H thus giving space and the utmost strength.

When loss overtakes a parish, there are those immediately concerned who are interested in standing by it, and making good the damage. But this school is of interest to the whole Diocese. It touches every part. But in this very diffusion of its good is its weakness in a supreme crisis like this. One of the clergymen of the Diocese, when he heard of the loss, said to me, "The best part of the school was not blown away. Mr. Talbot is there still."

But he cannot make an appeal now in person. He is overwhelmed with new duty at this moment. He has suffered heavy personal loss in the damage done to his dwelling and his furniture by the crushing in of the great weight of the brick walls. His home and furniture are exposed to the elements. He must push the work of clearing the ruins and rebuilding. The fall term will begin with all the former facilities on the day announced.

But now is the time for those who have watched the brave work of Mr. Talbot, and have regard for the good wrought by the school, to show it by gifts large and small for the work of reconstruction. The town has already pledged itself to do handsomely. But there should be no longer delay than is possible in the restoration and equipment of the building. Individuals are asked for personal gifts large and small as their ability and the great need will suggest, and collections are solicited from all the congregations of the Diocese. And he gives twice who gives quickly. All gifts should be sent to, and will be acknowledged by the Rev. E. Talbot, Macon City.

C. F. ROBERTSON, Bishop of Missouri.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Bishop has consented to the change of the name of the Mission of the Good Samaritan in this city to that of All Saints. They preferred the name on their entrance on a new building, and the beginning of a more substantial part of their history. They will erect during the year, in the vestibule of their new church, a tablet to the memory of the late Robert B. Minturn of New York, whose widow gave the first, and up to this time, the largest personal gift to the Mission, and at whose suggestion the name of the Good Samaritan was first given.

—The Rev. Mr. Scheetz, of Kirkwood, who has so much experience in planing and building, recently visited, at the suggestion of the Bishop and the request of the vestry, the wreck of the church in Brunswick, in order to advise how best the work of rebuilding may be entered upon. He thinks that all the parts, except the floor, should be taken to pieces before being put together again.

—Trinity parish, Kansas City, has contracted for the lots on the corner of Twelfth street and Tracy avenue, 125 by 125 feet, in a very eligible location, for something over $5000. They are getting subscriptions now for $10,000, half in cash and half in notes, payable along in three years; the $5,000 cash to pay for the land, the balance to apply on the church building and parsonage which they propose to build, the former at a cost of $12,000, the latter for $3,000. They are meeting with a very handsome response to their propositions, and the parish starts out with very bright prospects indeed.

—The old St. Paul's church, Mexico, has been taken down, and work on the new brick building to take its place is advancing. It will be sixty by twenty-four on the interior, including the chancel, ten feet deep, and extending across the church, with a curved end. The vestry room is of good size, and is entered from the chancel, projecting from the side lines of the church. There is a porch projecting from the centre of the front of the church. The walls are thirteen inches thick and sixteen feet high. The ceiling is open-timbered. The building is being done by day's work. The inner of the two lots has been sold for $500. The lots on which they build is on the corner, 60 by 114 feet.

— The confirmations in Boonville, at the late visitation of the Bishop, represented some important gains for the parish, and indicate the healthy and aggressive tone of the parish. The Sunday-school keeps large, in spite of the hot weather. They hope to secure $100 for the Missionary Host for this year. At the meeting of the vestry, attended by the Bishop, a very comfortable financial situation was disclosed; and order was taken for improvements in the furnace and other parts of the property. The rectory and church had been repaired, and a set of parlor furniture put into the rectory.

— The Rev. Robert Talbot, of Monroe City, visited Kansas City on the 8th ult., and officiated in Grace church in the morning and St. Mary's in the evening. There have been some communications passing recently between him and the vestry of the newly-organized Trinity church, with reference to his taking charge of that parish.

— The Rev. Joseph S. Colton has resigned the rectorship of Grace church, Carthage, and removed to Pittsfield in the Diocese of Quincy.

— The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Boonville, 10; Perry, 4; Weston, 3; Maryville, 2.

— The Bishop has received as a Postulant for Candidatuship for Holy Orders Mr. Henry C. Dyer, of Trinity church, in this city.

— The Rev. M. A. Browne, of Nevada City, has begun a boy's school, for which he is very thoroughly qualified, being a M. A. of Trinity College, Dublin. He has had hard duty in getting work into shape in Nevada, as it was left in a very depressed condition by his predecessor. In Rich Hill they have become organized into a mission, of which Mr. Thomas Irish is warden, Dr. Jas. S. Gillett is clerk, and Mr. T. V. Sweeney is treasurer, and the above, with Mr. Sanderson and Dr. Harris constitute the Executive Committee.

— The Rev. M. S. Woodruff, who has been for so long a time our faithful and self-sacrificing missionary in Saline county, has had a call to his native State, Big Rapids, with a comfortable salary assured. It would be a pity, indeed, if he should be induced to leave the work with which he has become so closely identified. What makes the call more persuasive is that it brings him near to his father, who, in his declining years, looks to his son. He has the matter still under advisement, will spend August on a vacation, and will decide in September, to which month the Bishop's visit is at his request postponed.

— The Rev. Dr. Schuyler has resigned his position as deputy to the General Convention, as he does not think that all of the clerical members of the Standing Committee should be away from the Diocese during the Bishop's absence at the General Convention. This leaves the Rev. Dr. Runcie as the Senior Deputy. Messrs. Porter and Lathrop, of the Lay Deputation, have also resigned; both being lawyers, finding the opening of the courts just at that time would prevent their being away. This circumstance has always militated against the acceptance in this Diocese of the position by lawyers in active practice, and by judges on the bench. The Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, and Messrs. Wm. B. Potter and John R. Triplett have been duly chosen from among the alternates to fill the vacancies.

— The ladies of St. Peter's church, in this city, netted $600 by their steamboat excursion in June.

— The Rev. B. E. Reed, of Mount Calvary, has gone to Virginia for his vacation.

— The Rev. Dr. Runcie, at St. Joseph, received the telegram announcing the disaster to the Academy, Macon, during the morning service on Sunday, 15th ult., and devoted the offertory to the School, which amounted to $23.

— The real estate agent through whom the property on the corner of Twenty-third street and Washington avenue was bought, was offered $1000 before the property was transferred as a bonus for the bargain. The Good Samaritan Mission will hereafter be known as All Saints' Church.

— The Bishop has consented to become officially a Visitor of St. Mary's School, Kansas City.

— The Rev. Dr. Runcie recently made a visit and gave the first service in King City, Gentry county, in the northwestern part of the State, at the solicitation of some Church people from there, who came down to St. Joseph to represent their numbers, and their very earnest desire to have Church privileges. The county is rich, and is rapidly filling up. He said there were a considerable number of our people there. Dr. Runcie went on Wednesday, 18th, and held the Service that night. The town is connected with St. Joseph by a narrow-gauge railway. There was a congregation of three hundred, some of whom had come over the prairies from five to seven miles. The chants and hymns were admirably sung. The leader was an old English Churchman, who, with his son, had formerly sung in the Cathedral in Manchester, England. Only about twenty could take part in the Service; the others sat throughout. An earnest desire was expressed to have regular Services, and to have a parish organized. For the present, and until more can be done for them, Dr. Runcie will give them monthly Services. He keeps well, in spite of the extreme heat, notwithstanding an early communion, two full Services and two Sunday-schools, and a funeral of a Sunday. And he does not lack for congregations, although some of his people have gone north.

— The Rev. E. M. Pecke has resigned the rectorship of Christ church, Lexington, and at the Bishop's suggestion has taken charge of Trinity church, De Soto and St. Paul's, Ironton, and the mission at Crystal City. He will reside in De Soto. This leaves Lexington vacant just now. We hope that it may not remain so long.

— The Rev. Dr. Schuyler started for his vacation in Michigan on the 6th inst.

— The Bishop has received an application for Services from Charleston, Mississippi county, in the southwestern part of the State, for Services at least once a month. It is stated that there are fifteen members of the Church there. The Bishop was there some years ago and held Services. Services were also held by the rector in Cairo, Ill.

— A lot in the phenomenal new city of Walnut, in Bates county, has been secured by gift for a church, by the Rev. Mr. Browne, through one of his congregation at Rich Hill. At Rich Hill the Opera House has been secured for Services on two Sunday nights in the month, free of rent. A good Sunday-school has been started, and the congregation at the Service last Sunday night numbered three hundred.

— The parish at Lexington is already in correspondence with a clergyman, and do not propose to remain without a minister a day longer than necessary.

— The Rev. Mr. Newton has been given by his church a six weeks vacation from the beginning of this month until the third Sunday in September. He is at Ipswich, Mass., and is enjoying himself very much in a life peculiar to the sea shore.

— It is announced in the daily papers that the Rev. Dr. Berkley has resigned the rectorship of St. Peter's church in this city, to take effect the 15th of October, and that he is to take up his residence in Kirkwood.

— The Rev. Mr. De Forest of South St. Louis is giving Services to Oak Hill. St. Paul's, South St. Louis, is proposing improvements which will cost $1,000. They consist in the purchase of the lot on Fourth street between them and the corner of the next street; the changing of the chancel to the other end of the church, the building out of a recess chancel and vestry room, and ceiling the interior of the church, in place of the plaster that is falling.

— The moonlight festival given by Mrs. Stansbury, 3818 Carondelet avenue, July 25th, for the benefit of the Church of Good Shepherd, was most satisfactory in both its social and financial features. The spacious grounds surrounding the grand old family mansion, one of the first in the city, were brilliantly illuminated. Over two hundred guests were present, and all, old and young, enjoyed thoroughly the brilliant occasion. Among the number present we noticed Capt. Martin and family of the Arsenal, Rev. Joseph De Forest and family, Mayor Ewing, Mrs. Edgerton and daughter, and many others. Mrs. Stansbury and her granddaughter Anna possess the rare gift, or rather genius, of entertaining a large company and making every one feel at home.

ST. JAMES ACADEMY IN RUINS.

AN APPEAL.

The new building of St. James Academy, Macon, Mo., is in ruins. It is the Diocesan school for boys. It was nearing completion and had cost so far $7,000, and would have required $3,000 more to complete it. The violent storm which prevailed so generally last Friday, the 13th ult., struck the Academy on the northwest. The windows were fastened only temporarily; the partitions were not in, and the mortar had not become hardened. Hence the large three-story structure collapsed in common with the wagon factory, the plow factory and the tobacco factory. In its fall the Rector's residence immediately adjoining, was crushed in on the west side, entailing a loss of several hundred dollars to house and furniture. In this great and sudden calamity the school appeals to Churchmen and friends of education everywhere for help. It does not make this appeal until its friends on the spot have shown a disposition to do all in their power. The citizens of Macon have already raised over $3,000 in cash, and the committee is still at work. But their own losses have been great and their ability is therefore limited. To rebuild and make such additions as will restore public confidence will require at least $7,000 more. A large number of boys have been engaged for the Fall, and the Rector is anxious to be ready to receive them. The school opens on the first Monday in September. The work of re-building will begin without delay. Will not our friends who may see this send us whatever they can, that this important work be not crippled? All sums, large or small, will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged. Remittances may be sent to the Bishop, Rt. Rev. C. F. Robertson, No. 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis, or to the Rector of St. James Academy, Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Macon Mo.

Mr. Talbot informs us that of the $7,000 required he has received from friends and various parishes $1,550. Doubtless many who will ultimately be glad to help have not heard of the disaster, being out of the State for the summer. He is deeply thankful for the many expressions of sympathy on all hands and for the prompt and generous material aid thus far sent him.

— A judge in St. Louis has discharged a master of a public school who was prosecuted for whipping a boy after milder punishment had been of no avail. The Court found that, in order to preserve discipline, the teacher must determine the necessity, the nature, and extent of punishment, his acts like those of a parent, being subject to judicial review. The judge also said: "Four years experience in the administration of criminal law convinces me that the boys who become criminals are boys who don't get whipped; and when it is remembered that a large percentage of the bolder crimes known to the law is committed by youths ranging in age from 14 to 20 years, the question arises, Is it better to whip first or imprison afterwards?"

— There were 237 divorces granted by the St. Louis courts during the last fifteen months.

To the Editor of the Church News:

While taking serious exception to the communication of "Lay Delegate" in your last issue, in which the Diocesan Convention and one of its committees are charged with "lack of faith," now that the Journal of the Convention is printed, I am perfectly content to abide the issue in every candid and unprejudiced mind, when the Report of the Committee and the Resolutions appended to the Report may be placed alongside of the communication of "Lay Delegate." At the same time I would like to say a few words to the Diocese, through your columns, if I may, on one point in the "Report of the Committee on the State of the Church." As every one knows, that important committee is obliged to prepare its report during the busy hours of the latter portion of the session of the Convention, and, for many reasons, has not an opportunity to give as full, or as complete a result as could be wished. Having received the impression from the report that there was an unexplained, and apparently inexplicable decrease in the number of communicants in the Diocese, I have taken the pains to satisfy myself concerning the matter. Possibly the result of my investigations may be of interest to some who are not accustomed to statistical research.

The number of communicants in the Diocese, according to last year's journal, was 5,413. This year the table foots up 5,385, an apparent decrease of 28. The Bishop reports the number of persons confirmed during the year to be 465. That there has been no decrease, but on the contrary, an actual gain of 510 communicants, will be evident to any one who will consider the following facts, viz.:

In 19 of the 48 parishes of the Diocese there have been reported gains amounting to 340; while in 14 parishes losses have been reported amounting to 173. The net gain, therefore, in the parishes is 167.

In the 13 of the 43 Missions, organized and unorganized, there have been reported gains amounting to 93, while in 8 missions losses have been reported amounting to 72. The net gain, therefore, in the missions is 21.

Now, taking the number of communicants as reported last year in 16 missions, from which no figures are given this year, there are 322 to be added to the gains noted above, with the following result, viz.:

Net gain in Parishes,	167
" " Missions,	21
Number in Missions not reporting,	322
Total,	510

And, further, if in the 16 missions making no report there shall have been gains also, the showing will be still better.

Faithfully yours,

E. M. PECKE.

GENERAL NEWS.

—They have instituted the Sunday School Missionary Host in Colorado. The first anniversary took place on Wednesday, June 13th, at the Cathedral in Denver. The President, Mr. Ralph Talbot, made his annual report, and in it declared that the idea of it came from this diocese. There were 200 children present.

—Bishop Burgess delivered his second triennial charge at the recent Convention in Quincy, on Some Essentials of Catholicity.

—In the Missionary Jurisdiction of New Mexico, the Church property in 1880 was valued at $5,000, in 1881 at $8,000, in 1882 at $20,000, in 1883 at $40,000. The Bishop in this one single item has more than paid for himself.

—Prof. H. B. Smith of the Union Theological Seminary, states from the experience of thirty years, that nearly all the young men who study for the ministry came from families where as children, they had received careful Christian training; very few came from families where home religion was neglected.

—Lord Shaftesbury states that in London, from examination, it has been found that nearly all of the adult male criminals of that city fell into a course of crime between the ages of eight and sixteen years, and most of them from being allowed to stay out late at night.

—The report of the Committee on Liturgical Enrichment will be ready in the form of a volume, containing the Prayer Book with the suggestions which they make for modification, by the 12th of September. The Bishops and the Deputies to General Convention will each have a copy. For others, copies at the rate of $5.00 each can be subscribed for to Reuben Colton, Esq., Worcester, Mass. All will be distributed at the same time.

—The Standing Committee of Maryland have decided that they have no power clearly given to call a Special Convention for the election of a Bishop, and hence will not call any. The matter will thus necessarily go over until the regular Convention in May next, and leave the diocese for fifteen months without a Bishop.

—The Kentucky Church paper has made a good suggestion for the changing of the time of meeting of the General Convention to May, and have it at some of the resorts where large accommodations could be had before the summer boarders came, at reduced rate, and where each deputy could thus pay his own more moderate bill, which he cannot do now, while he does not want to impose himself, with five hundred others for three weeks, on a strange host, who never heard of him before.

—There is a movement on foot for the calling of a Church Congress for and in the South. Few writers or speakers from that section are invited or appear at the Church Congress held in the East, nor do many come from the West.

—At the Conference held at Sewanee, Tenn., for four days from July 25th to 28th, called by Bishop Green, in the matter of considering what further could be done by the Church for the religious advantage of colored persons, thirteen Bishops were present, and fifteen Dioceses and Jurisdictions were represented. The proceedings and results are to be published. A meeting of colored Church clergymen has been called in Philadelphia in September, to memorialize the General Convention, touching the same subject. The session was useful, and the hospitality most beautiful and abundant.

—The Scottish Communion office, after which ours is modeled, rather than after the English, and which the Scottish Bishops insisted upon the use of as a condition of consecrating Bishop Seabury, is now only used in Scotland at the consecration and the opening of Synods. The English is used. We have better performed our part of the compact than the Scotch have. The Rev. Dr. Edson, of Massachusetts, who recently died, was one of our oldest clergy, and had served only one parish, and that for sixty years.

—The first number of the Parish Messenger, a little monthly from Denison, Texas, reaches us. From it we see that Mr. E. H. Lingo, who used to be such a faithful man in Chillicothe, is Senior Warden, and Superintendent of the Sunday school in Denison.

—The great St. Louis Fair takes place this year from Oct. 1st to 6th. Greater pains than ever before have been taken with the exhibits, and prizes will be larger. The mechanical and commercial display and procession during fair week, Friday, Oct. 5th, will be something new and of amazing length and variety. The Veiled Prophet has put out his proclamation, and indicates a gorgeous entry into the city on Tuesday evening, 2d.

MISCELLANY.

—Says the Roman Catholic World, speaking of the laity: "Lives more destitute than theirs of intellectual activity it would be hard to imagine among educated people. . . . For the past ten years the Roman Catholic book business generally has been conducted at a loss."

—The London Guardian, having reference to the suggested resignation of Bishop Wordsworth, says: "It may be that the idea of the requirements of the Bishop's office of the presens day errs, as many have begun to think, in the direction of excessive activity, to the detriment of not less needful qualities of sound learning, force of character, and power of wise counsel and government. It may be thought that in some recent Episcopal appointments these latter qualifications have been apparently less valued than heretofore, in comparison with energy of work and personal influence. Still we must conclude that the error, if error there be, is on the right side. Episcopacy is oversight; and oversight, if it does not demand ubiquity of presence, at least calls for universality of sympathy and interest at all times, and for the possibility of personal presence in all cases of necessity."

—To suppose that a Protestant can escape from the difficulties raised by modern science and criticism against Christianity by becoming a Roman Catholic is exactly like supposing that a man who is in the lower rooms of a house set on fire in the basement can save himself by going upstairs into the garrets. Metaphor apart, the matter stands thus: Roman Catholic theology probably is extremely logical and well constructed. But the whole system rests upon several suppositions, of which the absolute truth of the whole of the canonical Scriptures is one. This assumption pervades the whole of Roman Catholic theology, just as the fundamental assumptions as to the strength of materials pervade the calculations of architects. M. Renan's historical criticisms, if they cannot be answered, are absolutely fatal to the system in which he was educated. They are so by reason of the very quality of system and logic of which English Roman Catholics boast. The Roman Catholic syllogism is: Whatever doctrines the Church affirms to be true is true. But the Church affirms our doctrines to be true. Therefore they are true. The Protestant syllogism is: Every religious doctrine is true which is affirmed to be true by One who is proved by historical evidence to have been crucified, dead, and buried, and to have risen again from the dead and ascended into heaven. But the doctrine was affirmed to be true by such a person. Therefore this doctrine is true. If these two syllogisms are compared together, it will be found impossible to prove the major of the first syllogism otherwise than by affirming the major and proving the minor of the second syllogism, taking the authority of the Church as the doctrine to which it refers. In other words, the Roman Catholic must prove the truth of the essential parts of all the Protestant creeds before he can allege the truth of his own.

—This is the way that Gen. B. F. Butler puts it in his address at Williams College lately: Brought up in a Baptist college, it yet never seemed to me that it was of any consequence what amount of water was used to give the sign of the living soul that it belonged to Christ. Afterward, struck with the beauty of the liturgy and litany of the Episcopal Church in its rhythmic flow, almost in numbers, satisfied with the Apostles' Creed and fully content to wind up the morning devotion with the prayer of Chrysostom, "Oh, Lord, listen to our petitions, as they are most convenient for us," certain that all will be done, I became a member of an Episcopal congregation.

—A little boy finished his prayers one night, just before his summer vacation, with the words: "Good-bye, God, I am going into the country." Some such disposition as this explains why, although city congregations are so much smaller in the summer, country congregations are not at all proportionally increased. Church people who are exact in their habits at home are utterly careless when away. Even clergymen are sometimes neglectful of attendance at service, and excite the astonishment of groups of Church people having no service, by declining even to read the prayers on Sunday.

EARLY DAYS IN KANSAS CITY.

It may be taken as an evidence of the growth of the city and an increase of the church's strength that in September of this year the Rev. A. Batte began mission services in McGee's addition in a hall rented for that purpose. The communicant's in St. Luke's church had increased in 1869, to 135, and in 1870 were reported as 179. Thus rapid was the progress of the church just so soon as a settled home had been secured.

The growth of the city had, however, now reached the point that a more decisive step had to be taken. The numbers and ability of the church people on the west side had come to be such that its demand for services at that section could no longer be delayed. The policy of the rector of St. Luke's had been to build a large central church at the cost of $50,000 and two chapels, costing $25,000 each, to the west and the south. The desire on the west side, however, was for an independent parish.

On the 9th of July, 1870, I addressed a formal letter to the Episcopalians of West Kansas City, in these terms: "Each repeated visit which I have made to your city has only deepened in me the impression that I at first formed of its large present and prospective importance. My desire is that our church shall take its proper position there. The scattered condition of population, as well as the size and ability of the parish, have for several months indicated to me that the time is rapidly approaching when another centre must be had and another parish organized. The ability of the Church people in the western part of the city is sufficient now to justify action, and I recommend that steps be taken to organize. I think that the new parish will be self-sustaining from the start, and that the old one, after a few months, will not be less strong than it is now. In a parish as numerous as St. Luke's diverse opinions arise and are held, the only sufficient solution of which is division and separate action. No such an enterprise, started with a sincere purpose to further the church, I would give my cordial approval. I think that it would be wise to build on the ridge near Penn avenue, or, perhaps, as far east as Broadway. On general principles, however, I would keep to the height.

On the 20th of July, 1870, after due notice a meeting was held in the basement of the opera house, at which the rector, Mr. Van Antwerp, presided, and at which a parish named St. Paul's was organized. The articles of the association were signed, and nine vestrymen, who were residents in the western portion of the city were elected.

These were Messrs. M. Dively, G. E. Pitkin, A. S. Brackett, B. J. Henning, Wallace Pratt, J. R. Balis, T. B. Eldridge, E. H. Allen and Dr. W. W. H. Jenny.

Perhaps this important event, the organization of the second parish, may be taken as the end of those earlier days of which I proposed to give you some account, and the task that I allotted to myself may be counted as completed. What I may yet say will have reference to the parish which reaches such an interesting point in its history to-day.

The room in the basement of the opera house was used by the parish for its services until December, 1874. It was kindly furnished by Col. Coates. The access to it was very inconvenient, and in the winter and at night almost dangerous. At first there were but very few benches, occupying but a small portion of the hall. These were often taken out of the way on social occasions for the parish or otherwise. The services during the first summer were kept up by neighboring and visiting clergymen. At a meeting of the vestry September 20, 1870, the subscriptions and prospects of the parish having been found such as to justify it, the Rev. J. B. Haff of Wisconsin was called to the rectorship at a salary of $2,000. This call was accepted, and Mr. Haff entered upon his work on the first Sunday in December following. The first senior warden was Major Henning; the junior warden was Mr. Pitkin; the superintendent of the Sunday school was Dr. Jeuny. The ladies of the parish were especially active, and accumulated the means by which, during the first year, they bought the fine communion service of the parish.

At the Easter parish meeting in 1871, Mr. Balis became the senior warden, and steps were taken to change the name of the parish from St. Paul's to Grace church. This was done because it was thought that the similarity of the names of the parishes in the city might occasion confusion. In May the parish was received into union with the convention of the diocese, and thirty-nine communicants were reported. About this time a lot was purchased and partly paid for on which to erect a church building on Washington avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. The contract to purchase was with Col. Coates. There was much discussion at the vestry meeting, as to whether the building should be a grand one of stone, or a modest frame church. Plans were procured, and some canvassing for the money with which to go on; but parochial interest was evidently languishing, when, on the 20th of September, the Rev. Mr. Haff resigned his rectorship, after an incumbency of less than a year. Subsequently the resignation was accepted, to take effect December 1. It was found that the ground which had been bought could not be used to advantage, and Col. Coates released the parish and repaid the money which had been advanced, and it was thereupon returned to the subscribers.

On the first of January, 1872, an arrangement was made for Sunday morning services and pastoral care, with the Rev. A. Batte, which, it was supposed, would only continue for a few months, until the choice of a rector should be made. The connection, however, proved so acceptable that it lasted until the summer of 1874. On the 6th of May, 1872, the committee of the vestry, which had been appointed a fortnight before, reported unanimously in favor of buying the lot on which this church stands for $3,175. Messrs. Balis and G. W. McLean were especially efficient in raising the money to pay for the lot. In May of this year Mr. Batte reported to the convention that the parish has a noble band of zealous working ladies, that the male members are liberal, and if they had the same zeal they would in a year or two have a parish of metropolitan proportions.

In 1873 it was determined to change the name of the parish from St. Paul's to Grace Church, and the measure was consummated. On the 12th of May the plans for the erection of a brick church of about the original size of this building, and to cost about $9,000, were submitted to a parish meeting and unanimously approved, and the vestry was directed to proceed with the building. During the summer the foundation was put in. In the fall of this year came on the terrible financial crisis, which fell with full force on this city, together with the grasshopper plague, and depressed its trade for several years. This put an effectual stop to the intention of proceeding with the building, and caused the adoption of a less expensive plan when it was set about. During this time the parish fell behind financially, although it was steadily gaining in numbers, and a spirit of unity prevailed. Mr. Batte reported in 1873 fifty three, and in 1874, sixty nine communicants.

On the 22nd of June, 1874, the Rev. Mr. Batte, greatly to the regret of the parish, resigned his charge of it. On the 26th of the next month the Rev. Jos. E. Martin assumed the rectorship of the parish. Shortly after this the movement to erect the church received an impetus, and the contract for the construction of the building was let. The first service was held in it on Christmas day, 1874.

The eighteen months after this were anxious and troubled days for the parish. The city was growing, the position of the church was most favorable, the joy of getting at length into a building of its own was universally felt. The congregations at first were large but the illness and absence of the rector for some months, and then the springing up of alienations and divisions in the parish caused the numbers to fall off, and the indebtedness of the parish rapidly to increase. The strength of the church was not as great at Easter, 1876, as it had been at Easter, 1875. At a meeting of the vestry, May 2, 1876, the resignation of Mr. Martin was presented and accepted. He relinquished his duties about the 1st day of July. Lay services were for a while maintained, but had ceased before the clerical services were resumed.

JOPLIN.

MRS. R. M. ROBERTS, who suddenly died in Joplin, on the 17th ult., was the daughter of Judge Porter of Hannibal, and the wife of the High Sheriff of Jasper County. She was born in Bowling Green, Pike County, Mo.; married in 1870 and came to this place, then a little hamlet just springing into existence, in company with her husband in 1873. In her demise, society at large in this vicinity realizes a great loss, and the Church in which she was born and reared has sustained a heavy blow, for in its interests she was an untiring worker, as secretary and treasurer of the same, never faltering in the face of discouragements and drawbacks, of which there were many in this new place, but heroically pushing onward, trusting with God's aid, to build up a church that would be an honor to all, and in which she could worship and rear her three little darlings.

She was a woman of rare purity of character, beautiful, generous and a noble type of womanhood; a fond mother and loving wife, who in return was beloved by a true and manly heart. H. A. H.

BEATTY'S ORGANS.—Our last issue contained an advertisement of the celebrated Organs manufactured by Daniel F. Beatty, of Washington, New Jersey, which we inadvertently omitted to call attention to. Mayor Beatty is offering special inducements to persons intending to purchase an Organ now.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Engineer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give every evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 13, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

THE Journal of the Convention appeared before the end of July, and shows the careful work of the Secretary and Assistant. Fuller notice of it, and the condition of Diocesan affairs shown by it, will be made in our next.

THE Twelfth Sunday after Trinity, coming this year on the 12th of this month, is the day on which it is the custom to ask the offerings of the congregations for services among the deaf mutes, the Gospel of the day having for its subject, The Care of the Deaf Man.

THE proof-reader was absent on his summer excursion while the last number of the NEWS was being made ready for the press. This will perhaps explain the large number of typographical mistakes for which we felt annoyed. It was not, for instance, "The year broke off Grace Church, Kansas City," but "The Year Book of Grace Church," etc.

THESE OUGHT YE TO HAVE DONE.

THE NEWS reaches those in the Diocese who are in large parishes and small, in the city and the country, of a wealthy congregation and of the feeble mission. Much that it has at times to say, while intelligible to some, is not applicable to others. What is now to be said is for those who are in the country and in small congregations. It is reference to the neatness and orderliness of the church building. Of course much is often lacking because of a want of means; but then much disorder that is alleged to be occasioned by poverty, is really due to carelessness and a disposition to put off.

There ought always to be a porch before the church door, to shield from the sun in summer, to allow person to beat off the snow in winter, and in muddy weather to prevent the tracking of clay into the church. A plank stretched before the door would prevent the tracking in nasty mud, and be a great saving to the carpets. Cocoa matting is better than carpet for the aisle in a town indifferently provided with side-walks.

In the country places where the people do not live very near, and so do not get often to the church, it is apt to get very untidy; how unsightly it is the people apparently scarcely know themselves. A little system would insure its being cleaned before each service. Kneeling in some places is wholly out of the question. Torn prayer books, and stray leaves of sacred books should not be left about the seats, they breed irreverence. If collected, and from time to time repaired, they would save the Church many a dollar.

Ladies with great effort get a carpet; but soon under each kerosene lamp is seen a large, greasy blotch, where the oil has run over and fallen. This need not be with a little thought. A bit of cotton in the socket to absorb the oil as it runs over would entirely stop the nuisance, and relieve the atmosphere of the church of this argument for incense. The lamps are often full of oil and yet burn dimly. This would be helped, if when there is an interval without night services, the oil were taken out of the lamps and put into the cans. The illuminating quality of the oil thus would not be allowed to evaporate. Clergymen do not generally insist upon the lamp cleaning being done, and the oil can and cloths being kept in the vestry room.

Have a place in the summer time for the stoves, and this not out of doors, or in a damp cellar, or any place where they are likely to get rusty. This is bad economy. The minister may be dry, but this does not necessarily imply that the stove and pipe should be put into the vestry room.

It is a good plan to have shelves for books and papers in the vestry room. These and other things are often huddled in piles on the floor. When the minister is done with his sermon, he had better put it away, and not let it lie around. A production which had such power when being uttered is greatly disillusioned when it is found with poor handwriting to be spread out on soiled paper. Put the thunderbolt out of sight; it looks and possibly sounds, when seen written, singularly unlike the thunderbolt.

The vessels and linen of the Holy Communion should be kept scrupulously clean. The wine should be pure and not sour. The water should be put in the font in baptism, not in a bowl placed in the cavity. If there is no font, a petty, common vessel should not be allowed to belittle the Sacrament. Get the names and dates for the register beforehand.

THE CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 27, 1883.

Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned five girls of Gamble street, got up an entertainment for our own amusement, and acted the play of Cinderella. We afterwards donated the proceeds to the St. Luke's Hospital, hoping it would be a little help toward the Children's Cot.

SISTER ODEN.

The name at the head of this article was closely associated with St. Luke's Hospital for many years. There are persons scattered all over the country who were patients under her care, who will never forget her bright, cheerful face, nor her loving ministrations at the bedside. And there are many who as occasional visitors, will recall her warm, friendly greeting, and who learned to esteem her highly. Of her more intimate friends it is unnecessary to speak.

Now it is proposed in the Memorial Chapel, about to be erected for St. Luke's, that the various articles of furniture, such as font, altar, and lectern, be given "in memoriam," by friends who would thus commemorate their departed loved ones; and also, that such of the windows as might be called for, should be thus used. A desire has already been expressed on the part of a number of friends to avail themselves of this privilege. The writer of this, bespeaks a window "in memoriam" for Sister Oden, and would suggest to those who knew and loved her, and who would wish to join in such an expression of their affectionate remembrance, to send their offerings to Sister Catharine, directed to the Hospital.

She has not been consulted as to any arrangement of this kind, but there is no doubt she would gladly act. It is important that what is done should be done speedily. M. S.

PERSONAL.

—Tilden thinks that the labors of our present President are mainly gastronomic, and the strain principally on his waist band.

—Bishop Galleher's health is very good, we hear, and his going to Europe was only caused by a plethoric purse.

—Bishop Dunlop has changed his plan of making a visit to St. Louis to General Convention. He will go north on a visit to his brother in Minnesota while on his way east, and stop to see his friends in St. Louis, as he goes westward.

—Bishop Whittle has not been quite so well since he reached the other side. He is troubled with sleeplessness. With his family he is in Switzerland.

—Bishop Green in 1823, then in his twenty-fifth year, and a presbytery in the Convention of North Carolina, nominated to the vacant Episcopate of that Diocese John I. Ravenscroft, then almost unknown, and living in retirement in a log cabin in Virginia. In twenty minutes afterward he was elected. Mr. Green brought to him the evidence of his election. He was utterly dumb with surprise and consternation. He read the paper and sat motionless, and then a groan escaped him. His wife did not know what the papers could mean, and asked what was the cause of his distress. He threw the papers into her lap, and retired to his room for prayer, and was gone half an hour. When he reappeared he came up and said, "Brother Green, it must be so. The hand of God is in it." His Episcopate lasted only six years, but in that time he stamped the Churchmanship, which previously had been of the weakest, with a mark of distinctness and strength which it has always since retained.

—The Rev. Jos. R. Gray, we regret to learn, has been compelled on account of ill health to resign his parish in Tennessee. He is spending the summer in Columbia, Mo., and proposes to go to Florida in the fall.

—Father Hyacinthe and probably several English and Colonial Bishops will be at the General Convention this fall.

—Bishop Thompson of Mississippi has chosen Oxford, the seat of the State University, as the place of his residence, and will have honorary charge of the parish there, the Rev. M. M. Moore having resigned the rectorship, and taken the assistantship. He will have influence with the young men, with his marked strength of character and force and grace of speech.

—Bishop Robertson, Rabbi S. H. Sonneschein, Doctors J. Y. Wilson, W. G. Eliot, Jas. H. Brookes, Hon. D. P. Dyer and W. H. Blodgett, of this city, have been appointed delegates from Missouri to the National Conference of Charities and Corrections to be held at Louisville, Ky., September 22.

—Bishop Wordsworth of Lincoln, England, proposes to resign his See.

—Hobart College, New York, has elected the Rev. Geo. W. Douglas of Trinity Church, N. Y., as its president.

—The Bishop of Iowa has deposed Charles Colard Adams, who proposes to enter into secular business.

—The clerical obituary for the month includes the names of the Revs. Thos. A. Griffith of California, and N. S. Richardson, D.D., Editor of the Guardian, and formerly of the Church Review. He was one of the veteran writers of the Church.

—Our old friend, the Rev. Mr. Ringgold of Cedar Rapids, has had the degree of D.D., conferred on him by Griswold College.

REV. GEORGE H. APPLETON.

A REMINISCENCE.

In the Spirit of Missions for the month of August of this year, there is mention of the Rev. George H. Appleton and wife having arrived at Shanghai, China, and of his entering upon his work as a Missionary. Now such a notice would of course be a matter of interest to parents and intimate friends. And all who are interested in the success of missions, must rejoice when new laborers answer to the pressing call from "fields already white unto the harvest."

But in this dearth of ministers, in the great lack of those who are ready to work for the Church in any field, and where in every diocese in the land the number of candidates for the ministry is growing steadily less, year by year, it is a matter of interest to the Churchmen of this city and diocese, that one born here, and who has grown up among us, has been found ready and prepared to leave home and kindred, encounter the life of self-denial in a strange land, the labor of learning a foreign language, and to be cut off from all the sympathy of social intercourse, that he might bear the tidings of the Gospel to the heathens.

Little did the writer of this dream twenty-eight years ago, he was admitting the little one to the Fold of Christ, and placing on his forehead the sign of the cross, "to fight manfully under His banner," that he was receiving one, who would prove a leader in the van, and who would cross seas and oceans to "seek for Christ's sheep that are dispersed abroad, and for His children who are in this naughty world that they may be saved through Christ forever."

In the retrospect of every minister of Christ, while there is much of no special interest, and much that is sad and discouraging, there are occasionally bright spots on which his memory lingers, furnishing the comforting conviction that his labors has not all been in vain. Of such a character is the incident referred to. The father of Mr. Appleton was for some time a vestryman of Christ Church, and for many years, in the days of his prosperity, gave liberally for the Church and other objects of Christian beneficence. And while it must be a wrench upon the heart-strings of the parents to be so far separated from their only son, yet entrusting him to the care of a kind

Providence, and knowing that he is engaged in his Master's work, there must be a peculiar satisfaction in the consciousness that through him they are paying back a portion of the debt they owe to the Great Missionary who "came to seek and to save the lost."

It is a singular coincidence, as appears from the date given in the Spirit of Missions, that the Rev. W. Appleton arrived in Shanghai on the 5th of April, just 28 years to a day from the time of his baptism.

It is not at all likely that there are many young men of his spirit among us, and yet his words may quicken some conscience and touch some heart.

He writes: "I have seen something of the work that is going on, and even at this early day I am constrained to call to some of our young men 'come over and help us.' I have visited other points, and judging as best I can, I should say, the good people at home have every reason to be satisfied with the work. Again, I say, workers, more workers." M. S.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health." —[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," "St. James Academy, Macon," "School of Good Shepherd, St. Louis."

Accuracy as to the description of property, and the designation of the trust should be specially observed.

IN MEMORIAM.

JESSE LINDELL JANUARY.

The beautiful dies not. In realms of morn,
Where Truth and Wisdom have their dwelling place,
And sink foundations deep in lasting light,
The foe her being hath,—and often dwells
Beside their portals for their angel guide.

What though the frosts of Time may touch the green
Or flow'ry plains of all her Eden-lands,
And rosy wreaths, and blooming woods and bowers,
Yet, Beauty's spirit-touch embalmeth all
In Immortality so fair, we say,
Behold how good! Behold there is no death!

So Beauty crowned thee, in thy prime, O rare
And noble one! She wove the newless veil
That deck'd the presence chamber of thy soul;
And, evil, with its darken'd train touched not Thy spirit that knew all of loveliness.

They tell me Death hath shut the door of life,
That only echo in the silence gives
Reply to the tearful, calling voice of Love;
That, as yon cloud on evening's sunset tide
Thyself hath vanished to a vast Unknown.
Of this I'm sure,—thy perfect heart and mind,
Where'er thy paths may be, are luminous
In concourse high with the Immortals grand,
Who walk the paths of light throughout all time,
Or charioted by Beauty evermore.

MOTHER AFTER ALL.—Col. Ethan Allen was a bold officer of the American revolution. He could face the enemies of his country with the most undaunted bravery, and in the field of battle he never shrunk from danger. But he was an opposer to Christianity, and glorified in the character of an infidel. His wife, however, was a pious woman, and taught her children in the ways of piety, while he told them it was a delusion. But there was an hour coming when Col. Allen's confidence in his own sentiments would be closely tried.

A beloved daughter was taken sick—he received a message that she was dying; he hastened to her bed-side, anxious to hear her dying words.

"Father," said she, I am about to die: shall I believe in the principles which you have taught me, or shall I believe what my mother has taught me?"

This was an affecting scene. The intrepid Colonel became extremely agitated, his chin quivered, his whole frame shook; and after waiting a few moments, he replied, "Believe as your mother has taught you."

—In New York city the proportion of Methodists to the entire population in 34 years has fallen from one in 64 to one in 104. The profits of the organ, the Advocate, had been $63,000 for the last year.

"GENELLI," 923 Olive street, have raised quite an excitement in reducing cabinets to half price. The work is the best in the city.

LADIES can obtain a package of "Silk Waste," convenient in making Crazy Quilts, etc., by sending their address and a 3-cent stamp to BROWNING & COYLE, 521 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo.

THE article in our July issue, entitled "A Churchman with a Capital C," should have been credited to "How to Behave in the Parish."

BOOK NOTICES.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for August opens with a very spirited discussion of the subject of "Moral Instruction in the Public Schools," by the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton, who offers a practical scheme for conveying ethical instruction without reference to religious tenets, and the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, who maintains that the Bible must be made the basis of all moral teaching. Henry D. Lloyd exposes the tricks and frauds of speculation in grain, which operates to make bread dear, and maintains that they should be repressed by law, as being flagrantly in opposition to public policy. "Woman in Politics," by ex-Surgeon General Wm. A. Hammond, is a caustic discussion of certain facts of nervous organization which in his opinion render the female sex unfitted for participation in public affairs. Hon. Francis A. Walker reviews "Henry George's Social Fallacies." The evils resulting from "Crude Methods of Legislation," both national and State, are pointed out by Simon Sterne, who advocates the adoption of certain rules of legislative procedure which, in English practice, have been found to serve as an effectual barrier, both against lobbying and against the mischief of ill-considered law-making. Charles F. Wingate writes of "The Unsanitary Homes of the Rich," and there is a joint discussion of "Science and Prayer," by President Galusha Anderson and Thaddeus B. Wakeman. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and for sale by booksellers generally. Henry D. Lloyd will describe in the next number the methods employed by speculators in grain, and will show how they operate to make bread dear.

THE DISEASE OF MEMORY. By Th. Ribot. No. 46 of the "Library of Science." Price 15 cents, post paid. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher. 20 Lafayette Place, New York.

A profoundly interesting work, full of curious facts. But it is more than that: it is a philosophical study of the phenomena of memory as exhibited in sundry forms of mental disease. It offers a scientific explanation of many abnormal conditions of memory which from time immemorial have puzzled students of mental science. The book will be read with interest by all who believe that "the proper study of mankind is man."

In keeping with its midsummer holiday character, the August CENTURY contains an unusual number of short stories and striking illustrations, as well as poems and articles adapted to summer reading. The number offers, in addition to the most entertaining part yet given of Mr. Howell's 'A Woman's Reason,' the first part of a stirring romance called 'The Bread winners,' which will run through six numbers of the magazine. The scene of the story will be easily recognized as a flourishing city on Lake Erie. It is anonymous to the editor, as well as to the readers of the magazine, the author's dealings with the editor having been carried on through a third person. Humor is the characteristic of the short stories, which comprise 'The New Silk Dress Story,' 'The New Minister's Great Opportunity,' and another group of Joel Chandler Harris's 'Nights with Uncle Remus.' The frontispiece, and an admirable essay by Henry James, have to do with the leading French novelist of the day, Alphonse Daudet,—whom Mr. James places at the head of living writers of fiction. G. W. Prothero contributes an art essay, richly illustrated by engravings of ideal pictures and portraits, upon the works of 'Mr. Watts at the Grosvenor Gallery.' John Burroughs has an admiring and judicious word to say of 'Carlyle,' apropos of the reminiscences and letters, including those of Mrs. Carlyle.

'Bob White, the Game Bird of America,' is the subject of the first illustrated article. A humorously illustrated article is Robert Adams, Jr.'s description of 'The Oldest Club in America,' the Philadelphia Fishing Association, known as the State in Schuylkill, which resembles the London Beefsteak Club. The poetry of the number includes five 'Songs of the Sea,' by different writers, accompanied by a full-page engraving.

ST. NICHOLAS for August. August is the great holiday month, and the August St. Nicholas is essentially a holiday number, taking its readers away from the great cities to the mountains and seashore, by the brooks and the breakers.

Edwin Lassetter Byanar contributes an amusing and capital illustrated story, entitled 'Our Special Artist,' which deals with the varied experience and laughable failures of a boy who undertakes amateur photography at a military camp and in a trip through the mountains of Virginia.

A bright, amusing, and exciting sea story is the 'Lady of the Chingachgook,' which tells how a young girl took possession of a yacht, to the owner's excessive annoyance, and helped him win a race, to his exceeding delight.

Maurice Thompson, in the 'Work and Play Department,' has a seasonable paper on 'Fly-fishing for Black Bass,' which he writes for the double purpose of advocating fly fishing as a sport for boys and girls, and of putting forward the claims of the naturally diffident black bass as a game fish and rival of the trout.

There is also an excellent story for girls called 'Zintha's Fortune,' which tells of the struggles and ultimate success of a young prairie maiden in her efforts to find her father. J. T. Trowbridge takes the 'Tinkham Brothers' through a thrilling midnight attack on their 'Tide-mill.'

WINTER IN INDIA.—By the Rt. Hon. W. E. Baxter, M. P. This is the last, and the best, of a number of charming books of travel by the Hon. Mr. Baxter, who took many journeys in Europe, Asia, Africa and America. By the aid of this book we can accompany him through his winter tour in India. He introduces us to strange scenes, curious incidents peculiar alone to India; and obtains for us a vast fund of information and facts concerning a country which is likely to call upon itself more notice from the world than any other country on earth. Mr. Baxter tells his thrilling story in such a pure, simple style that readers of all ages will alike enjoy it. His position as an English statesman is a guarantee of the reliability of its every statement. Published in Funk & Wagnall's Standard Library. Price 15 cents.

We have received from John B. Alden, 18 Vesey street, New York, nice neatly bound little volumes, in uniform sage green cloth, in good paper and type. The prices named are with postage paid: Demosthenes, by W. J. Brodribb, 30 cents; Aristotle, by Sir Alex. THE AUGUST WIDE AWAKE is a notably beautiful issue, evidently intended to add to the delights of the summer vacation days for both children and adults. It opens with a deliciously piquant frontispiece, called 'The Button Charm,' and following comes a piquant story of 'The Runaway Rings.' There is another story, the wit and sly humor of which render it delightful for piazza reading aloud. It is entitled simply 'Toby.' Particularly adapted for the pleasure of summer idlers is 'A Castle in Spain,' by the same author, a long fanciful ballad, accompanied with eight full-page drawings, in which he quite transcends all his previous work in this line. 'The Lights of Paris' is another well-illustrated contribution. It is written by Isabel Smithton, and the fourteen drawings for it were made by Bodfish in Paris, and show many curious old street lamps and lanterns, as well as fine engravings of Paris by gaslight and electric light. The fifth installment of the Picture Serial, 'Through Spain on Donkey-Back,' is another strong attraction of the number, and 'Surf Bathing at Newport,' 'A Summer Sketching Club,' and Barnes' picturesque drawing, 'Boy Bishop,' and Taylor's beautiful full-page illustration for Adelaide Procter's 'Lost Chord,' are among the other pictorial enjoyments of the number. $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

SCOTTISH CHARACTERISTICS. By Paxton Hood. He must be a bold man who will undertake to portray the characteristics of a Scotchman. He has generally been found too hard a case, one who could always hold his own against all comers, and finally turn the laugh upon his critics. Johnson, who hated Scotchmen, was no match for the Scot's dry sarcasm. Johnson, in his dictionary, in defining the meaning of oatmeal, said: "Food for horses and Scotchmen." And the Scotchman who saw it wrote on the margin: "Were there ever such horses, were there ever such men!" If, however, the work is to be done at all, there is not a man in Great Britain who is so well fitted for the task as Paxton Hood. No man knows them better. He was near enough to them to know them intimately; he was far enough away to be able to take in their grand proportions of character. His wit, humor, sarcasm, which abound in all his writings, are apparently concentrated in this. Some of the anecdotes we have seen before, but Mr. Hood tells them in such a quaint way that we find a new interest in them. The old as well as the young will be amused and greatly edified. Published in Funk & Wagnall's Standard Library. Price, 25 cents.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE." Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS." River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD." 520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blisters, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Rev. Dr. McCosh, of Princeton College, tells a story of a negro who prayed earnestly that he and his colored brethren might be preserved from their upstet'n' sins. "Brudder," said one of his friends, at the close of the meeting, "you ain't got the hang ob dat ar word. It's besettin', not upstet'n'." "Brudder," replied the other, "if that's so, it's so; but I was prayin' de Lord to save us from de sin ob 'toxication, an' ef dat ain't an upstet'n' sin, I dunno what am."

—A well known Bishop, eminent in his position and in personal dignity, was once quartered upon the wealthiest resident of a certain village, whose wife chanced to be away from home. The Bishop, with grim humor, frequently complains of being put into the spare room, which is opened especially for him and the encouragement of rheumatism. He is withal a slim man, and on this occasion, when his host inquired how he had slept, and hoped he had passed an agreeable night, he answered, with some vehemence: "No I did not. I passed a very disagreeable night, indeed!" The Bishop departed, and when the wife of his host returned she naturally inquired who had been to the house in her absence. "Bishop P——," said the husband. "Bishop P——!" exclaimed the good woman. "And where did you put him to sleep?" "In the spare bed of course." "In the spare bed!" shrieked the horrified matron. "Why, I put all the silverware under the mattress before I went away!"

—Many years ago Dr. Newman of Oxford said, "I only lament your absence from religious ordinances, I do not complain of it. But perhaps, while one is busy with his farm, and another with his merchandise, and therefore cannot come, the vacant aisles are filled with invisible angels, and the discouraged pastor may, with the spiritual eye of faith, be conscious of their presence whose faces see God."

—"CAN'T WE DO SOMETHING?"—A missionary in Africa had established a school for colored children, which gave him much joy, for they loved the Saviour. One day he told them that there were still a great many idolaters in the world, who did not know the Lord Jesus Christ, and that there were societies in England, Germany, and France which sent missionaries to these poor pagans. The little colored children then said—

"And cannot we do something, also?" "Reflect upon it," replied the missionary; "and when you have found out some way of contributing to this good work, you may come and tell me."

These poor children racked their brains to discover how they could obtain something to give: for you know that they have no parents or friends who are rich enough to have a little money occasionally, and that there are many in Africa who do not know what a piece of money is.

One morning they came to the school full of joy, and said to the missionary—

"We wish to form a little juvenile missionary society."

"That is very well," said the master; but what will you give for missions?"

The eldest answered—

"We have resolved to form a society like grown up persons, and each of us will oblige himself to collect as much money as he can without begging. As for those boys of us who are largest and strongest, we will go into the woods to find bark, and we will carry it to the tanner, who has promised to pay us a florin for each load."

Another child interrupted him and said—"And as for the rest of us we will gather resinous gum, and will sell it for more than four shillings a pound."

"And we," exclaimed the smallest children, "will carry ashes and sell them to the soap-maker."

Then the girls came, and some of them said—

"We will collect locks of wool, and we will sell them."

Others said—

"We will get some hens and sell the eggs and the chickens."

The little colored children did not rest satisfied with making promises. They executed their plan without neglecting school; and at the end of a year they held a meeting, under the direction of a missionary, and carefully paid over to him all which they had raised. And how much do you think they put into his hand? More than ten pounds.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

The Shadow Hanging over New York City and the Entire Country—A Tribune Opinion.

The nation has been horrified at the burning of a Milwaukee hotel, whereby over seventy lives were lost. This event carried terror because it was sudden and appalling; but had the same disastrous results to life and limb come silently they would have been unnoticed, not only by the people of the land but also by the very community in which they occurred. Fatal events of a far worse nature have taken place in this very city, but they have attracted no attention, nor would they now did not the Bureau of Vital Statistics bring them to our notice. "Figures do not lie," whatever else may be uncertain and the report on the deaths of this city is a startling comment on its life. During the past year the enormous increase of certain maladies is simply appalling. While the total number of deaths has diminished and the death rate on most diseases has decreased still it is far greater in one or two serious disorders than was ever known before. More people died in the city of New York in 1882 from Bright's disease of the kidneys, than from diphtheria, small pox and typhoid fever all combined! This scarcely seems possible but it is true and when it is remembered that less than one-third the actual deaths from Bright's disease are really reported as such, the ravages of the malady can be partially understood.

The immediate query which every reader will make upon such a revelation of facts is: What causes this increase? This is a difficult question to answer. The nature of the climate, the habits of life, the adulteration of foods and liquors, all undoubtedly contribute; but no immediate cause can be certainly assigned. Often before the victim knows it the disease has begun. Its approaches are so stealthy and its symptoms so obscure that they cannot be definitely foreseen and are only known by their effects. Any kidney disorder, however slight, is the first state of Bright's disease. But it is seldom that kidney disorders can be detected. They do not have any certain symptoms. Mysterious weariness; an unusual appetite; periodical headaches; occasional nausea; uncertain pains; loss of vigor; lack of nerve power; irregularity of the heart; disordered daily habits; imperfect digestion—all these and many other symptoms are the indications of kidney disorder even though there may be no pain in the region of the kidneys or in that portion of the body. The serious nature of these troubles may be understood from the fact that Bright's disease is as certain to follow diseased kidneys as decomposition follows death.

It is high time that the doctors in this land who have been unable to control kidney troubles, should be aroused and compelled to find some remedy, or acknowledge one already found. The suffering public needs help and cannot await the tardy action of any hair-splitting code or incorrectly formulated theories. If the medical world has no certain remedy for this terrible disease let them acknowledge it and seek for one outside the pale of their profession. For the discovery of this remedy and for its application to this disease, the people of the whole land; not only those who have friends in danger are earnestly and longingly looking.

The above quotation from the New York Tribune is causing considerable commotion, as it seems to lift the cover from a subject that has become of national importance. The alarming increase of kidney diseases; their insidious beginnings and frightful endings and the acknowledged inability of physicians to successfully cope with them may well awaken the greatest dread of every one who has the slightest symptoms. It is fortunate, however, that the surest relief is often found where, possibly, least expected, and that there is a specific for the evils above described we have come to fully believe. Within the past two years we have frequently seen statements of parties claiming to have been cured of serious kidney troubles even after hope had been abandoned; but in common with most people we have discredited them. Quite recently, however, a number of prominent and well-known men have come out voluntarily and stated over their signatures that they were completely cured by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Most people have been aware that this medicine has an unusual standing and one entitling it to be classed above proprietary articles generally; but that it had accomplished so much in checking the ravages of kidney disease is not so generally known. Its great worth has been shown not only by the cures it has effected, but also because a number of base imitations have appeared in the market, fraudulently claiming the valuable qualities of the original Safe Cure. If it were not valuable, it would not be imitated.

The above may seem like an ultra endorsement of a popular remedy but it is not one whit stronger than the facts admit. What ever assists the world toward health and consequent happiness, should receive the hearty endorsement of the press and all friends of humanity. It is on precisely this principle that the foregoing statement is made and it merits the careful consideration of every thinking reader.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845," and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872".

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. Louis, Mo.

THE Bishop would be glad if anyone having an extra copy of the Churchman of Aug. 30th, would let him have it. Also any copies which could be spared of the Bishop's Address of 1880, put forth in a separate pamphlet, "Some Helps and Hindrances to Church Work."

THE LIBRARY.

A clergyman recently gave to the Bishop, for the Diocesan Library, his file of the Churchman for a number of years. In all of the years there are some numbers wanting. If there are any persons in the Diocese who are not preserving their files, could spare any of the following numbers, in order to complete the set for the library of the Diocese, he would be greatly obliged.

The numbers wanting are as follows: 1876: July 1, 22, 29, August 26, Oct. 7; 1877: July 14, Sept. 22, Dec. 22; 1878: July 6, 13, Aug. 10, Oct. 26; 1879: Jan. 25, Feb. 1, March 22, April 5, 26, June 28, July 12, 26, Aug. 16, 23, Sept. 13, 27, Oct. 4, 25, Nov. 1, 15, 22, 29, Dec. 13; 1880: Feb. 28, April 24, June 5, July 3, Sept. 25, Oct. 2; 1881: March 19, June 11, 25, July 16, Aug. 27, Sept. 3, 17, Oct. 1, 15, 22, 29, Nov. 5, 12, 19, 26, Dec. 3, 10, 24; 1882: Jan. 7, 14, 21, 28, Feb. 4, 11; March 4, 11, 25; April 22, 29; May 6, June 10, July 29, Sept. 16, Nov. 4, 11, 18, 25, Dec. 2, 9, 16, 23.

Before sending, will persons kindly notify the Bishop which numbers they can send, in order that duplicates may not be forwarded. He will then inform the persons which to send. The Bishop has duplicates of about half the number of the Churchman for 1883, which he will send to any one who is desirous of making up a set of this journal for last year.

A PARISH EXPERIENCE.

Here is a situation in parish matters not infrequently recurring, and always troublesome. During the incumbency of a rector, what from the slackness of the people and collector, and what from the cruel amiability of the minister, there has been allowed to gather an arrearage. The persons owing it have moved away, or else forgotten and ignored it, as being an old claim. The money, however, has to be raised in order to settle up, and the money is borrowed and a note given at the bank, which draws interest night and day, Sundays and week days, wet Sundays as well as pleasant.

Another minister comes, and after a time finds that a part of the income of the parish is mortgaged to pay past dues which ought to have been met at the time. He has to raise double salaries. This of course tells on his income, and on his spirits and hopefulness in work.

Each parish has its individuality, its strong points and its weaknesses, its places of deep spirituality, and its shoals where every succeeding rector first strikes bottom, and finds troublesome steering. The new incumbent does not know these, and may also have weaknesses and peculiarities, as who has not? He does not naturally take to visiting, let us say; he likes study and his sermons show it. The complaining—it is at the start no more than a whisper—comes to the warden. He does not like to make a suggestion to the rector, as it may be taken amiss; and, indeed, why should he bell the cat, since the criticism is not his? Other things get added on, as is often the case. The trouble of the old debt, and the difficulty of raising it along with keeping up present payments comes in.

When the Bishop comes, he feels in the air that something is wrong, not from anything that is said, so much as in what is not said. The congregations are not keeping up; the confirmation class shows that little new ground has been gained; the parish is not held together and worked with any strong will. The Bishop suggests quietly to the clergyman that it would be better if he could see his people more, and thus gain their hearts. The minister perhaps thinks he knows more than the Bishop does.

Matters go on; the minister keeps himself more to himself, as he knows there is trouble which he cannot altogether grasp, and his books are his pleasantest companions. This does not help the trouble. The pledged income falls off. Persons declare that if they are not worth being visited, they will not come to Church. The ladies' society may work off the old debt at the bank; but the vestry let another accumulate, in salary left uncollected, or advanced by the treasurer, sometimes not kindly, and only to save himself the trouble of collecting, and knowing that he will get it back somehow; and sometimes because of the gruffness which he has met with from parishioners, as though it were a private matter of his own.

After a while the difficulties culminate, and the rector resigns the parish in a bad way, and another debt in bank. When such a case is put down, we can see where the several mistakes were made. Debts should not be made. The warden should kindly and bravely and frankly advise with the rector before troubles grow incurable. The rector will, if he is wise, take the counsel of a friend, and not think him an enemy because of suggestions made.

THE SERMON.

Into however many other forms of activity a clergyman's time may be put, a very large portion of it must ever be devoted to the thought about and preparation for the work of preaching. This would be indicated by the prominent mention which this duty has in the Pastoral Epistles of St. Paul, as well as in other parts of the New Testament. It is the point at which he comes in contact with the largest number of his people under circumstances conducive to devout attention, and candid heed. It is the means by which he brings his wider learning and matured thought, and strong convictions to bear upon the relaxed life and dulled consciences of those over whom he has been placed in the Lord.

No disparagement need be placed by this upon any other function of the ministry. All others should, according to their value, receive their full attention, and the results of the sermon are in part dependant upon the just emphasis which should be laid upon the other duties to be done. At the same time no impression concerning the dominant feature or calling of the minister of Christ, which we gain from the original sketch of delineation of it, as given by our Lord or His apostles can fail to present it as above all an office in which preaching is to be the honored and controlling work. Above all things else he is to be the herald of his Lord, proclaiming the message and good news of God's will, as made known in Christ.

In order to efficiency in this, all that will contribute to the best success is worth the while. Every natural power should be cultivated, all prejudicial habits put aside; all helps in the matter of clear and impressive, and graceful delivery should be sought for. All reading should be carried on with this in view, to make it serve by fact and reference and illustration to the greater worth and success of this constant duty. On the one side the obligation is a constant drain and strain on a clergyman's vitality and mental wealth; but on the other hand it is a glorious, exhilarating and coveted means by which he can bring his own religious enthusiasm and hopefulness in contact with the indifference and worldliness of his people, in order to enkindle them to better action.

For many years the writer of this kept note books, in which references were constantly stored up, to passages in books which he possessed, and striking quotations made from works which he did not own, and illustrations and reflections; and all these brought to bear on passages of scripture, or doctrine, or subjects likely to form the themes of sermons. When then, either from the lessons of the day, or the thought of the season any of these topics was chosen, there was a mass of digested material to begin with at once available. When the pressure of pulpit duty is constant, this help from having made every moment of reading available on the instant, is a vast relief.

It is generally well to choose early the subjects of the next Sunday's sermons. The writer generally had an idea on Sunday night, when the mind was excited with the work of the day, what the theme would be for the next Sunday, although modifications would often come in, and although, too, the mind might be brooding, and the thoughts getting into shape days before pen was actually put to paper. It is wise not to let small interruptions stop the work of composition, as then the mind often with difficulty comes back to the point where the work had been left off. The sermon should not be postponed until the end of the week. The work on it is by no means ended when it is written.

If the sermon is delivered with the manuscript, the minister should have become thoroughly familiar with it. The paper is, all things being equal, a barrier at the best. It becomes intolerable when the clergyman's eyes are glued to it, or when he stumbles over the writing like a blundering schoolboy. There ought to be freedom and ease.

A minister ought to begin by writing; if he does not do this at first, he will never learn, and will be likely to have a diffuse slovenly style. After he has by writing gained a close, clear style, then he ought more and more to familiarize himself with speaking with full preparation, but without the manuscript. A naturally fluent manner is one of the worst endowments a minister can have. It takes from him the motive for application and industry, and he is likely to pass the prime of his success very early.

One of our Bishops thinks that the modern style of having the little lecterns in our churches now, instead of the old formal pulpits, from which sermons are to be delivered, is the occasion of the little talks, the sermonettes, the insufficient preparation of our day. It implied something to get up with gowns and band, into the former wine-glass pulpit; a man must have something to say. When he only steps to the lectern, the idea is that he can easily apologize to himself for a thin and poorly digested address. There probably is something in this, which has to be steadily resisted, as many other relaxing tendencies are to be resisted, by keeping before one's self the noble purpose for which the function was designed, and the great results which it has wrought.

The noblest forms of human composition have had deliverance from the pulpit; the loftiest motives which control human conduct and dignify life are those which are its enduring and reiterated themes. The grandest results in instantly arresting evil, in revealing to one's self the insidious deceptions of one's own heart, in firing the passions and purposes to self-sacrifice and brave endeavor, have been accomplished in the brief hour in which the preacher has sway over the hearts and intelligence of his people, amid the solemnizing impressions of divine service.

A form of duty, a mode of activity, which has accomplished, and therefore can still accomplish this, is not to be made little of. The preacher, as he speaks has an auxiliary in the heart which he addresses. There are voices which rise to take up the theme, and re-echo and affirm its truth. The Holy Spirit is aiding the weak human speech. One may do his best, therefore, and have hope and courage.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. W. H. Goodisson, who has had charge of Grace church, Brookfield, has accepted a duty in the Diocese of Quincy.

—The Bishop has been requested by the Ecclesiastical Authority of the Diocese of Nebraska, to visit Omaha for the purpose of ordaining three persons to the priesthood.

—Application has been made to the Bishop for his approval of the organization of a mission in St. Joseph for the colored people, who have recently been ministered to by the Rev. John Green of Omaha. He has gathered some of the best elements of his race into the congregation which has been formed, and they have pledged an amount towards their clergyman's salary.

—The Rev. Rev. J. B. Revett has resigned the rectorship of Grace church, Chillicothe, taking effect on the 1st inst., and has removed to the Diocese of Western Michigan.

—We regret to learn that the Rev. Dr. Runcie, who fell sick during his visit to Booneville, was for a month after very ill, and confined to his bed with malarial typhoid fever, and unable for weeks to do any duty. The sickness was caused by work and exposure to the heat. He was visited during the time of his sickness by his old friends on the Standing Committee of Indiana, the Rev. Drs. Wakefield and Stringfellow, Dr. Spaulding of Milwaukee, and Mr. Leonard of Atchison, so that his church was not closed a single Sunday. Dr. Runcie had been giving his Sunday evenings to Savannah, where the prospects became very encouraging.

—The advancement of the Rev. Mr. Goodisson to Priests' Orders, which had been set for the 11th inst., at Monroe City, was deferred, as the Bishop of Quincy preferred that the service should be in Mr. Goodisson's future Diocese, and the parish Osco, where he is to labor.

—The Bishop of the Diocese was requested to act on the occasion of the formal opening of the St. Louis Exposition Building, on the 3d instant, and offer the invocation. The exercises, including addresses from Senators Vest and Cockrell, General Sherman, Mayor Ewing, and others took place on a stand erected on the Olive street front, the whole of which was magnificently illuminated by hundreds of gas jets with colored globes. The whole pageant, with the magnificent Trades Procession, was a fit setting in which should be placed the completion of the vast Exposition Building. Within a few months the large park has disappeared, and in its place has risen this graceful structure, of extraordinary size and capacity for all the varied purposes had in view. Hundreds of thousands of persons crowded the line of the procession.

—It is noteworthy how with the erection of the Exposition building opposite and the great tobacco factory on the next square a few months before, and the putting up of the hotel on Olive and Thirteenth, how the relative size of Christ church has become reduced. It used to be the main feature for squares, amid the smaller buildings, and the park space in front; now it is overtopped and shut in on every side. It is a pity that its beauty and proportions should thus be hidden away. For months also now access to the church has been almost impossible with the streets blocked up with rubbish and building material. There will be more quiet and a settled condition of things before the fall is over.

—The Rev. Dr. Schuyler was to sail from Liverpool on the Arizona, to return to this country, and will have arrived in St. Louis soon after the appearance of this number.

—The services that had been laid out to be held at Monroe City on the 10th, 11th, and 12th inst., were recalled, and another group of services there will be at some time hereafter announced.

—The Bishop visited Salem, the County Seat of Dent County, on Sunday, 7th inst., preparation for which had been made for weeks before, although they have had no services since the Bishop was there last winter. The Presbyterian church was kindly offered for the services, and the music was perfectly rendered throughout. The day was fearfully warm, but the congregations were full, and at night the church was so densely packed that many had to stand and go away. In the evening before the Bishop met persons for instruction. On Sunday morning adult baptism was administered, and at night five persons were confirmed.

—The Rev. Mr. Betts was away for three weeks in August, and went so far East as Maine. The Rev. Mr. Mason returned on the 4th, after an absence of two months. His service was maintained by Mr. Andrew Leslie, and the Holy Communion by the Rev. Mr. Betts. The Rev. Mr. Newton will return for service next Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Robert has been in the city all summer. The Rev. Mr. Sylvester will take a vacation after Dr. Schuyler returns. The Rev. Mr. Greene has been in the city except for one Sunday, and reports very excellent congregations throughout. The Rev. Dr. Ingraham was away early for three weeks in Wisconsin. The Rev. Mr. Speirs is back from a visit to Canada. The Rev. Mr. Reed arrived in this city from Europe on the 4th, his visit made a little shorter by the sickness of his child during the summer, which however is better now. He reports having had a most delightful time. He did not go on the Continent.

—The Sister's school opened on the 10th, the Rev. Messrs. Greene, Sylvester and Reed being present with the Bishop; who made an address to the children. Besides the pupils whose faces at coming together were bright, in spite of the intense heat, there were a number of the old scholars there.

—The Bishop has been elected a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society of Boston, and of the Long Island Historical Society.

—Under the pastoral care of Rev. Mr. Gay, the Episcopal Church has revived very much, fair congregations now meeting there regularly. The church has been supplied with a new set of hymnals and prayer books, two or more for each pew. The occasion gave Rev. Mr. Gay an opportunity to inform the members and many others minutely concerning the adoption and history of the Episcopal prayer book, which has been several times revised but never altered. The text was from II. Timothy, "Hold fast to the form of sound words." With these words for a base, an instructive and a concise discourse in favor of the primitive form was made. In retaining the old forms the identity of the worship and the Church is insured. The prayer book is now 335 years old, and has a firmer hold with the clergy and members than ever.—[Moberly Paper.]

—The Rev. Mr. Scheetz, assisted in his work in this respect by the Rev. Dr. Berkeley is making the whole country about him fruitful with good works. Services are being established in new places, and in others where they have been held some time, they have been organized and put on a more efficient footing. At St. Paul's Station, and Eureka, chapels of Grace church, Kirkwood, have within a year been consecrated; services have been started at Baldwin. During the summer Dr. Berkeley has given services also to Afton.

—The Rev. Mr. Wolcott has resigned his position as Assistant Minister of St. Mary's church, Kansas City. There is, we are sorry to notice, a very acrimonious dispute between the Rector and a portion of the vestry being prosecuted in the secular papers of the city.

—The Hebrew-Christian school, which was conducted last year by Miss Mamreoff, was resumed on the 1st of September with twenty-five Jewish children in it.

—The Rev. Mr. Chesnutt and family, who was away at his home in Kentucky for a month, returned on the 4th, in good health to resume his work.

—The Bishop's family, which was in Madison, Wis., for the months of July and August, returned to the city on the 3d. The Bishop was there from time to time, including nearly all the month of August, and returned at the same time to the Diocese.

CANON ABOUT DIFFERENCES.

The request has been several times made for an explanation about the general canons of the Church on a subject, on which a reading of the following, Title II, Canon 4, § 11 of the Digest, page 98, would give the requisite information:

"In case any urgent reason or reasons should occasion a wish in a rector or minister, or in the Parish committed to his charge, to bring about a separation, and a dissolution of all pastoral relation between such minister and Parish, and the parties be not agreed in respect of such separation and dissolution, notice of such desire and disagreement may be given by either party, to the Ecclesiastical Authority of the Diocese in writing. And in case of any difference between the minister and Parish or Vestry as aforesaid, which may not be satisfactorily settled by the goodly judgment of the Bishop alone, or which he may decline to consider without counsel, the Bishop, acting with the advice and consent of the Standing Committee of the Diocese, or with that of the Presbyters only of said Standing Committee (if both parties assent to such limitation in writing), shall be the ultimate arbiter and judge; and refusal to comply with the arbitration and judgment on the part of the minister aforesaid, shall not work a continuance of lawful and canonical rectorship, or settlement beyond the date fixed, conditionally or otherwise, for its termination by such arbitration and judgment, should such termination be recommended or required; but such pastoral connexion shall, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, cease and terminate as therein required. But such refusal shall subject the minister so refusing to inhibition by the Bishop aforesaid from all ministerial offices and functions within the Diocese; and such refusal on the part of a parish shall disqualify it from representation in the Convention of the Diocese until it shall have been declared by the Ecclesiastical Authority to have given satisfactory guarantees for the acceptance of and compliance with the arbitration and judgment."

SOUTH CENTRAL MISSOURI.

A Church woman, Mrs. S. D. Keller, has recently removed from Illinois to Thayer, on the Memphis & Fort Scott Railroad, in Oregon County, near the Southern line of the State, and has started a Sunday-school, which has now in it 75 members. The nearest clergyman is at Springfield, more than a hundred miles away, and we have not yet had any services on the line of this road, which has just been opened. Mrs. Keller desires any second-hand Sunday-school books or papers, or school-books for teaching reading and spelling, as knowledge about this is needed. The Bishop has sent some Bibles and prayer books. Mrs. Keller's former pastor in Illinois has helped her school otherwise; but she would be glad of help in the manner above indicated.

Perhaps it might be of interest to give an idea of the section, which it will be remembered is one of the most remote and sterile, and sparsely settled, and little advanced parts of the State, very near the Arkansas line.

"I did not know until I came here, that such dense ignorance existed in our free country. Nine-tenths of these children never heard of the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments or the Golden Rule, and as to Creeds and Holy Days, these things are all new to them. That the people are wicked and depraved is not a strange fact, under existing circumstances. But I find them intelligent and willing to learn. I was too poor to help them much, and I wrote to my former pastor, he, being a true Christian gentleman, helped me all he could by sending me Lessons and a book of Sermons to read. But I think we need Catechisms of the simplest form for these little ones, and prayer books and papers also, for those who can read. These I mention are needed badly in the Sunday-school; in the day school where I teach, also, we need primers, spellers and anything in the way of school books that you can send us. I have a few advanced pupils, but all learn very fast.

"I sincerely wish I could help these people without asking for aid, for begging is something new to me, and I presume I go about it very awkwardly.

"This work fills my heart and I have no one near to sympathize with me or help me carry it out as it should be done.

"If your Reverence can send us anything in the way of Bibles, second hand books and papers, and Hymnals and Catechisms, I shall be very grateful. And any suggestions from you I will humbly follow. I feel out of place as Sunday-school Superintendent, and do not care to read sermons to my school, but it tries me to read them to old people for I also need a teacher and guide."

THE REV. DR. SCHUYLER.

COLOGNE, July 2, 1884.

My Dear Bishop:

I closed my last letter at Milan. We were then just starting on our way for Switzerland. The reports of the spread of the cholera were exciting some uneasiness, and we were anxious to get into Switzerland for fear we might be kept out by quarantine. Many were prevented from getting into Italy by quarantine, which was established the very day we got out of it. Lake Maggiore was in our course, and it was a delightful relief to get upon its bright green waters, and breathe the fresh pure air, unpolluted with dust. There is nothing particularly striking about the scenery. There are many beautiful country seats on its banks, and one near Pallanza, where we spent the night, which was charming in its architectural features, in its spacious grounds, and in all its arrangements. It is owned by an English gentleman, a distinguished engineer, who had grown wealthy by a residence in India, and who had come here to spend the remainder of his days in rational enjoyment, and in doing good. He has a beautiful little chapel on his grounds, with a chaplain and daily prayer, leading the singing himself, and taking part in the Sunday School, and every good work. He is known throughout that region as a liberal, high minded, consistent Christian man. Queen Victoria made him a visit, and spent several days with him. Such an example is worthy of all imitation, and is a just tribute to the Christian Faith. I learned this from an Englishman on board, who was evidently not a Churchman, or a religious man, but who had the sincerity and manliness to acknowledge the power of Christianity when it was so evidently exemplified. And, by the way, this Englishman was a character not unworthy of study. He was an old bachelor of some sixty years, and had traveled all over the world; had been twice to California, and had passed through our country, and in many respects his insular prejudices had been overcome. But he was an old bachelor, and for the information of my female readers, if not for their amusement, I must repeat one of his philosophical reflections essentially in his own words. And I ought first to say, that he was traveling with two young Italian ladies who had been put under his charge at Florence. He said: "The longer one lives, the more one is convinced that there are many incomprehensible things in this life; but of all the incomprehensible things, the most incomprehensible are women. I never understood the women in my own country, but these," alluding to his traveling companions, "are hopelessly perplexing."

We spent the night at Pallanza, which is a place of summer resort for pleasure seekers, and has two fine large hotels. Within sight are the famous islands of the Prince of Borromean, with his palace, and the most beautiful gardens, where, it is said, Napoleon Bonaparte delighted to recreate. I took an early row on the lake which is surrounded by majestic mountains, crowding in some places on its shores, and rising to an immense height in the back ground. It was very quiet with scarcely a breath of air, and the tolling of the bell, calling to Mass, comes to us as we are floating on the water, to remind us that we owe our morning's thanksgiving to our Heavenly Father for His watchful Providence and loving care.

At 10 a.m. we started to go over the Simplon Pass. We rode for several hours through the valley over a nearly level road, with the wind at our back keeping the dust with us, and a hot sun pouring down upon us. We were fortunate, the diligence being full, in having a carriage to ourselves. But the drive was tedious, and many of the passengers began to complain, thinking they had been duped, and that the much talked of Pass was a fraud. But after awhile we began to ascend, and then the grandeur of the scene gradually grew upon us, until all were wrapt in amazement and awe. Exclamations burst forth from every quarter, and words could not be found to give expression to the feelings of wonder which grew upon us with every change of view. We could look up through a narrow pass of rocks piled one upon another for thousands of feet, until they seemed to pierce the very heavens. We had seen the grand cathedral at Milan, and had asked in amazement "Can this be the work of man?" but now, we were looking upon masonry which only the Almighty hand could lay. And yet so lovingly had the Omnipotent Architect done His work, that he had intermingled the beautiful with the sublime, and in every nook and crevice in the rock where a little earth could lie, lovely flowers of every shade and hue were blooming. I gathered a bouquet in a very few moments that would shame the artistic ones of our florists. We made the descent of the mountain after dark, and I must confess I rode with some uneasiness, as we sat in the coupe of the diligence, and watched, by the light of the lamp, our four greys, as they would make a sudden turn around some projecting rock. We reached Brigue near midnight, wearied with the excitement, and the long drive, and were glad enough to retire to our comfortable beds. In the morning, when we arose, a grand sight burst upon us from our window. There stood before us a range of snow-capped mountains, with their hoary heads white with the frost of many ages, and they seemed so near that we could make them a morning trip, though in reality they are miles away. We are now in the valley of the Upper Rhone which empties into Lake Geneva, whither we took our course, spending one night at Vernayaz, which is a little hamlet with a fine hotel, and near by a beautiful waterfall, and a most remarkable gorge winding into the side of the mountain for a distance of half a mile, with singularly formed excavations, to one of which they have given the name of a church, and where the only mark of a church which I could find was, an alms box. I must say I had not charity enough to deposit my alms with the confidence that they would be well applied. We were on Lake Geneva at 12 m., and in spite of all the exaggerated descriptions I have heard of its beauty, I was not at all disappointed.

The color of the water is sui generis. I have never seen such a peculiar beautiful blue. All the other lakes have a different shade, and lack just what makes Geneva a gem in this respect.

We crossed over the upper part of the lake, passing by the old Castle of Chillon, full of terrible associations, and brought more generally into notice by what Byron has written of it. I did not care to examine its dark secrets. There are lovely villages, with landing places all along the banks, and running up the gentle slopes as far as the eye could reach, the richly cultivated vineyards. Though we have seen vineyards every where in Italy and Switzerland, and on the Rhine, we have nowhere else seen the grape grown in such abundance as in this vicinity.

To give some idea of the extent of its cultivation, it is stated in a volume published in London in 1879, that in the 22 cantons of the Swiss Confederation, the area of vine cultivation was increasing, there being nearly 100,000 acres of vineyards, about 2 per cent of the entire land, some of them over 3,000 feet above sea level, and the annual yield being over 30,000,000 of gallons of wine. And this was not enough for home consumption, and yet nowhere will you meet with a more temperate population.

We passed through a lovely country from Lausanne to Freiburg, where we stopped to hear the grand organ so celebrated for its power, and the "vox humana" stop. The church is open for an hour at 8 p.m., and the organ is played; admission, one franc. The organ has remarkable power, but the stop is a marvelous imitation of the human voice, and for the moment I was impressed with the idea that the organ was being accompanied by a choir of singers. There is a rival organ at Lucerne, which we heard the next week which has the same stop, as it seemed to me, hardly as perfect in its tone; but the organ was played with more skill, so that the imitation of a thunder storm with the rain was so perfect, that numbers of the audience were deceived, and were looking about to see if there was not a storm actually raging.

Lucerne is upon the lake of "The Four Cantons," and of this lake I think I may safely say for the mingled beauty and grandeur of its shores, it is unrivaled in all Switzerland, if not in the world. In the immediate vicinity of the town, the banks gently roll up to the waters edge, artistically improved, and covered with the most tasteful villas, while, at a little distance, there rises, a grand chain of mountains, with the dark head of old Pilatus frowning down upon you. We made the ascent of the Rhigi, a mountain on the shore, about an hour's sail from Lucerne, which rises between 3,000 and 4,000 feet above the level of the lake, and is now ascended by a railroad which creeps up its winding course often at an angle of 50 degrees. We were particularly fortunate, as the chief aim is to see the sun set and rise without a cloud, as it discloses a view of mountain and plain far as the eye, or the power of the telescope can reach.

We were aroused from our sleep by the sound of the mountain horn at 3 o'clock in the morning. I was in a dream, as near as I can remember, of home, and it was some time before I could realize where I was, or what was the object of the warning. But when thoroughly aroused it took but a few minutes to array myself in a presentable garb, and to hurry with the multitude of visitors up the steep ascent. Some came with a blanket wrapped around them despite the threatened fine of five francs, which had been announced, whether with authority or not I cannot say.

The sky was cloudless, and for nearly half an hour we watched with eager anxiety the approach of the god of day. At first we could discern the faint tints of the roseate heralds which betokened his coming, and as the light advanced, we could trace it by the revelation of one snow mountain after another, until a magnificent range hemmed in the horizon on the south, numbering among them such giants as the Menck, Eich Horn and Jung Frau. When the sun made his appearance it was at first by a brilliant point of light; and then we could trace his rising by the gradual expansion of the arc, until we had the half circle, and then gradually contracting until he had cleared the horizon and stood before us a ball of fire.

And now we turned to gaze around us, and such a scene; none but those who have looked upon it can conceive. We counted, as distinctly in view, eight lakes, numberless towns and villages, with wide expanse of fertile fields framed in by glorious mountains. The knoll upon which we stood was covered with people making their several comments, and all with expressions of amazement and delight. There was not one grumbler among the crowd, as if he had been unnecessarily disturbed in his slumbers. We all felt that it was worth a journey of hundreds of miles to look upon such a glorious panorama of Nature in her grandest and most beautiful attire.

We started, after a very early breakfast, descending the mountain on the other side in the same slow, cautious way, though with scarcely as steep a grade, and whirled through the country towards the Black Forest, which we reached in a few hours. Why it should be called the Black Forest, I have not looked at the guide books to find out; but we went winding through lovely valleys in the mountains, and very frequently through long tunnels which looked black enough. The ascent and descent of the mountains were marked by evidences of the most skillful engineering, which must have involved an enormous outlay of money, and we could frequently look down upon two or three tracks over which we had passed, one above the other. The day's journey was an unusually pleasant one, and we found ourselves in good time at Heidelberg, to retire for the night without any unusual fatigue. We left our lady friends whom, as I mentioned, we had strangely enough met again, to go on their way to Baden-Baden, where they were anticipating a gay time. We should have had no objection to witnessing the gaiety, but it was not on the route we had marked out, and our time was flying away fast.

M. S.

VERNAYAZ, SWITZERLAND, July 17, 1884.

The date of these letters show when and where they are begun. I will keep up the thread of my story from the place where the last letter left me. We were then in Rome. There are one or two incidents which I wish to add in connection with our visit there.

By means of letters of introduction from Archbishop Ryan to one of the Bishops in Rome, we were enabled to secure an audience with the Pope. We were very much pleased with our reception. He is evidently a man of commanding intellect, with an unusually sweet and amiable expression of countenance, and a fatherly and dignified manner. There were some 70 or 80 persons present at the audience.

We met there in the most unexpected manner two young friends from St. Louis. They had been absent traveling all over the continent, through Egypt and the Holy Land. We mutually recognized each other, and had a very pleasant greeting. We afterwards drove with them to the Porichino and the park in the Borghese Villa, where all the fashion of Rome congregate in the afternoon, and there we saw King Humbert driving a magnificent span of English horses, with an officer in uniform in company. As we passed him we lifted our hats, and he returned the compliment most gracefully, doing so each time we passed him. We dined with our young friends, and there, unexpectedly again, I met one of the prominent physicians of Rome, who is a vestryman of the Church, and who was a parishioner of mine when he was studying his profession in Buffalo more than thirty years ago. Such singular incidents are constantly happening in one's journey and adds greatly to its interest. Neither the American or English Church was open, and so we attended St. Peter's, and witnessed in one of the chapels the administration of Confirmation. My friend, the doctor, said if he had known of our presence he would have had the church open and we could have had service. We had tried all we could to find out about the church, or some Churchman who knew. It seems strange that the church should be closed, and no provision made for so long a time, as it was not to be opened again until October.

The last day of our visit in Rome was spent in the Vatican. To attempt any description of what we saw there would be in vain. The two great pictures of "The Transfiguration" by Raphael, and the "Last Communion of St. Jerome" by Dominichino, of course attracted our special attention, and, though neither of us connoisseurs in painting, we sat a long while before them, and felt that little as we could appreciate them, they deserved their world wide reputation. In St. Peters there is a copy of Raphael's picture of "The Transfiguration" in mosaic; and it is surprising with what accuracy the drawing and color and the light and shade of the original is preserved.

We went from Rome to Naples, and spent a day in visiting Pompeii. No description can give one an adequate idea of this city of ruins nor of the interest that attaches to a visit to these monuments of by-gone greatness in the arts of civilization two thousand years ago; and of the awful state of corruption which it would seem must have called forth the judicial vengeance of the Almighty. In looking over the various articles of household furniture, and implements of husbandry, and ornaments of gold and precious stones, and innumerable other things that have been exhumed, and are now in the museum. I observed to my friend, "There is nothing new under the sun." In one department we saw glass, in vials and bottles of size and form resembling those we see in our drug store at the present day, and they were taken from a house which from the sign of the mortar and pestle, had evidently been a drug store before old Vesuvius poured out his vials of wrath upon it. There is an indelible feeling of sadness that comes over one as he treads those silent streets that impresses him deeply with the utter vanity of all that the world calls greatness.

The bay of Naples is lovely, and from a commanding site in the old city, we could look out upon it and the blue Mediterranean in the distance and it recalled to mind the description that Cooper has so graphically drawn.

There is one thing that seems to have made a greater impression on my mind than anything in particular, and that, too, in its ludicrous aspect, in connection with our visit to Naples, and that is, their funny style of cart or whatever name you may give to the vehicles they use and the teams they attach to them. To describe the vehicle passes my power, as they were of every conceivable shape and size; but I can tell of the teams, which sometimes consisted of a horse, a mule, and a donkey, side by side; or a horse and an ox, or two horses and a donkey, and by every possible attachment. How they could be made to pull together, and how they were to be guided, was to me a constant puzzle. In speaking afterwards to a young friend who had just been to Naples, I was amused to hear him say that his strongest recollection of his visit there was connected with this perplexing subject. In leaving Naples we have turned our faces homewards, as this was the farthest point of destination both eastward and southward. Returning through Rome we passed on by Civita Vecchia, which was the old seaport of Rome in her palmiest days, and so along the shore, and in sight of the Mediterranean, with the Islands of Corsica and Elba frequently in view, and through a country in the main fertile and well cultivated. The ride was a long and tedious one, as we were in what is termed an accommodation train, stopping at every station, and loading ourselves down with freight cars, till it seemed as if we could not see the end of our train. We were glad to hail the sight of Pisa and its Leaning Tower, and were satisfied to take our rest before paying them a visit. The Cathedral, the Baptistery, the Leaning Tower and the Campo Santo, the chief points of interest in Pisa, are all in the neighborhood of each other. We visited them the next morning. We ascended the Tower as a matter of course, for which we had the privilege of paying a franc—I may say here, the traveler enjoys that privilege wherever there is anything of interest to see—and looked out upon the lovely landscape and the Mediterranean, with our heads swimming with the sensation of the danger of falling, caused by the evident departure of the walls from the perpendicular. The Cathedral and the Baptistery are large and imposing edifices, built, on the exterior, of alternate white and black marble, in what might be termed the Byzantine style of architecture, the former particularly noted as containing the large bronze lamp, suspended from the ceiling in the center, and which, by its vibrations, suggested to Galileo the idea of the pendulum, and the latter remarkable by the wonderful repetition and prolongation of the echo. We saw, also, what was a matter of great interest to me, the house in which Galileo was born. It is a simple two-story brick house in a block, standing upon a narrow street, and yet he who was born there, has made Pisa more memorable than its grand cathedral and its long succession of Bishops.

Our next stopping place was Genoa. Our hotel was once a palace, and the bedroom we occupied was spacious and had been furnished in most artistic style, the ceiling being elaborately panelled, and frescoed with mythological designs. Genoa, in its day of power, was a city of palaces which are now converted in buildings for public uses. It lies in the form of an amphitheatre between high hills, and the view of the city and of the shipping in the harbor, and of the sea is extensive and picturesque. It has a claim to greatness which the world acknowledges in having been the home of Christopher Columbus. The State has erected a magnificent monument to his memory. We visited the Church of the Annunciation, which was partially of the Romanesque style, with clerestory and round arches, supported by marble columns, with richly gilded ceiling, and with a succession of altars adorned with pictures in the recess between the pillars. The day was too hot for much sight seeing, the Italian sun pouring down upon us with quite as much power as we feel in our hottest days at home. We reached Milan that evening, and did not have the energy, though it was still light, to find our way to the cathedral. We caught a view of the exterior as we entered the city. In the morning we attended service at the English chapel, or rather in a room fitted up for the purpose of worship. There were very few present, as doubtless most of those who habitually attend had left town for the summer. We enjoyed the blessed privilege of receiving the Holy Communion; and I would here mention that so far as our observation goes on the continent, the practice of a weekly celebration is universal. In the afternoon I started to see what remains of Leonardo de Vinci's marvellous fresco of the "Last Supper." It is badly marred, and yet enough remains to show, if I may so say, the wonderful action of the picture, and its remarkably expressive grouping. The nicety of the expression in the several faces is in a great measure lost, i.e., it was to me, and I tried to scan it closely, and though there were marks of deep sadness in the countenance of our Lord, it lacked the characteristics of the dignity of what might be termed divine sorrow. I do not presume to criticize the picture, but only give the impressions that were made upon me, and that, doubtless, in consequence of the marbling of its original perfection. You are drawn to it irresistibly, and I started several times to leave, and turned back to have a last look, loth to have the impression it had made pass from my memory. The fresco is at the end of a room some 30 feet in length, which was once the Refectory of the suppressed Convent of the Virgin of the Graces. There were at the time the pictures of several copyists in the room, of different sizes, but a glance told you that there was the lack of an indefinable something which caused you to turn from them without regret.

We visited of course, again and again, the grand Cathedral at Milan, and it is hard to describe the impression it made upon me. In simple grandeur of effect, it surpasses St. Peter's. As you stand at the porchway, and look forward, and take in the long drawn nave and double aisles, supported on either side by double rows of those grand octagonal pillars, and take in at the same time the lofty roof, decorated with that apparently web-like carving, and let your eye rest upon that gorgeous altar, and so onward, in the recess of the chancel upon those richly stained windows, and try to conceive the mental and the physical power that was necessary to bring such a work to completion, we are forced to the conviction that "man is but little lower than the angels." We ask ourselves almost with a feeling of self-complacency, "Can this be the work man?" I will make no attempt to give any detailed description of this wonderful achievement of genius and skill. It has stood in the process of erection for nearly three hundred years, and will stand for centuries to come, cherished in the affections, and honored by the pride of successive generations. And it seems befitting that there should be such a grand cathedral to mark the spot where the brave Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, withstood the haughty emperor for the honor of God's house, and where the great St. Augustine became a humble disciple of the Christian Faith. BOONVILLE, Aug., 1884.

Editor CHURCH NEWS:

The services attending the ordination of Mr. J. J. Wilkins, commencing on the — day of July, were the most interesting ever held in this parish, and will long be remembered with pleasure, not only by all the friends of the Church, but by all of our citizens. Among those in attendance, and who took part in the services were the Right Rev. C. F. Robertson, Bishop of Missouri; Rev. James Runcie, D.D., of St. Joseph, Mo.; Rev. Abiel Leonard, of Atchison, Kas.; Rev. Dr. Spaulding, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Rev. George C. Betts, St. Louis, Mo.; Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Macon, Mo.; and Rev. J. L. Gay, of Fayette, Mo. The opening service on Tuesday evening was conducted by the Rev. Abiel Leonard, who delivered a very eloquent and instructive sermon. On Wednesday, a.m., the subject, "The Church, a family and school," was ably discussed by the Revs. Betts and Talbot, and Wednesday evening the rite of confirmation was administered to nine persons, Rev. Betts preaching a sermon of rare beauty and excellence. On Thursday, a.m., Mr. J. J. Wilkins was ordained a deacon, the ordination sermon being preached by the Rev. James Runcie, D.D. In the evening Rev. Ethelbert Talbot delivered a splendid address upon the subject of Christian education, which was supplemented with a few very earnest and practical remarks by Rev. J. L. Gay. Friday morning Dr. Spaulding and Rev. Talbot delivered very interesting and instructive addresses upon the history and perpetuity of the Church: and in the evening the services were concluded by two of the finest sermons I have ever listened to by the Revs. Talbot and Betts upon the subject, "The Spiritual Life." For more than an hour these gentlemen held their hearers spell bound. In fact the whole series of services was a rare treat to our parish, and such as we fear we may not have again soon. All the clergymen endeared themselves to our people, not only by their splendid talents, but by their fine social qualities, and the departure of each one was the saddest feature of all their work among us. Most of them came as strangers, but all departed as friends and acquaintances, leaving behind them memories which will remain fresh in the hearts of many of us through life. It would afford me the greatest pleasure to dwell longer upon the facts and incidents connected with the ordination of our talented young deacon, but I have already occupied more of your space than I should, and will therefore say good-bye. J.

—The failure of a bank in Green Bay, Wis., has caused the loss to the Oneida Indians there of their savings for twelve years. The Bishop of Fond du Lac had guaranteed the building of a church for them, and had deposited the money, $7,500 of theirs with the bank, and he will therefore have to make good the loss and build.

A FAMILY REUNION.

At the recent forty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of the Rev. Dr. Berkley, his children, their husbands and wives, and their children, assembled at his residence, and surprised him and his wife by presenting each of them a beautiful memorial of the day.

After a few hours spent in social intercourse, the Doctor and his wife, with the family were invited to the dining-room, where the table, ornamented with flowers, invited the company to a feast of delicate things, when his second daughter, Mrs. Mary B. Childs, approached, and handing him a gold headed cane, said:

"As youthful strength is on the wane,
Accept, dear dad, this friendly cane,
Assured it is by children given,
Who wish you every joy 'neath heaven."

And turning to her mother, and handing her a gold lace pin, elegantly set with pearls, she said:

"And when you clasp the filmy lace,
Beneath your dear and pensive face,
Remember then your girls and boys,
Who wish you life's serenest joys."

The whole affair was such a surprise to the Doctor and his wife, that he could scarcely find words suitably to express his gratification at this demonstration of love on the part of his children.

HOW A CHURCH WAS INSURED, AND WHY.

There is a bright, snug little city in the interior of the State that has suffered fearfully from fires. Nearly all the business is done around a beautiful public square, in the centre of which stands the court house. Two years ago every house on the south side except two was destroyed. A similar fate befell those on the east side last winter. A few weeks ago the north side was visited, and half of its business portion was wiped out. The west side yet stands, and on this is the church; but the Vestry, seeing what has befallen the other three sides have been stirred up to renew an insurance which had lapsed several years ago. Besides other manifest benefits that fires have brought to the city referred to, has aroused the Vestry of our Church there to put an adequate insurance upon it.

OUR NEWSPAPER.—According to Edwin Alden & Bro.'s (Cincinnati, O.) American Newspaper Catalogue for 1883, there are 14,867 newspapers and magazines published in the United States and the British Provinces. Total in the United States, 14,176; in the British Provinces, 691; divided as follows: Dailies, 1,357; tri-weeklies, 71; semi-weeklies, 168; Sundays, 295; weeklies, 10,975; bi-weeklies, 39; monthlies, 1,502; bi-monthlies, 26; quarterlies, 83; showing an increase over the publications of 1883 of 1,594. The greatest increase has been among the weekly newspapers of a political character (?), while it has been least among the class publications. The book is very handsomely gotten up and contains some 850 pages, printed on heavy book paper, elegantly bound in cloth. It will be sent to any address, prepaid, on receipt of $1.50.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.—This medicinal preparation is one out of a thousand of the patent kind placed before the public which has what it claims, "intrinsic merits," and does afford relief in diseases like dyspepsia, general debility, and many kinds of disorders peculiar to females. It has received the endorsement of hundreds of people of good standing throughout the country, and should it sometimes fail to effect a cure, it may be taken without deleterious results. It has become a staple medicine with druggists. One or two bottles, used in season, may save a heavy bill from the family physician.

—The result of high license in Nebraska, $1,000, has been to reduce the saloons in Omaha by a half, and to tax out of existence most of the cross road grogeries.

"I HAVE stood here on State Street for forty years," said a Boston merchant, "and I have seen men accumulate fortunes by speculation, and I have seen those fortunes disappear. I have seen men go up in worldly wealth, and go down, and I've always noticed that those persons who were content with slow gains and 6 per cent interest came out ahead in the long run." One of our friends, a man with a long head, who in his day had watched the mills and the millers, found out that the miller who bought wheat as he wanted it, and sold flour as he ground it, always made money. But if he got into speculation, buying wheat because he thought the price would go up, and store his flour, wanting higher prices, that miller came to grief.

HERE is one story, which has its lesson. In a certain church the choir and congregation rose and devoutly sang, "All things come of Thee, O Lord, and of Thine own do we give Thee," while the rector humbly presented and placed on the altar in two silver alms basins the offering, which amounted to one dollar and thirty five cents. And then another paper caps this by the story of what took place in a certain parish in Virginia. They had the custom of rising and singing, "All things come of Thee," etc., and the clergyman present told with his own mouth when the alms baskets were brought to him, in one basket, nothing; in the other basket, one cent! There ought to be a proportion, not so much ceremonial, or more to show for it. One of our bishops tells of a man in a congregation singing with all apparent devoutness, "Were the whole creation mine, that were a tribute all too small," and at the same time feeling for the nickel in his pocket, and rubbing the edge to be sure it was not a quarter.

IT'S THE MINISTER.

"It all depends upon the minister." This was the conclusion to which a lady, a Church woman, came in and expressed in our hearing a few weeks ago, in a street car in this city. She had been telling about a parish, not far away in another Diocese, in which she had been living for four years past. It has had a most unhappy history. It had been torn with dissensions; the minister had not been able to get on with the people; he proposed utterly impracticable schemes; debts were created; men stayed away from the church, and the parish, it was feared, was going to vanish out of sight.

But another clergyman had come, active, loving and genial. The pews began to fill up; funds were forgotten, families which it had been feared were hopelessly alienated came back to the Church; men attended again; there was money enough now for all purposes; the church was repaired and beautified; the parish assumed its rightful position of importance in the Diocese; the clergyman extended his influence to the outlying towns, and held services in several.

People began to look at each other and wonder. The old condition of strife and beggary seemed like a dream. They were all ready to laugh in their prosperity. How did it, how could it have happened? There were as many in the town before as now. The city had not grown. These people all were here before. What makes the difference? And the lady came to the not unnatural conclusion, "It all depends upon the minister."

She was about right. Many others had become affected, but the ultimate human cause of difference, which told upon all the troubles was that the minister was another kind of man. There is always this awful responsibility for the condition of the parish; one way or the other it all depends upon the minister.

INFLUENCE.

There is much to show in what is frequently happening now-a-days, that the responsibility for influence is larger and wider than men often consider. The corporation, the employer, has interest in seeing where the young men go and with whom they associate out of business hours, and to consider whether, if other motives were lacking, it would not be worth their while to help give a better bent to association and taste. We scarcely open a paper now but that it tells of some betrayal of trust, begun in the reckless and dishonest method of business gambling, pursued with infatuated sophistry, and ending in hideous ruin and perhaps self destruction.

The starting point of the trouble, other than the familiarizing of the mind with the betting which has latterly been adopted and legitimized in higher places, is the wandering step, which in the evening knew not quite where to go, which ought to have stayed at home and studied, and prepared for higher positions, which might have turned to gentle company but was scarcely sure of a welcome, but which strolled off where there was a welcome, but nothing else that was good. Several together will do more, will say worse things, than each alone. Profanity, immodesty, the talking over and planning for dishonest deeds; these brew themselves out of the vacant mind, in doubtful places, drinking and smoking and fuddling the clearness of the conscience.

In this view we rejoice in the opening of the Exposition, and any such arousing and widening source of information or interest. There ought to be a greater kindness in employers in looking after the safety and welfare of their employees outside of business hours. There ought surely in our churches to be a greater effort to look after the social needs of their young people, a painstaking, persistent effort. The end is worth the effort.

THE TE DEUM.

Did you ever notice how elaborate music will spoil the devotional habits of your people, as shown by their postures during the singing? Take it at the Te Deum, which was intended to be one of the grandest, and most uplifting strains that human lips could utter, which, rising higher and higher, puts into rhythm and measure the common acclaim of the confession of our deepest belief and our loftiest raptures of anticipation. There is little suggestion of all this with the opening strains of this old hymn. The expression of countenance from one to another is, "Now we are in for it." Many who rise at all other times are never equal to this, and settle into a critical concert attitude. Many of the older gentlemen along the aisles do not think of rising. Many others, particularly in the back part of the church, and delicate women stand half way through, and then give up. The little children, taught by careful parents to stand, weariedly change their weight from one foot to the other, while the repetitions go on. The congregation is emptied of vigor and spirituality by the close.

Perhaps it is too much to expect that the grand music with which its stately words most fitly consort, can ever become popular. Perhaps it might be used with profit at times as an anthem, when its influence upon the congregation would be looked for, not as they join in it, but as they are passively, but yet it may be deeply wrought upon by the words and the music.

But in the place where it now is, and the office which it is there expected to fill, it is worse than mockery that the execution of it by a few to the irritation and despair of the many, should go on in the way that it often does now.

A DEFECTION AND ITS LESSON.

Young Mr. Appleton, formerly of this city, who went to Japan recently as a missionary of our Church, and had scarcely arrived before he began to criticise the method and work of those who had been there longer, has joined the Baptists and been immersed by one of their preachers. His education probably had not borne on the fact that all things to be believed and done are not to be found commanded in the New Testament. The books were written after the Church was in the midst of its life, and not at its beginning, and therefore do not contain what was known and practiced by those to whom the books were addressed. If a person, therefore, allows his faith to stand or fall, therefore upon his ability to find distinct commands, and then gets asked, as Mr. Appleton was, for the text which enjoins the baptism of infants, he will be put to fault and go over to the Baptists; just as some have gone over to the Seventh Day Baptists who are put to it to find a command to change the day of worship from the seventh to the first day of the week. The existence and life of the Church previous to the writing of the books of the New Testament, and the importance of this fact as affecting what shall be said in the books and the manner, these must have large place in theological study, or else here will be frequent lapses and embarrassments, as was sadly the case with Mr. Appleton. He was a person of great spiritual earnestness, and one cannot but deeply deplore his mistake.

CHARITY AND CORRECTIONS CONFERENCE.

The annual meeting of the above conference in this city, beginning on the 13th of next month, is one to which special attention may well be called. It is not, of course, a body belonging to, or responsible to the Church. It is composed of those interested and specially versed in the many subjects connected with the care and treatment of the dependent and defective classes in our community. It is the meeting point of those who are in charge of our prisons, alms houses, houses of correction, insane, blind and deaf and dumb institutions, to consider methods and improve administration.

It is attended by those appointed from a greater number of the States and Territories. Its sessions, beginning on Monday evening, will extend through the week.

Reports will be received this year from standing committees on the following subjects: On reports from States; on Charity Organization in Cities; on Organization and Management of Reformatories and Houses of Refuge; on Organization and Management of Prisons and Penitentiaries; on Police System and Administration; on Organization and Management of Poorhouses; on Provisions for the Chronic Insane; on Provisions for Idiots; on Child Saving Work.

Delegates are appointed by Governors of States, and also institutions of charity, whether State or religious.

The meetings will be held in Memorial Hall. A welcome will be tendered by the Governor on behalf of the State, and the Mayor on behalf of the city. The address will be delivered by the President, and responses to the welcome will be made by some members of the Conference. Of course, attendance is free.

The President of the Conference this year is Hon. W. P. Letchworth, President of the State Board of Charities of New York; the Vice-President is Bishop Robertson; the Secretary is Prof. A. O. Wright, Madison, Wisconsin.

The Chairman of the Local Committee of this city is Rev. Dr. Eliot; Secretary, Prof. M. S. Snow.

PERSONAL.

—A correspondent of the Living Church says that many of our Bishops lose their heads when they get over to England, that they adopt for their garb the apron, breeches and gaiters, and even drop their H's to make themselves as English as possible.

—The late Judge Dickinson of Virginia remarked on one occasion that he had been at the bar and on the bench forty odd years, but had never left home on Sunday to attend a court.

—Well, have we not a good deal of Bishop Ryan in our dispatches lately, as it were? Some one in his personal vicinity has kindly written things up with a gushing fullness. It must be pleasant to see one's own people at last, after having presided over the people of Tricomia and Salamis, which were never seen, nor their locality quite ascertained by their pastor.

—Bishop Gillespie in spite of the wish of the Diocese and the gift of a purse of $700, will not go to Scotland. The notice was rather short; he would have to leave a young family of adopted children behind, and take his Diocesan anxieties with him. He will attend the annual session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections in this city next month, being the Chairman of his State Board. He has been asked to preach in Christ church in this city on the 12th, the day before the Conference opens, on the objects which it has in hand.

—Rev. George W. Timlow of Tivoli, has gone to the Unitarians. He came from the Congregationalists a few years ago.

—The Presiding Bishop has received the certificates of consent of a majority of the Standing Committees and of the Bishops to the consecration of the Rev. Messrs. Ferguson, Foreign Missionary Bishop-elect of Cape Palmas, Africa, and Boone, Foreign Missionary Bishop-elect of Shanghai, China. The Rev. Mr. Ferguson is expected in this country within a month, when his consecration will take place. Mr. Boone's consecration will take place in China, where he was born, confirmed and ordained, where his father was Bishop before him, died and was buried. Bishop Williams of Japan will act as Consecrator, and will have associated with him such English or other Bishops as he may be able to assemble. The consecration will probably take place on Saint Simon's and Saint Jude's day. It will add greatly to the interest of the Mission that this service should be held in that foreign land.

—The Rev. Dr. E. N. Potter has been out to Nebraska, looking at the Diocese, to which he was elected. He has not recalled his declination, but in Nebraska they seem to have some hopes that he will.

—Bishop Howe of Central Pennsylvania, has intimated to Dr. Rulison, who was elected recently Assistant Bishop, and who has accepted, that he will almost immediately retire from all active duty, and turn over the administration to him.

—Bishop Clark's wife recently died.

—On Mt. Desert Island where Bishop Doane has a summer residence, there is a chapel in which he ministers while he is there. It is simple, as also is the service, and hearty. Two old sea captains take the offertory. On Communion Sundays he always reminds the congregation that although the Church requires of her own children baptism and confirmation for admission, her invitation to all others makes only the condition of repentance and love toward fellow men.

—The clerical obituary for this month includes the names of the Rev. John Lee Watson, D. D., of New Jersey, the Rev. John Brown, D. D., of Newburg, New York, who had been rector of his parish for sixty-nine years.

—Bishop Dunlop will be in Kirkwood this month with Mrs. Dunlop, whose health is greatly improved, we are glad to hear.

—The revision of the Old Testament has been finished in England, and we can probably look for the publication of the volume in the fall.

—A recent number of the London Times contained two millions separate type, and as much matter as would be in two octavo volumes of 480 pages each.

—The Rev. Walter Delafield, D. D., of Indiana, has given a bell weighing a ton, made by Meneely of Troy, to Nashotah, in memory of his father. It will be in place at the beginning of the next term. He has also instituted a mathematical prize at Racine College.

—The Mercantile Library in this city proposes to build on its present lot a structure better fitted for its library, and to cost $300,000. The present land while it is occupied is not subject to taxation, an exemption which would not hold, if the library removed elsewhere. About $60,000 has been subscribed, and the balance will probably be made up by perpetual memberships to be sold for $100 each.

—The Rev. Mr. Miel, the rector of our French parish in Philadelphia has received seven priests from the "Holy Roman" church since he has been in that parish. He was himself once a Roman priest.

—Here is a beautiful and characteristic act of liberality by one of the saintliest men in our American Episcopate—the Bishop of Western Michigan. When Bishop Gillespie receives anything for officiating outside of his Diocese, he does not keep it himself, but gives it to his Diocese. Recently he presented $1,400, an amount with interest, which he had received for officiating during a vacancy in the Diocese of Michigan, to the Diocese, as the nucleus of a Rectory Building Fund.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Diocese of Western Michigan gives its Diocesan paper $50 a year for the missionary work that it does for the Diocese, and probably it is well earned.

—It has become quite usual for the boys and men's choirs to go off for a camping vacation. The congregation helps them to have the outing which they have earned. The choir of the Ascension church, Chicago, goes to Geneva Lake. Recently the Cathedral choir from Chicago camped out for ten days near Madison, Wis., to the number of twenty-five. They came over and gave a Sunday evening service in the church, which was densely crowded for the occasion.

—The rumor is abroad that a special meeting of the General Convention may be called this fall.

—Out of 350 Congregationalist societies in Massachusetts, 163 have responsive readings, 100 repeat the Lord's Prayer with the minister, and 65 use chanting, and especially of the Gloria Patri.

In Grace church, New York, they have during the past year raised $165,000 for various forms of Church work.

—According to the Board of Statistics of Massachusetts, 84 per cent of the crimes there comes from intemperance.

—The English Bishops made a great stride towards removing prejudice from their order in the Church when lately, in the House of Lords, both Archbishops and all the Bishops present but one voted to extend the privilege of the franchises.

—The great St. Louis Fair begins on Monday, Oct. 6th, and continues until Saturday night, 11th. The grounds have been vastly improved and beautified, and the premiums are larger than ever. The facilities for reaching the grounds are also greatly increased. This is altogether separate from the Exposition in town, which opened on the 4th inst. Both are well worth traveling hundreds of miles to see.

—Mr. Moody, who has just returned from England said to a reporter as he was leaving London, that he felt almost ashamed to come over there, that he was more needed in the states, and that London was the most religious city he had ever seen. Take, for instance, he said, your sanctified wealth; this is a rare commodity in America. The reason for that is chiefly that their families are acclimated to it. It is an ordinary incident of their lives. In America the rich men were nearly all born poor, and their wealth is too much for them. The other day, he said, the heir of one of the greatest fortunes in London stood outside our meeting, and held a cabman's horse in order that the cabman might take part in the service within. Titled and wealthy ladies have gone down into the lowest slums of the districts, and taken charge of the children, and nursed the babies while the mothers spent an hour in our hall. Another improvement is very perceptible, the enormous advance made in temperance. Eight years ago it was difficult for me to mix in society without being constantly pressed to drink wine. Now speaking broadly, I am never asked to touch it, and in many places it is not even on the table."

—The Young Churchman Company has been incorporated in Wisconsin, to publish the Young Churchman, the Shepherd's Arms, children's papers, and other publications, and to maintain a Church bookstore. Bishops Weller and Brown and Mr. L. H. Morehouse, the publisher of the Young Churchman, are the incorporators.

—On our 107th page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders now on the market.

—The Bishop of Michigan at his convention lately invited the President of the State University, a Congregationalist minister, to address the body as to the condition and resources of the University.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE ORIGIN OF SPECIES. By Charles Darwin. Complete in two parts, 30 cents each. J. Fitzgerald, publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York.

Darwin's great work, which has revolutionized the whole world of science and philosophy, is now for the first time published in a cheap edition, and brought within the reach of all readers. The present edition is printed in clear type on strong paper, and makes about 260 octavo pages, in double columns, containing the entire work as revised by the author shortly before his death, with the valuable glossary of scientific terms and the very detailed index. The work should be in the hands of every intelligent person who is interested in the current of modern thought.

Among the articles in the North American Review for September, three in particular merit the serious consideration of every one who studies the tendencies of our government. The leading one is by Bishop J. Lancaster Spalding, who insists that the only sure "Basis of Popular Government" is morality, not culture of the intellect, nor universal suffrage, nor the development of material resources; and that if the country is to be saved from ruin, there must be a return to the uncompromising moral code of the founders of New England. The policy of "The Exclusion of the Chinese" is advocated by John H. Durst, who presents a striking array of forcible arguments against Mongolian immigration. Four distinguished writers on political economy, namely, David A. Wells, Thomas G. Shearman, J. B. Sargent, and Prof. W. G. Sumner, set forth, from nearly every conceivable point of view, the "Evils of the Tariff System;" and it is announced that in the Review for October several writers of no less distinction will exhibit the "Benefits of the Tariff System." The other articles in the current number are "The Demand of the Industrial Spirit," by Charles Dudley Warner; "Inspiration and Infallibility," by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Rylance; "The Need of Liberal Divorce Laws," by Elizabeth Cady Stanton; and "Our Remote Ancestry," by Prof. Alexander Winchell.

RUTHERFORD. By Edgar Fawcett. No. 121 of the Standard Library. This novel, which delineates certain phases of New York society, is written by one who is rapidly going to a foremost place among American novelists. It shows clear insight into character, ready sympathy, and good work. It is printed in the clear, compact shape and style which mark the issues of this library. 25 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, Dey Street, New York.

NORTHWESTERN PULPIT. No. 13. Sermons by Waldo Messaros. The Immutability of Christ. Philadelphia. Frank A. Wunder, 1716 Jefferson Street. $2 a year. 10 cents a copy.

THE SEPTEMBER CENTURY. In its contents the September Century aims to rival the August "Midsummer Holiday Number" in entertaining summer reading, as well as in articles of unusual importance. Pictorially it is also of a popular character. Henry James's two part story, "A New England Winter," is concluded. Mr. Cable's novel, "Dr. Sevier," approaches the conclusion, which will be printed in the October number.

"From Coventry to Chester on Wheels," the opening illustrated paper, recounts the experiences of the artist during a trip on a tricycle in England.

An essay of extraordinary importance to political science in this country is Joseph Edgar Chamberlain's analysis of "The Foreign Elements in our Population," with interesting conclusions as to the foreign character of the population of certain sections of the country now and in the near future.

Among the other "Open Letters" will be found "The Clergy and Political Reform," by the Rev. Dr. William J. R. Taylor.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR SEPTEMBER is an especially attractive number, containing a happy combination of those features which go to make up a successful child's magazine.

Among the stories are one of Frank R. Stockton's inimitable fanciful tales, entitled "The Queen's Museum," with four of Bensell's characteristic illustrations; the first half of "The Dalzells of Daisy-down," a fresh and breezy study of boy and girl life, and "Benny's Horse," an exceedingly amusing and naturally told story, by Mary Catherine Lee.

Then there are the month's installments of the three serials: "Daisy's Jewel Box, and How She Filled It," is the title of Louisa M. Alcott's "Spinning-wheel Story;" "Brian Born: the Boy Chieftain," is the hero of E. S. Brook's "Historic Boys" for September; and Maurice Thompson takes "Marvin and his Boy Hunters" through some highly interesting adventures along the Gulf Coast of Southern Florida, and leaves them for a month in an extremely dangerous predicament.

MANAEN & MITYLENE. MARANATHA. By Rev. F. R. Holeman. Nearly twenty years ago our old friend published a little volume of verses, "Christian Poems," which were very pleasing. Now comes a little book, printed but not published, with the above title. It has a continuous theme, and in five line verse. It gives the growth and evolution of the title characters, and others, and with it the movement of Church life and work in an ideal parish. The motif is elevated and worthy, and the movement and rhythm generally is smooth and sustained. There are certain lapses in the measure and some ineligibilities in the expressions, which could be corrected, and ought to be, because the poem is worthy of it. The lines have of course an additional interest to us as knowing the life and experiences and worth, and painful and protracted sickness of their author. Pages 121. Press of Fred. F. Gottschalk, St. Louis. 1884.

The September Wide Awake, opening with Mrs. Fleming's exciting narrative poem, "The Little Lion Charmer," goes on to give a seasonable story, entitled "How Dolly Attended the Convention." It is a good picture of old taverns and old times and customs, and Daniel Webster appears among the characters of the story. Wide Awake has a goodly reputation for rescuing the fading traditions of the past, and many a valuable reminiscence has been printed in its pages. Another excellent illustrated paper is entitled "About Dwarfs"—its true stories and fine pictures by Garrett, are as entertaining as a "show." In charming contrast to these realistic contributions, is a dainty story called "A Matinee," and nothing more sweet for children has appeared for many a month. A new serial begins, "A District Messenger Boy."

Only $3 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, publishers.

The important announcement is made that there has been organized at Newark, Wayne County, New York, the Christian Literature Publishing Company, which, under the editorship of Bishop Cox, proposes immediately to put out a new edition of the Ante-Nicene Fathers, reducing the 24 volumes of the Edinburgh edition to 8 volumes, and the previous cost of $72 to $24. It will have the Clark's Edinburgh text, and with a new historical preface in each volume. They are to be published by subscription, provided that the number of names received will justify it, and in quarterly installments. The library will, among other things, include the works of Clement, Cyprian, Irenaeus, Justin Martyr, Origen, Tertullian, etc. Some subscriptions should go from this source.

THE ENGLISH ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE. September. This number completes the first volume of this beautiful magazine. It is no longer an experiment. It ministers both to the eye and the thought. In this number are illustrated articles on The Tour of Covent Garden, Women of Chaucer, Cricket, and a collection of quaint ornaments, initial letters, etc. McMillan & Co., 112 Fourth ave., N. Y. $1.50 a year.

PROTECTION AND FREE TRADE TO-DAY. Jas. R. Osgood & Co., Boston, publish a little pamphlet to show that protection is of advantage to the workshops and the farmer. It is put out with reference to the fact that the tariff question is of importance in the present political campaign.

The clergy will be glad to learn that Mr. Whittaker is preparing a "Pocket Parochial Register or Rectors' Private Record," by Rev. J. H. Hobart DeMille. Its simplicity and completeness will strongly commend it.

TEN YEARS A POLICE JUDGE. By Judge Wiglittle, of a Country Circuit. The observations of certain phases of society from this standpoint are peculiar. The wrongs and sorrows, the things ludicrous and instructive, the suggestions and warnings, all are grouped in this scrap book, and book too of reflections, in a way that makes it very readable. Standard Library. No. 122. 25 cts. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, N. Y.

TOUCHSTONES; or Christian Graces and Characters Tested. By Bishop Oxenden. A book by means of which a Christian can teach himself as to standing and motives. All of Bishop Oxenden's works have an immense sale, because they are written with such simplicity, and to meet the real and ordinary needs of life. One would be better to go quietly and often through such a book as this. Pages 262. Cloth. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, N. Y.

PEEP OF DAY. Popular edition. Flexible cloth. 20 cts. 704th thousand. Our childhood's friend, and admirable for the teaching of the little ones. Whittaker.

ARISE AND BE BAPTIZED, or Baptism and Salvation. By Rev. A. G. L. Trew. Pp. 16.

DECENTLY AND IN ORDER, or Hints for Worshippers. By Rev. M. M. Morse. Pages, 21.

SOME SUGGESTIONS TO TEACHERS. The Sunday School. By Rev. M. M. Morse. Pp. 11.

THE MINISTRY OF PRAISE. A Letter to a Choir Member. Pp. 11. By Rev. M. M. Morse.

FOUR LECTURES ON CONFIRMATION, for the Instruction of Classes. By Rev. Robt. Wilson. Pp. 29.

Some Plain Words for Busy People, About the Protestant Episcopal Church. By Rev. Chas. Seymour. Pp. 42. All these tracts published by Whittaker, 2 Bible House, are most admirable in their spirit and clearness. Clergymen would do well to get copies of them.

The Church Press. Vol. I, No. 1. September 6th. This new weekly ($1 a year), under the management of the Church Review Association, comes to us with the assuring name of the Rev. Dr. Matson as editor. It is handsomely printed, and we hope will succeed. The page is about the size of the Churchman. P. O. box 1839, N. Y.

The Oxford Movement. By the Rev. Morgan Dix, D. D. Third edition. Chicago. Living Church Company. The distinguished Rectory of Trinity, New York, gives, con amore, a glowing picture of the advance in spiritual life in the English Church during the last fifty years.

The title "Babyland," was brought into use by D. Lothrop & Co. for their charming magazine Babyland, the bound volume of which is each year a delight in many thousands of homes. Its great reputation has been won by intrinsic merit of exquisite adaptation, by the purity and delicate humor of the text, and the charm of its beautiful and amusing pictures. It has been edited during the eight years of its publication by the editors of Wide Awake. Its great and well earned reputation has induced certain publishers to attempt imitations. It becomes necessary, therefore, to warn the public against these inferior books issued under similar titles, and to state that there is but one genuine Babyland, and this always has the imprint of D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

The Century Magazine will begin in its November number a series of papers on the Battles and Leaders of the Civil War. They will be written by officers high in command on both sides, and the illustrations will be authentic and exact. The articles will attract wide attention.

If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."—[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. Louis, Mo.

THE Bishop acknowledges the kindness of those who responded to his request for copies of former volumes of the Churchman for the Diocesan Library. He repeats now the list of copies needed yet to complete the volumes. If any persons have single or more copies named, he will be glad to place them with the others in the library for the use of those who come after.

The numbers wanting are as follows: 1876:

July 1, 22, 29, August 26, Oct. 7; 1877: July 14, Sept. 22, Dec. 22; 1878: July 6, 13, Aug. 10, Oct. 26; 1879: Jan. 25, Feb. 1, March 22, April 5, 26, June 28, July 12, 26, Aug. 16, 23, Sept. 13, 27, Oct. 4, 25, Nov. 1, 15, 22, 29; 1880: Feb. 28, June 5, Oct. 2; 1882: Jan. 7, 14, 21, 28, Feb. 4, 11; March 4, 11, 25; April 22, 29; May 6, June 10, July 29, Sept. 16; 1883: Nov. 3, 10, 17.

A SUGGESTIVE COURSE.

The Rev. Dr. Delafield, of St. Stephen's Church, Terre Haute, Indiana, has laid out a course of lectures upon the Christian Evidences, which are to be delivered in his church on successive Sunday evenings by representative and competent laymen. They are as follows:

Power of a Christian City for Good, Hon. Mayor Armstrong.

Legal View of the Trial of Jesus, Judge McNutt.

The Early Christian Church, Hon. Wm. Mack.

Christian Manhood, Col. R. W. Thompson.

Christianity in Architecture, Samuel S. Early, Esq.

The Christian Church in the Middle Ages, Henry C. Nevitt, Esq.

The Beauty of Christian Womanhood, Frank C. Donaldson, Esq.

The Christian Church in Time of Henry VIII, John G. Williams, Esq.

Science the Friend of Christianity, Dr. John E. Link.

Public Schools an Aid to Christianity, Hon. John W. Holcomb.

The Press as a Missionary of Christianity, W. C. Ball, Esq.

The Bible the Friend of Man, Hon. Benjamin F. Havens.

Life the Gift of God, Charles P. Thompson, L.L.D.

The thought which occurs to the mind in seeing a list of subjects and men like this, for some of these gentlemen have more than local reputation, is, how fortunate the parish which can claim the help of so many competent gentlemen on Christian subjects, who will stand up on Sunday nights and speak forth. In so many places the attitude of men is that of passivity, an indication of a disposition not to be too outspoken in favor of Christian things. Here is a city, not large, which can supply men who can speak on subjects of such width and interest. Each one is competent in his way.

There is suggested also the tact which has laid out such a balanced course and holds such relations with men of ability as can induce them to do that which involves such moral courage as to take the place in church on Sunday, and after due preparation, give out the results. It marks a wise and strong clergyman who can have a grasp thus upon strong men. It is not always so.

Another suggestion. Can not many other parishes do something like this? Is there not lying latent in many a congregation ability which could thus be put to use? It adds to the anxiety of preaching that we clergymen have men who can do such work sitting quietly in the pews before us listening to our at times not overwise speech. It would help the men who did the work thus to be called out and be made to prepare themselves. It would help the congregation to hear a disinterested, unprofessional voice reaffirming what is often declared there. Can, too, such suggestions not be made fruitful of results?

HOLDING UP THE WEAK.

One of the clergy of the Diocese in the course of his pastoral duty was recently engaged in helping one of his flock to greater knowledge and assurance in the faith. The circumstances seemed to him to call for a peculiar mode of treatment. He put his instruction in the form of questions, which the person was desired to secure the answers for. These are given below as an example to others, to use a like earnestness and solicitude in seeking by one means and by another, to win their people to the love of Christ, and to a knowledge of all His ways.

With the one who sought my counsel and instruction, I felt it wise to take this ground:

1st. Did Jesus Christ establish a church?

2d. Is this church a visible organic body, or is it a system of doctrines or truths, and all who receive those truths are by virtue of that reception made members of his church? Her reply to this question was the church of Christ is undoubted a visible organic body.

3d. What is the source of information respecting the organization and nature of the Church of Christ? She answered unhesitatingly, the New Testament.

4th. What is the testimony of Scripture as to the constitution of the Church? She answered that Jesus began by calling certain persons to become his immediate followers, to whom he announced his intention of establishing a church; that it should be enduring; that it might be aptly described by a field in which grow both wheat and tares, by a net cast into the sea gathering of all sorts, by a plant in whose branches fowls of all kinds find lodgment; that to it appeal might be made, and if its decision were refused, an offender would ipsi facto, be cut off from the church, i. e., he should be as a heathen and a publican; that Jesus ordained certain outward rites to be observed in his church, viz.: one a rite of initiation into it—baptism, and one a rite to be observed as an evidence of continued membership—The Eucharist.

5th. Is the Church of Christ a development from the Scriptures; or are the Scriptures a development from the Church? This question seemed to puzzle her; at first she was under the impression that the Scriptures were in existence first, and the Church developed from them. When I pointed out to her the fact that the Gospels could not have been written until after the death, resurrection, and ascension of Christ, as much as they narrated those events; that one of the writers distinctly avers that he writes from information received of those who were eye witnesses long before; that the Acts is professedly a history of the propagation of the Gospel and the establishment of the church in many and widely separated countries; that many parts were letters addressed by the minister to churches established through his own instrumentality many years previously, etc. It seemed to strike her as quite a new consideration, and to open her mind to receive the truth that many practices in the apostolic church would not, even if enjoined by the express command of Christ, necessarily be set forth in Scripture; such as the baptism of infants, the administration of the Communion to women, etc., because there were no circumstances that lead to their being spoken of. I especially instanced confirmation as one of the rites that the Church has always strenuously adhered to, though no account is given of its having been enjoined by either Christ or his Apostles; but from the fact that the mention of it is of that incidental sort which shows it to have been the regular and continued practice of the Apostles; and very largely it is the same with the Communion; the allusions to it are such a show that its administration was regular and universal wherever the church existed; on the other hand, to all appearances another rite Jesus performed seems to be as solemnly set forth and enjoined as that of the Eucharist, viz.: feet-washing, which the Church does not practice and never has for the simple reason that the early Apostolic Church did not practice it; there being no mention of it either in the Acts, Epistles, or the Apostolic Fathers; hence that it must have been for a special and temporary purpose. She then asked me why it was that the Church confined the administration of the Communion to priests—refusing it to deacons, and saying: "Now there was Mr. Ganthier, who was a godly man, who preached and baptized, but the Bishop would not permit him to administer the Communion; that there was not a word in the account of the institution of the rite that confined it to men of a certain rank and dignity in the Church; that so far as she could see on the face of the account in the Gospels or the allusions to it in the Acts and Epistle to the Corinthians there are no indication that it could not be administered by any member of the Church." I reminded her of the fact that the Bishop had nothing whatever to do with preventing Mr. G.; that he could not, if he would, have authorized him to administer it. And then I made the endeavor to reply to the objection she presented; and it is to ask you whether my arguments are unsound, unscriptural in their gist, or sophistical, that I trouble you with this long letter—at least they seem to satisfy her of the correctness of the Church's practice. I made large use of the Lortie method.

When did Jesus institute the rite?

Had He finished his personal work by calling followers?

How many personal followers had He at this time?

Were they all men?

Were there any distinction among this 120?

Do the 12 seem to occupy a different relation to Christ's Church from the 70, or the rest?

Were all Christ's Disciples present at the institution?

What special ones only were present?

What was the occasion that they were thus assembled?

Had they partaken of the Passover Supper?

What were the Divinely appointed elements of the Paschal meal?

Did Jesus in instituting his new rite make use of any of the elements of the Passover Supper?

What element not Divinely prescribed did He use?

Had these two elements ever before been employed as an evidence of communion?

When Melchizedek came forth to meet Abram what did he bring forth as a preliminary to his blessing?

Who was Melchizedek?

What does St. Paul call Jesus?

Then if Jesus be the Great Eternal High Priest does He not beautifully blend the most commonly distributed and most easily obtained element of the Passover Supper with the element wine used by Melchizedek into his own perpetual Rite? And does he not thus especially sanctify his own most holy Rite?

Does not Jesus thus connect his own ordinance with the most sacred Rites of all the ages of God's economy?

What does Moses say of the Great Prophet to come?

What was Moses? The founder and legislator of the Church of God.

Then if Jesus be he, He was to found and make laws and Rites for the Church?

What was the office the Messiah was expected to fill?

What was the enquiry of the wise men?

What title was on the cross?

What are the prerogatives of a king in the ancient sense?

When a king sends an ambassador, whom does that ambassador represent?

What did Jesus say to the twelve after his resurrection?

Whom then did the twelve represent?

At the Passover Supper did Jesus give the twelve any instructions?

Did He offer any special prayer for them?

What did He say in that prayer? "As thou hast sent me into the world so have I sent them into the world."

Had Jesus said anything before this respecting a special commission given to the twelve? "I have chosen you and ordained you that ye should bring forth much fruit."

In His last great prayer did Jesus pray for any other than the twelve? "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word: that they may all be one."

Then it seems that the twelve had received a special commission and ordination at the institution of the Lord's Supper?

As Jesus was sent, so He sent the twelve?

As Jesus was the consecrated High Priest of God, so the twelve were the consecrated High Priests of Jesus?

Then the institution of the Eucharist was a priestly act?

What did Jesus reveal to St. Paul?

What command did He lay upon the twelve? "Do this (that ye see me do) in remembrance of me."

The Apostles then, as Christ's commissioned Priests, were to break bread and deliver the cup? As priests they were to consecrate or sanctify the bread and wine? As the specially chosen and instructed Priests of Christ they were to bring others to the faith of Christ, and to send forth others to continue or extend their work?

Beside this, the custom of the Church had been from the very earliest to confine the administration of the Rite to priests; as the custom of the the Church had been to confine ordination and confirmation to the higher order of the ministry—the Bishops.

My talk with her has progressed to this point, and she wants me to take up the question of the continuity of the Apostolic Church to its final outcome, so far as she is concerned, with the American branch.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—St. Catharine's Guild, of St. Paul's Parish, Mexico, have for sale photographs of the chancel of the church as decorated for the recent Consecration, at 50 cents each, which may be obtained from the Rector, Rev. Samuel N. Watson.

—The School of the Good Shepherd, in this city, opened its year with 88 pupils, of whom thirteen were boarders. This is a very good number, only the capacity should be increased, in order that a larger number could be received and more convenient arrangements had.

—The Rev. Carter Page has removed from Chillicothe, and taken charge of the parish in Goresville, Loudon County, Virginia.

—The stone work on the foundation of Trinity Church, Kansas City, is finished. This will be roofed in and for the present used for service. The land slopes off at the back from the street in such a way that the basement is all out of ground. Work is being pushed on the roofing, and the congregation expect to get into it on the last of this month or the first of next.

—In finishing the chapel of St. Luke's Hospital, it was found that no provision had been made in the matter of money for the gas fixtures, nor for the furnace. As to this last, Messrs. E. C. Simmons and Jerome Hill generously paid the bill.

—The Bishop, on the 23d, went to Nebraska, at the request of the Ecclesiastical Authority of the vacant Diocese, and on Thursday, 25th ult., in the Cathedral in Omaha, advanced to the priesthood Rev. Thomas Stafford and Rev. F. S. De Mattos, presented by Canons Patterson and Doherty, and celebrated the Holy Communion. The Rev. Dean Millspaugh, Dr. Olion, John Williams, A. E. Wells, of Kansas City, and John Green were present and took part in the service. The Bishop preached. Before the service the Bishop visited Brownell Hall, the Diocesan school for girls; made an address, and asked for them a holiday, as a Bishop's privilege, in order that they might attend the service. On the night before evening service was held also in the Cathedral, at which the above named clergyman, together with Rev. Dr. McNamara, H. B. Burgess, and others were present, when the Bishop preached. The special convention of the Dioceses, for the election of a Bishop meets on the 5th prox.

—On Sunday, 28th ult., the Bishop of Indiana, in Terre Haute, Indiana, at the request of the Bishop of this Diocese, advanced the Rev. A. A. Abbott to the priesthood. The local paper in Terre Haute announces the service thus: "Next Sunday Bishop Knickerbacker, of the Episcopal Church of Indiana, will assist in the ordination of Rev. A. A. Abbott, at Terre Haute, as Bishop of Missouri. The ceremony is a new one in Indiana, but quite impressive."

—During the summer, St. Peter's Church, in this city, has been newly painted throughout, and a Brussels carpet has been put down covering the entire floor of the church. The vestry room has also been tastefully arranged.

—St. James Academy, Macon City, opened on the 17th ult. with forty boarders, which will very soon, it is thought, be increased to 50, of whom several are from this city. The residence next the academy, in which Mr. Talbot lived, has been moved to a lot down on the corner, near the church. Mr. Talbot lives in the academy building. On the site of the residence Mr. Talbot has put up a drill hall, very much needed by the students for exercise in stormy weather. St. Agnes Hall opened with 2 boarders and 30 day scholars. The scholars in the academies form now a considerable proportion of the congregation, and it is thought that the church will soon have to be enlarged.

—Contracts have been let out for the rebuilding of St. Paul's Church, Brunswick, which was blown down. The old material will be used as far as possible. It will be 48 feet by 22, with side walls 20 feet high and 20 feet rafters, with vestry room 8 by 8 feet, and an entrance tower 8 by 8 feet. The plans have been kindly furnished by the Rev. Mr. Scheetz. There is not much strength in the parish, but the faithful ones there can not longer endure that their spiritual home should lie destitute.

—Mr. Andrew Leslie has read the services in All Saints' Church in this city during the absence of the Rev. Mr. Mason this summer. The physicians have forbidden Mr. Mason to prepare and deliver sermons on Sunday nights.

—The Bishop of Western Michigan preached on the scope and objects of the Charities and Corrections Congress in Christ's Church on the 12th, the day before it opened, and was to preach at St. John's at night.

—The Rev. S. H. Greene has been appointed by the Bishop chaplain to the sisterhood of the Good Shepherd.

—The Church of the Holy Communion is closed for the present on account of the renovation and changes which are being carried on. These include, besides the addition of a new organ chamber and the bringing of the chancel forward, the substitution of black walnut pews for the painted ones had before.

—Chaplain Betts appeared in his military dress with the soldiers at the parade on Friday night, 10th inst., and on horseback created, the paper says, as much interest as the Veiled Prophet.

—The Rev. J. E. Higgins, of Iowa, has removed to Exeter, Barry county, in this State, on account of the health of his family.

—The Bishop visited St. Paul's station, St. Louis county, on the 5th inst., and addressed the very interesting Sunday School which Mr. W. S. Cuddy has for years kept up in the chapel of the Holy Cross. He said the service afterwards, confirmed four persons, the fruit of the work of the Sunday School, and then celebrated the Holy Communion. This makes eleven confirmed there since the convention.

—Mr. Thomas W. Timothy, minister of the Colored Methodist Episcopal denomination, was confirmed at All-Saints' Church in this city on Wednesday, 8th inst. Mr. Timothy is a native of the West India Islands, and was a member of the Church of England. He has been received as a candidate for orders in this diocese.

—The Bishop leaves for the East on the 20th to be absent for a few days, to solemnize the marriage of his niece in New York, and to attend to some Church business in the East.

—It is stated that the church building of St. Mary's, First Ward, Kansas City, which was on ground with a short lease, has been sold for $180 and moved away. Services in it had been suspended before.

—The roof is now being placed on new Trinity Church in this city. Work on it had been delayed by the contractor. It is hoped that the church may be occupied in the latter part of next month. It will be somewhat longer than the old Trinity. Services in the meantime are of course maintained in the old church.

—The Rev. Dr. Ingraham holds semi-monthly services at Ferguson.

—The sermon of Rev. Mr. Gay of last Sunday was produced quite at length in the local paper of the next day. It was on the text: "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth," etc., and enforced the duty and privilege of a wise liberality with a variety of forcible illustrations.

—A delightful Harvest Home Festival was held by the Sunday School and Parish of Grace Church on Sunday, October 12. Every variety of fruit and vegetable, adorned with flowers and drooping vines, adorned the choir floor about the chancel. A procession of Sunday School children and teachers, with banners and class baskets of fruits, entered the church and deposited their baskets on the chancel steps. The services were very interesting. A wagon load of good things was sent to the Orphans' Home.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

St. Luke's Hospital has been in existence over seventeen years, doing quietly a wonderful work, not only in the caring for and curing of physical sickness, but also in its care for the souls of the sick and dying. But how very few of the parishes throughout this diocese take any thought for the means whereby that work is done. Look at the annual report in the Convention Journal, and we will find figures that ought to be a stern rebuke to us and make us earnestly resolve that another year shall bear better record for us. The amount contributed by parishes in 1876 was $4,017, in 1877 $3,290, in 1878 $1,150, in 1879

$2,317, in 1880 $1,464 94, in 1881 $1,768, in 1882 $3,149, in 1883 $1,675, in 1884 $1,329. In 1876 the number of communicants reported was 4,765; in 1884, communicants 5,432—making the average contribution per communicant in 1876, 84 cents, and in the past year 24 cents. In 1876 the number of patients cared for in the hospital was 221; last year 425, nearly double the number.

St. Luke's Hospital, with its little band of self-denying Sisters, stands with its doors ever open to all who need its care. Those who can, pay for treatment gladly, and quite as gladly is the same skillful treatment and loving care bestowed on the less fortunate ones who seek aid there. Until the past few months it had been the only hospital under the charge of the Church in the diocese; one is now being built in Kansas City, but is not, I believe, ready for patients, so St. Luke's still stands the only working Church hospital.

It belongs to the Diocese of Missouri, not to the city of St. Louis alone; it receives patients from all over the State.

A beautiful chapel has just been completed, built as a memorial to a beloved grandson by a devout Church woman. It is to be opened on the 19th of October for divine service. Will not every parish throughout the diocese remember St. Luke's Hospital on that day with their prayers and their alms? Let an offering be taken in every church, and let us thus try to realize that the Church is Catholic; let each member deem it not only a privilege, but a duty, to give as they are able to this work; let us get rid of the notion that "the Church" means the four walls within which we worship. Then our hospital, our orphans' home, and other Church works will have the support which they need. Our hearts will be warmed and our hands give freely, and the Church in this diocese will grow and prosper as it has never yet done.

May I, in conclusion, offer the suggestion to the rectors of the parishes that they read to their congregations a part or all of the report of St. Luke's Hospital, as published in the Convention Journal of this year? I doubt not that many, especially outside the city, know little more of the hospital than its name, and would willingly give to its aid were they asked to do so. A.

CONSECRATION OF ST. PAUL'S, MEXICO.

On Sunday, 14th ult., the Bishop of the Diocese solemnly set apart the new church in Mexico. It takes the place of the frame structure built in 1869, under the Rev. Mr. Jackson, which, however, because of the lightness of the frame, and the weight of the roof, and the force of the prairie winds, was early seriously injured. After being repeatedly repaired, at a cost great enough to put up another building, but with a result, in spite of strengthening towers on three corners, and heavy frame work inside, which left the church creaking ominously in high winds, it was determined that nothing would suffice but to take down the building and build over again. The congregation were induced by the apprehensions caused by the yielding joints.

In consequence of this, one of the two lots owned was sold, the church turned about, and built of brick. The arrangements are very neat, and the building will seat 250 persons. The chancel ends is apsidal of the full width of the church, and the vestry room is built off from one of these sides.

The day was beautiful, and the congregation greatly more than filled the church; many sat outside, and others had to leave. The Presbyterian minister held no service, and was present, and joined in the service. Besides the rector, the Rev. S. N. Watson, the Rev. Mr. Gray, of Florida, formerly in charge of the parish, was present and took part. The Bishop preached, and administered the Holy Communion. At the service in the afternoon the Bishop confirmed four persons. The work is gaining in strength in this important center. The Sunday School is being vigorously conducted. The church was paid for almost as soon as completed, and from within the place.

On the day following the Bishop with the Rev. Mr. Watson went over to Perry, in Ralls county, part of the journey fifteen miles, being driven over the prairie. Terrific storms prevented the congregation from a distance from coming, but several services, including the Holy Communion, were held during the Bishop's stay, which greatly comforted the few faithful ones in this remote place.

On Wednesday the Bishop visited Calvary Church, Louisiana, under the care of the Rev. Mr. Henry. The service was said by the Rev. Mr. Watson; the Bishop preached and confirmed three persons.

THE Annual Harvest Home Festival was held at St. John's Church, St. Louis, on Sunday, October 5th, the special sermon being preached in the evening by Bishop Robertson.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruits, wheat, corn, and other products of the earth. On the Reredos were sheaves of wheat, while below, on the Retable, were vases of flowers and dried grasses, while from the Cross hung rich clusters of grapes. On either side of the Altar were placed growing plants and palms, and over the Credence-table, Bishop's chair, and in the corners of the Sanctuary were hung wreaths of wheat and barley.

In the centre of the Choir a large wire stand supported a pyramid of vegetables, fruits and grain. A similar stand was placed in front of the Rector's Stall, and on the opposite side of the choir a great sheaf, surrounded with various vegetables. The Litany stool was almost covered with fruits in baskets, and several large pumpkins, with sacks of potatoes, adorned the chancel steps. Small palms in pots were arranged about the stands of vegetables, etc.

The Lectern of walnut was wreathed in red peppers. Festoons of barley reached from the Nave to the Choir, and wreaths of grain and red peppers hung on the gas standards in the Nave. The Festival, occurring on the first Sunday of the month, there were two celebrations of the Holy Communion, one at 7:30, the other at 10:45, a. m. The offering of the Eucharistic Sacrifice seemed a fitting opening for the day. The number of communicants at both celebrations was large. The regular service was said at 10:45, the Rector being assisted by the Rev. C. F. Collins, of Tennessee. The child of one of the Vestry was baptized.

In the evening at 7:30 the church was crowded, and the services very hearty. The choir, with a processional Cross of wheat carried before them, marched down the side alley and up the centre to the chancel, followed by the Rector and the Bishop. As they passed the western entrance, the Sunday School joined the procession and afterwards took seats reserved for them in the Nave. The shortened form of evening prayer with special hymns, was used, the entire service being choral. Bright and joyous hymns were sung, selected from the Church and Sunday School Hymnal. The Bishop preached an admirable sermon from the text, "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase," etc.

The offerings of the people were asked for St. Luke's Hospital and the Orphans' Home, to which places the fruit and vegetables were also sent.

With the old familiar hymn, "Lord dismiss us with thy blessing," the services ended, and the prayer was echoed in many a heart.

"May the fruits of thy salvation
In our hearts and lives abound."

THE REV. DR. SCHUYLER.

My Dear Bishop:

Our last letter left us on the way from the Hague to Antwerp, which we reached at 10 P. M., a short journey of three and one-half hours.

I forgot to mention that while at the Hague we saw two pictures which have a world-renowned reputation, "Paul Potter's Young Bull," and Rembrandt's "Lecture on Anatomy."

They are both remarkable as works of art; wonderfully true to the life in their conception; the latter perhaps on a higher sphere intellectually. But they are pictures you can study, and the more closely you examine them, the more you will be impressed with their power. I remember seeing the first, at the World's Fair in 1876 at Philadelphia, and I had not forgotten scarcely a detail of it.

Our hotel at Antwerp was not far from the Cathedral, and we had just gotten to our room, and opened the window, when the sweet music of its bells was wafted to our ears. It was in the stillness of the night, and it came seemingly from the sky, with no noisy clangor, but with the melody of angelic voices. As often as I heard it, and they ring out every few minutes, I would pause involuntarily to listen. There are sixty bells, and they have been ringing there for 400 years, the largest of them weighing 16,000 pounds.

The Cathedral itself is about 500 years old, and has been kept unharmed through all the wars which have ravaged both city and country; a love for the beautiful, if not a reverence for God's House, staying the hand of the destroyer.

While the building itself commands attention for its magnificent proportions and the beauty of its architecture, it is above all noted for the two famous pictures by Rubens, "The Descent from the Cross," and "The Elevation of the Cross." They are kept covered, and are only opened to view on Sundays and Thursdays to the public; but can be seen at any time by the payment of a franc for each individual of a party. It chanced to be Thursday morning, and we had an opportunity of looking at them as long as we liked, and the pictures were better than any sermon.

They bring our dear Lord before our mind, and press those events in His earthly history, which they commemorate, with a consciousness of their reality, which no word painting could possibly do. There must have been a species of inspiration, which swayed the mind, and guided the hand of the great painter when he conceived and executed these works. Engravings of "The Descent from the Cross" may be seen everywhere, but not so frequently that of "The Elevation." Rubens is almost worshipped in Antwerp. There is a fine statue of him in one of the squares, and at the entrance to the Museum they have his armchair preserved in a glass case. He is buried in the Church of Saint Jacques, in the private chapel of the Rubens family, behind the High Altar.

While these cities have so much of the past to excite the interest of the traveler, they are "live cities" at the same time, and what is going on now, as well as what has gone on the past, deserve his attention.

Visiting the Quay, which is in the course of construction, and when completed will be nearly three miles long and 340 feet wide; watching the departure of the steamers on their long voyage, and the loading and unloading of the vessels, I came across a dray loaded with sacks of flour. My attention was arrested by the marking of the sacks, and there were the familiar words, "St. Louis." Thinking it might be some other St. Louis than the one dear to me, I asked the drayman, who understood, and could speak some English, whether the flour was from St. Louis, Missouri, America, and he said "Yes," and when I told him and others standing around, that "I lived there," they looked at me with wonder, and wanted to know how many thousand miles away it was. How strange the feeling! and yet those bags seemed to be relations of mine.

Brussels is about an hour's ride from Antwerp, and under the same government, so we were not subjected to the annoyance of the inspection of the Custom-House officer, who seems so constantly on your track. I will do them the credit to say, that they have everywhere been uniformly polite, and have insisted upon no farther scrutiny than seemed absolutely necessary.

In our case we had only hand-bags, and we could not deal very largely in tobacco and whiskey, which seemed to be particularly under the ban. I wonder when we went into France from Brussels they did not suspect us of being lace merchants, for we might have carried thousands of dollars of lace, judging by what we saw in the "Royal Lace Manufactory," which we visited, and where we saw the women at their slow and delicate work. There is in my guide-book an article taken from "Household Words," on the Belgian lace makers, giving some very interesting facts connected with this business, in which we are told, "the very finest sort of this thread is made in Brussels in damp underground cellars; for it is so extremely delicate that it is liable to break by contact with the dry air above ground . . . and that there are numbers of old Belgian thread makers, who like spiders, have passed the best part of their lives spinning in cellars." Yet the making of the lace is by no means a disagreeable or unhealthy employment. The article farther says: "Lace making in regard to the health of the operators has one great advantage. It is a business which is carried on without the assembling of great numbers together; or taking women from their homes, and thereby breaking the bonds of family union. . . . The spinning-wheel and lace pillows are easily carried from place to place, and the work may be done, in the house, in the garden, or at the street door. In every Belgian town in which lace making is a staple business, the eye of the traveler is continually greeted with pictures of happy industry, attended by all its train of concomitant virtues." I have given these facts, because I know that it is a very general impression, that the lace wearers bear in its costly fabric, the very impress of the life's blood of their poor suffering sisters.

We took the cars at Brussels for Paris at 6:45 A. M., and reached there at 12:30 P. M.

I don't remember ever to have traveled at a more rapid rate, and over a smoother road. We seemed to fly, and very rarely to stop even for a moment. The railroads in Germany, France and the Netherlands are run with great regularity, promptness and speed; not so much so in Switzerland and Italy. There is one peculiarity which I have noticed in all the railroads on the continent, that they are constructed with an unusual number of tunnels; in order to make the roads as straight as possible, and thus secure greater speed, instead of running around a projecting hill, they go through it, and these tunnels occur so often that they interfere seriously with the pleasure of traveling. In the mode of constructing the cars, and in the convenience connected with them, I think we are far ahead of the people on this side, and I find this to be the opinion not only of our own people, but of foreigners who have traveled in our country. I have not seen in all our travel here, a half dozen sleeping-cars, and there is no approach to such a thing as a palace or dining-room car. Their roads seem to be better ballasted; and as a rule we have suffered far less from smoke and dust.

We entered Paris at midday, with the sun shining brightly, and through a pleasant portion of the suburbs, so that my first impressions were cheery, and these impressions were not changed during our stay of six days, which was all the time we could devote to our visit there. I don't wonder that so many people, who have the means and are under no necessity of struggling for a subsistence, should choose to come to Paris to live. If pleasure and enjoyment and ease are the ends of life, then here you can find them in perfection. All the time I was there I could not divest myself of the idea that, though the places of business were open, and men and women were there attending to their business, yet the great object with one and all was pleasure; and the streets more thronged at midnight, clearly proved that the necessary rest must encroach upon the time usually devoted to labor. And yet I did not witness any noisy carousing, nor were there any disgusting exhibitions of vice such as you may often see in the streets of New York City. The commune spirit is there, no doubt, in portions of the city we did not visit, and when I was pointed to the spot where the guillotine once stood, and where the blood of thousands was shed, and the unoffending Marie Antoniette offered her life a sacrifice, I could scarcely believe that such could be the records of history, they seemed so utterly inconsistent with the present surroundings. But the past repeats itself continually, and with the consciousness of this, despite all the gaiety and brightness, there would be with me a sense of insecurity and unrest that would prevent my choice of it as a place of permanent abode. The day after our arrival was Sunday, and it was the first time we heard our own service, and it was the first time I preached since we had been on the continent. We went, as a matter of course, to the American church. The Rector, the Rev. Dr. Morgan, was absent, but in his place was the Rev. Mr. Hayward, chaplain of the navy, whom I had known as a boy. The Sunday passed very pleasantly, and he was of great service to us as an intelligent guide during our short stay in Paris.

We visited, as a matter of course, "Notre Dame," "The Hotel des Invalides," "The Tomb of Napoleon," "The Madeleine," the "Palais de Trocadero," the "Arc de Triomphe," the "Place de la Concorde," the "Champs Elysees," and many other places of interest. We drove through the "Bois du Boulogne," which is one of the most extensive and beautiful parks, and in the evening, between the hours of 4 and 6, is the fashionable resort for a drive, when "turn-outs" of every conceivable style may be seen. It was too late in the season to see much of the style, but Paris was by no means deserted, as had been stated in many sensational articles on the cholera in our papers at home. There had not been a single case of Asiatic cholera within hundreds of miles of Paris, and I never felt in this respect more secure anywhere. Security for life is a comparative term: for "we know not what a day or an hour may bring forth," but there was no prevailing sickness, and the general health of the city was unusually good.

We went down the Seine by steamer to St. Cloud, where was one of the famous palaces of royalty, now a ruin—having been burned in the late German war of 1870-71; but the park and the grounds are there in all their beauty, and the view of the city and the adjacent country from an eminence within the enclosure is very extensive and varied. We spent a day in the Louvre, amid a forest of paintings; but what can we see in a day? We selected a few of the most noted, and gave the greater portion of our time to them; and among them one that is dreamily beautiful, "The Immaculate Conception," by Murillo, and for which the enormous sum of $125,000 was paid.

To me the most interesting day by far was spent at Versailles, which is about 13 miles distant from Paris, and which you reach by rail in 30 minutes. There is the palace which has been the residence of Kings and Emperors for hundreds of years, and with which are associated some of the important events of French history. It was there that Louis XIV., XV. and XVI. spent much of their time; and we were shown not only the public rooms, such as the council, reception, dining and ball rooms, but their private apartments, their bed rooms and sitting rooms, with the furniture as it has remained since their day. We saw there portraits, taken from life, and many of the battle scenes in which they had chosen to be portrayed, and one could read the character of the proud, selfish and cruel Louis XIV. in what he had chosen as memorials of himself. There, too, Napoleon Bonaparte had left traces of his vanity and selfishness, and we saw there the original picture of Napoleon mounted on his charger, which has been repeated thousands of times in the engravings of it, which are to be found everywhere.

What interested me most was the quiet sitting room and bed chamber of the unselfish and unoffending Marie Antoniette, with her writing desk and table, where she was accustomed to work. We went, too, to the little Swiss village on the exterior grounds, and were shown the milk house where she was accustomed to meet the humble peasants and superintend their butter making. And then there were the stairs up which the cruel, shouting mob rushed to seize her and her innocent husband, and carry them to prison and the block. To be on the very spot where these scenes were enacted gives a reality to the events of history which the most graphic portrayal by the pen of the historian must fail to impart. We were conducted through the palace, where, by-the way, the guide told us there were ten miles of pictures, and over the grounds, and when we reached the railroad depot on our return we were so tired with the walking and excitement that we had no wish beyond reaching our room to rest. Two days after we left Paris. M. S.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

[Reprint from the Boonville (Mo.) Topic,
May 22nd, 1884.]

The religious body, commonly known in the United States as the "Episcopal Church," claims to be the Church of Christ in this country, and founds that claim on two facts: first—The profession of the same faith as was held and taught by the apostles of our Lord and their immediate and universally acknowledged successors; and secondly—the possession of a regularly continued divinely organized ministry from the apostle's times to the present day. These two points are called respectively "Faith" and "Order," the first being secured to us by the second, giving us as will be easily seen, not only the law which must govern our spiritual life, but the authority necessary to interpret and administer that law. These two things lie at the base of every well settled government, and the two facts recited above are susceptible of historical proof and rational demonstration. Out of these grow naturally all the distinctive principles, all the peculiarities that mark the Episcopal Church, and to these she is accustomed to refer all questions for final adjust, whether they concern her government or her teachings.

The faith of the church, that which is necessary to be believed explicitly or implicitly in order to salvation, is to be found summed up in the Apostle's Creed, and is in the following words: "I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth. And in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost born of the Virgin Mary; suffered under Pontius Pilate; was crucified, dead and buried; He descended unto hell, (or intermediate state) the third day He rose from the dead; He ascended into Heaven and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty. From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins; the Resurrection of the Body; and the Life everlasting. Amen."

This simple statement of all which is necessary to be believed was the formula of the whole body of Christian people for many centuries after Christ; some of its statements received expansion in the General Councils of the church that met in the years 325 and 381, but without the slightest change by way of addition to, or subtraction from, the doctrine always held and taught. The creed or form of faith so authoritatively put forth is called the Nicene Creed, because mainly formulated at the Council of Nice, A. D. 325.

From the earliest period, the Christian Church has been officered by a ministry in which there are three distinct grades, with duties peculiar to each, viz.: Deacon, Priest and Bishop, corresponding very generally to the Levite, Priest and High Priest of the Jewish Church; the Deacon has charge of the poor, instructs the young, and generally assists the Priest in the lesser ministrations of his office, the Priest has the cure of souls, the power of absolution and blessing, he consecrates the Holy Eucharist and expounds the doctrines of the Church; to the Bishop is reserved the right of governing the clergy of his particular jurisdiction (called a Diocese) of administering confirmation to baptized persons after the example of the apostles, and of perpetuating the sacred ministry by the ordaining of Deacons and Priests and (when joined by other Bishops) of Bishops also.

No man can assume any of these functions to himself, because the Church teaches that our Lord committed this power of perpetuation to the apostles and they to other faithful men, who in their turn transmitted it to others; hence any attempt to unlawfully assume or exercise such powers, places the person so offending outside the pale of the church, and consequently he is no longer in communion with that Body to which our Lord is attached. This is what is meant by a divinely organized ministry, and also what is called Apostolical Succession. It will be seen at once that this is absolutely necessary to the preservation of a true faith on earth.

The Church so organized spread with great rapidity from Jerusalem throughout the then known world and was planted, with the same characteristics of creed and three-fold ministry, in every civilized land, and particularly from their commercial and political importance, from the centres of Rome and Constantinople. Forms of service, which embodied in each the same general features, for the celebration of the Lord's Supper and the administration of Holy Baptism, diffused among the people a knowledge of the faith, and these were, until the invention of printing, committed to memory by the people, and served not only as a test of orthodoxy, but also as a means by which Christian people could make themselves known to each other, (and it may be said, these also had their origin in the service of the Jewish Church which was largely liturgical.) Before the second century after Christ, the Church, as already described, had found its way into Britain and little effected the conversion of the different races that from time to time had possession of the country, until at last it became the established religion of that land, and from thence spread to this country, and wherever the English language is spoken or the English people have influence.

Of course in each nation there certain national peculiarities which affect minor matters in government, and the recitation of public offices, and in some parts the machinery, so to speak, of the one has grown complicated, and the ceremonies in the other, numerous and perhaps obscure, but nevertheless, the great mass of Christian people to-day throughout the world preserve still the three-fold ministry and the Divine faith of the Apostle's days. If the Christian population of the world be taken as 400,000,000, then about 320,000,000 represent in all essential features this faithful adherence to divine direction.

The Episcopal Church in this country, the natural successor of the English Church, with which it is in full communion, offers to bewildered men, who are looking on every side for certainty in matters of religion, the guarantee of a lawfully appointed ministry that can trace its authority backward to the Apostles, and a faith so simple, so comprehensive as that given above, subject to change or manipulation at the hands of men, with a Liturgy so dignified, so beautiful, and capable of such adaptation, that, whether used in the humblest chapel or grandest cathedral, it inspires every devout heart with the assurance that it is born of God.

And her growth in this country attests her divine mission. From 20 Dioceses, 530 Parishes and about 32,000 Communicants in the year 1830, she has increased to 49 Dioceses, 17 Missionary Jurisdictions, more than 3,000 Parishes, and about 400,000 Communicants in 1883. But these figures give a very faint idea of the strength of the Church in the United States, since they apply only to actual Communicants; that is, those baptized into her fold, number about 1,400,000. Then it ought to be said that her missionary efforts, both at home and abroad, place her in the front ranks of evangelizing powers, while her colleges, hospitals, schools and benevolent institutions are conspicuous in point of number and usefulness.

This communication is necessarily long but it will be remembered that we are speaking of a body that has a history, and yet we ought not to close without reference to one matter which is likely to arrest attention. A noticeable feature of the Episcopal Church is, that while it has a beautiful liturgy, to be found in its Prayer Book, it has no elaborate system of theology, no other dogmatic declaration of belief than the very short creed recited above, and the question is sometimes asked, What relation then does the Bible sustain to your Church? It may be answered in this way: The Church was in existence before the Bible, the Christian Church long before the New Testament was in its present shape, indeed the Creed (given above) was well known before all of the books were received by the Christian world. The Church is the witness to, and keeper of the Holy Scriptures. The Books which form the New Testament were written by clergymen of the Church to members of the Church in different places, and afterwards these were gathered together by direction of the Church and issued under her authority. It follows, of course, that the Church can only rightly interpret these Books. They stand to her in some such relation as the constitution and by-laws of a society stand to the society. She was before them, she is superior to them, they are the Word of God, she is the Body of God that emitted that Word, therefore, when they are taken up by the people and interpreted, they are apt to be interpreted in a sense unknown to the Church. As she produced them, she is most likely to know the meaning to be placed upon their utterances, and with her interpretation they are the Voice of God. She has, therefore, the profoundest reverence for them, and her greatest sorrow to-day is, to see them wrested in the hands of irresponsible men from their true meaning, men who accept the dead words, but rejects the voice that gives life and potency to those words. Still it is the undying prayer of the Church as it was of her divine Head, that "all who profess and call themselves Christians may be led into the way of truth;" and to this prayer your correspondent says, Amen.

ORDINATION.

On Sunday last in Grace Church, Osco, Ill., the Rev. W. H. Goodison was ordained priest by the Rt. Rev. Alexander Burgess, S. T. D., Bishop of Quincy, assisted by the Revs. James Newman, Dean, R. J. Walker, of Kewanee, and W. H. Sparling, of Geneseo. The sermon on the mission of a priest, was delivered by the Bishop, and was marked by his accustomed breadth and earnestness of treatment. The service was an imposing one. Suitable preparations had been made by the young people for so important a ceremony. The church was decorated with flowers not extravagantly, but tastily, and as becomes the home of God. All the appointments were churchly, and in keeping with Catholic custom. The candidate was presented by the very Rev. James Newman, who, with the other clergy, joined the Bishop in the imposition of hands. The newly ordained priest, formerly of the Diocese of Missouri, is the latest addition to the clerical force in this diocese. His work commences under the most favorable conditions. After the ordination a large number partook of the sacred elements in Holy Communion, the Bishop being celebrant, and altogether the day will be remembered by priest and people as one of the most impressive and spiritually refreshing days ever observed in the history of this parish.

DR. ADAMS, in a recent number of the Church man, urges that the proper architectural style for the American Cathedral is not the Gothic, with its pointed arches, open timbered, lofty roof and large pillars, which injure the building for speaking and for hearing. He thinks that the proper style should be that of horizontal lines and rounded arches and large free spaces, and that deference should be paid to the laws of acoustics, as deciding which is the best style for the church. He thinks that the upward lines, and columns and arches, and darkness of the Gothic, was intended for the medieval spectacular effects sought, for at the time of its adoption.

Now is the time to help our Church schools in the Diocese. It ought to be a matter of thought if children are being sent from home, whether they cannot well be sent to St. James Academy, or to the Sisters' School, or to St. Agnes Hall. They give guarantees of permanence, and they furnish a solid and a Christian education and culture. Money, too, is needed, in these days when we are laying the foundations of these institutions, for buildings. The Sisters need a permanent building. St. James needs money to pay the debt on what has now been built and to erect a gymnasium. Those who are able should remember them while living, and not forget them when they are distributing their means by will.

It was disreputable that the Christian principles of this community were outraged by the employment of the full force of men, tempted by double wages, in the work of putting up the gas fixtures on Sunday, Sept. 21st, in preparation for the illumination of the streets. It was done on the pretense that if there was a protracted rainy spell the work would be put back. It is said that the contractor consulted the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Thomson (not Mr. Wm. H.) and he said that there would be no religious scruples, and so the work went. God is a righteous judge, and He does not sleep. We will not gain anything by this habit which we are getting into of delaying work, and then thinking that we are justified in disregarding and violating God's day of rest.

QUITE a pressure was brought to bear on the Trustees of the St. Louis Exposition to induce them to open it for exhibition on Sunday, and it seemed for a while that they would yield. But a vast majority of the exhibitors united in a remonstrance, and stated that six days of sixteen hours each was all that they could stand; that they would not work on Sunday, and that even if the Exposition was opened they would not uncover their goods. The project was therefore wisely dropped. It was not manly for those who wanted to use the six days for their profit to rob God and the persons who would have to work in the Exposition in order to keep it open, of their day of rest. If they want to see the Exposition very much, they can take a day of their own time for it. Nor are they compelled to lounge about the house or the saloon if they cannot go to the Exposition on Sunday.

At the late Prison Association meeting in Saratoga, Warden Brush, of Sing Sing, said that one cause, greater than any other, that leads to prison, is disobedience in the family. Sometime in life every one must learn to obey, and when I hear a child say to a parent, "I won't," when told to do something, I see a candidate for prison. The governor of 1,500 convicts believe that the want of family government and subsequent disobedience of children is the most frequent cause of crime. The officers of prisons there generally concurred in the opinion that out of every 100 prisoners, 40 were incorrigible, 35 would probably be so, and only 25 would probably be reformed. In this State we have no reform schools by which we can separate the first offender from an old criminal, and so our penitentiaries are schools for learning crime. We ought, as other States have, to have a reform and industrial school for boys and girls.

TO OUR DISADVANTAGE.

We wish that the perspicacity of those at the time in charge of the matter in this Diocese could be praised as much as the forecast of Bishop Lee, of Iowa, in the management of the Episcopal fund. He secured an amount of money, not at the time very large, from friends in the East, and invested it shrewdly in good Iowa lands, which have now so increased in value that they have enabled to be built one of the largest and handsomest Episcopal residences in the country; enough more have been sold, the money invested to pay $2,000 or $3,000 income every year to the Bishop; and a large part of the lands are yet to be sold.

In this Diocese twenty-five years ago there was money in the Episcopal fund, given by individuals in the Diocese, not much to be sure, but enough to make a start with; with this land warrants were bought; but unfortunately they were located in counties which have had hardly any growth, and could not grow, being poor land. Then the title was allowed to become imperfect; the lands were overlooked, and were allowed to be sold for taxes. They were only with difficulty and at considerable expense redeemed, and a part of them have never been redeemed; and the part sold probably have not, counting taxes and time, paid two per cent. on the original outlay. Except in the matter of redeeming the Henry County land all is now doing that could be done, and the fund is taken care of and is growing. But the lesson is that wise investment at its beginning and all along is not a thing that takes care of itself, and that if there is not time to be given to it, a better use of money is to put it into safe, though lower interest, bearing stocks.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to $5,000, from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a Cot and a room for a child at our Hospital where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

THE ATHANASIAN CREED.

A gentleman in this city, interested in Creeds, writes that he has looked in vain in both the Church Cyclopædia, and also in the Enclopædia Britannica, for the text of the so-called Athanasian Creed, and writes asking whether we will not insert it. It is found in English Prayer Books, and its use is obligatory on certain days in the Church of England. We give it below. It was omitted when our Prayer Book was revised after the American Revolution:

Whosoever will be saved before all things it is necessary that he hold the Catholic Faith.

Which Faith except every one do keep whole and undefiled without doubt he shall perish everlastingly.

And the Catholic Faith is this: that we worship one God in Trinity and Trinity in Unity.

Neither confounding the Persons, nor dividing the Substance.

For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Ghost.

But the Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost is all one; the Glory Equal, the Majesty co-eternal.

Such as the Father is, such is the Son, and such is the Holy Ghost.

The Father uncreate, the Son uncreate, and the Holy Ghost uncreate.

The Father incomprehensible, the Son incomprehensible, and the Holy Ghost incomprehensible.

The Father eternal, the Son eternal, and the Holy Ghost eternal.

And yet there are not three Eternals, but one Eternal.

As also there are not three incomprehensibles, nor three uncreated, but one uncreated, and one incomprehensible.

So likewise the Father is Almighty, the Son Almighty, and the Holy Ghost Almighty.

And yet there are not three Almighties, but one Almighty.

So the Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God.

And yet there are not three GODS, but one GOD.

So likewise the Father is Lord, the Son Lord, and the Holy Ghost Lord.

And yet not three Lords, but one Lord.

For like as we are compelled by the Christian verity to acknowledge every Person by himself to be God and Lord;

So are we forbidden by the Catholic Religion to say, There are three Gods, or three Lords.

The Father is made of none, neither created nor begotten.

The Son is of the Father alone, not made, nor created, but begotten.

The Holy Ghost is of the Father, and of the Son, neither made, nor created, nor begotten, but proceeding.

There is one Father, not three Fathers; one Son, not three Sons; one Holy Ghost, not three Holy Ghosts.

And in this Trinity none is afore, or after other; none is greater or less than another;

But the whole three Persons are co-eternal together, and co-equal.

So that in all things, as is aforesaid, the Unity in Trinity, and the Trinity in Unity, is to be worshipped.

He therefore that will be saved must thus think of the Trinity.

Furthermore it is necessary to everlasting salvation that he also believe rightly the incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

For the right Faith is, that we believe and confess that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and Man.

God of the substance of the Father, begotten before the world and Man, of the substance of his Mother, born in the world;

Perfect God, and perfect man; of a reasonable soul and human flesh subsisting;

Equal to the Father, as touching his Godhead, and inferior to the Father, as touching his Manhood.

Who although he be God and Man, yet is he not two, but one Christ;

One, not by conversion of the Godhead into flesh, but by taking of the Manhood into God.

One altogether, not by confusion of substance, but by unity of Person.

For as the reasonable soul and flesh is one man, so God and Man is one Christ;

Who suffered for our salvation, descended into hell, rose again the third day from the dead.

He ascended into heaven, he sitteth on the right hand of the Father, God Almighty, from whence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

At whose coming all men shall rise again with their bodies, and shall give account of their own works.

And they that have done good shall go into life everlasting, and they that have done evil into everlasting fire.

This is the Catholic Faith, which except a man believe faithfully, he cannot be saved.

PERSONAL.

—The Republican candidate for State Treasurer is the Senior Warden of Calvary Church, Sedalia.

—Mr. Ralph Talbot, formerly of this city, is one of the standing committee of the jurisdiction of Colorado.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of the Rev. Samuel Hollingsworth, D. D., of New York.

—Dr. Potter has intimated to the standing committee of Nebraska his inability to depart from his purpose to decline the Episcopate of that diocese.

—Bishop Gillespie, of Western Michigan, pronounced the prayer at the opening of the Conference of Charities and Correction now being held in this city.

—The porte cochere of Bishop Potter's house at Newport is called the Whiting Fee, as the bishop dedicated a plump wedding fee to that service.

—Mr. R. Fulton Cutting, of New York, has bought a large tract of land near Jacksonville, Florida, and built on it a church and parsonage for work among the colored people, and endowed the whole handsomely. Archdeacon Kirkby is to take charge of the work.

—A number of clergymen from other dioceses have been in St. Louis during the past month—among others, the Rev. Mr. Dooris of Indiana, Davis of Virginia, Mackey of Kansas, Collins of Tennessee, Whitmarsh of Springfield, Leonard of Kansas.

—Some consternation has been created in ecclesiastical circles in England, because the new Bishop of Ripon has discarded the gaiters and apron of the Episcopate—especially as some not having claim to them by any local usage have adopted them.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of Rev. Geo. C. Athole, of New York, and Rev. Hobart Williams, of Rhode Island.

—Lars Olssen Smith, the Swedish philanthropist has, after a wide observation found that on an average 15 per cent of a man's earnings go for rent, and 60 per cent for food, and therefore if food twice as nourishing can be furnished, a saving of double can be made to him beyond what is possible in a saving of rent. He thinks that cooking by steam water bath is the most economical. He supplies for 16 cents a day in Sweden a working man with three hearty meals, and on this makes a profit, which he spends in music halls, libraries, &c. But then nothing is wasted. He says that co-operation cooking will become the common mode, because the waste of separate fires and kitchen room is appalling. He undertakes to supply a family of four, who will pay him the rent of their kitchen and the cost of their fuel, with dinner all the year round for nothing.

—At a Yale College commencement just after Bishop Seabury had returned from Scotland, where he had been consecrated, the church being very crowded, Bishop Seabury came in after the exercises had begun, and word was passed to President Stiles, and he was asked whether he could not make room for him on the platform. He objected, however, and said that—looking around at the many Congregational ministers present—where there were so many Bishops, he could not make any invidious distinction over one.

—Bishop Garret, of Northern Texas, tells the story that in a congregation of cowboys once, he was explaining, just before the creed, that in olden times, at the saying of the creed, knights used to draw their swords, and hold them aloft to show that they were ready to defend their faith with their blade if necessary. He began the creed, but something caused him to look around, and there was one of the cowboys shouting out the belief with a pistol raised aloft in each hand. That was the Texas adaptation of the knightly pledge.

In noontide trance and starry dream
My loved and lost I often see;
Though Death's cold river flows between,
Their gentle whispers come to me.

And Aidenn's walls I see in dreams,
The shining turrets golden-tiled;
But swiftly fade their lovely gleams,
And leave behind a longing wild.

There cleansed and pure from earthly stain,
Full many a martyred spirit dwells;
Through fire and wrong they did attain
Those far celestial citadels.

Ye white-robed warders, strong and bright,
That on those shining summits stand,
Entreat for me the Prince of Light,
That I may reach His happy land.

GIERLOW.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE CHILDHOOD OF THE WORLD. By Edward Clout. No. 60 of the "Humboldt Library of Science." Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York City.

"The Childhood of the World" is a simple, lucid account of the origin and development of civilization, tracing the rise and progress of governmental institutions, religion, manners and customs, arts and sciences, from the earliest periods of the history of man. The fruits of the labors of Taylor, Lubbock, Max Muller and other great scholars are presented in a form so attractive as to command the attention of the most listless reader.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW FOR OCTOBER is notable as well for the importance of the topics treated as for the eminence of its writers. The leading article, "Moral Character in Politics," is by President J. H. Seelye. "Benefits of the Tariff System," a sequel to the article in the September number on the "Evils of the Tariff System," is a symposium consisting of three articles advocating the policy of protection of American industry with great ingenuity of reasoning and abundant citations of statistical facts. In addition to these, the Review has an article by the Rev. Dr. Jessop, entitled "Why I Wish to Visit America;" "The Philosophy of Conversation," by O. B. Frothingham; "The Origin of Yellow Fever," by Dr. C. Creighton; "Shall the Jury System Be Abolished?" by Judge Robert V. Hayne; "The Genesis of Tennyson's Maud," by Richard Herne Shepherd; and "The Development of Machine Guns," by Lieut. C. Sleeman.

'49. THE GOLD SEEKER OF THE SIERRAS. By Joaquin Miller. This is a new work, thoroughly characteristic of its author, a story of the Western mines, and abounds in strong dramatic situations, with pathos and humor. Evidently Mr. Miller had not told all his stories. Funk & Wagnall, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York. Standard Library, 25 cents.

THE OCTOBER CENTURY, which closes the twenty-eighth volume of this magazine, contains the announcements of some of the features of the coming magazine year, chief among which is a profusely illustrated series on "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War," most of which will be written by generals, either upon the Federal or the Confederate side, actually in command during the various engagements. Prefatory to these articles is the opening paper in this number on "Lights and Shadows of Army Life."

The article on the "Social Conditions of the Colonies" is profusely illustrated by pictures of ante-revolutionary houses now standing. Prof. Langley's second paper in his untechnical series on "The New Astronomy," describes in a popular way "The Surroundings of the Sun."

The fiction of the number embraces a story, "Braxton's New Art," for the Century for last December, will be remembered. In addition are the closing parts of Cable's "Dr. Sevier," and of Boyesen's novelette, "A Problematic Character."

Washington Gladden contributes an interesting discussion, tending to show how the increase of wealth in the world is due to the progress of Christianity, and suggesting means for its employment.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR OCTOBER. The last number of the present volume maintains the present high standard of excellence that has marked it during the year—the best pledge of continued improvement in the future. The number opens with a paper, historical, critical and practical, on "Slang," entertaining and valuable to parents and children alike.

The celebrated Lotos Club cat, Dick, is the subject of an appreciative sketch. Various scenes in his nine lives are illustrated, and his portrait, from an oil painting by J. H. Dolph, accompanies the biography.

"Lost on the Plains" is the title of a bright story by Joaquin Miller, and "The Romance of a Menagerie" is an account of the remarkable friendship existing between little Donald Melville and "Queen," mother of the baby elephant "Bridgeport."

NORTHWESTERN PULPIT. Sept. 15. Sermon by Waldo Messaros. Subject, "The Moral Influence of Dynamite." J. A. Wender. 1716 Jefferson street, Philadelphia. $2 a year.

If you have any pain, ache, or ill-feeling from any cause, if you seem "pretty well," yet lack energy and do not "feel up to the mark," if you suffer from disease, we beg you to at once try these remarkable curatives. They cannot and do not injure like medicine. Always doing good, never harm. There is no shock or sensation felt in wearing them. There is no waiting a long time for results; electro-magnetism acts quickly, generally the first week, more frequently the first day, and often even during the first hour they are worn, their wonderful curative powers are felt.

The mind becomes active, the nervous and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and all the old-time health and good-feeling comes back. They are constructed on scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating, health-giving current to the whole system. Professional men assert there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

THE CELEBRATED DR. W. A. HAMMOND, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, lately lectured upon this subject, and advised all medical men to make trial of these agencies, describing at the same time most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem hopeless.

Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00; Flesh Brushes, $3.00. Dr. Scott's Electric Tooth Brushes, 50 cents; Insoles, 50 cents.

The Corsets do not differ in appearance from those usually worn; we substitute our flat steel magnetos in place of the ordinary corset steels. These Corsets are all equally charged, differing only in quality and design. They are elegant in shape and finish, made after the best French pattern, and warranted satisfactory in every respect. The above applies equally as well to the Electric Belt for gentlemen.

The prices are as follows: $1, $1.50, $2 and $3 for the Corsets, and $3 each for the Belts. We now make all these Corsets in dove and white only. They are sent out in a handsome box, accompanied by a silver-plated compass, by which the Electro-Magnetic influence can be tested. We will send either kind to any address, post-paid, on receipt of price, with 20 cents added for packing or registration, and we guarantee safe delivery into your hands. Remit in Post-office Money-order, Draft, Check, or in Currency by Registered Letter. In ordering kindly mention and state exact size of corset usually worn. Make all remittances payable to GEO. A. Edward Everett Hale again promises us a new book of Christmas stories. The title will be "A Narragansett Christmas." Mr. Hale has spent a considerable part of every year in the Narragansett country for several years. The new book represents a party assembled there for the Christmas festivities, of some of the principal characters of his different stories, particularly of those who met in his "Christmas in a Palace" a year ago. The publishers are Funk & Wagnall.

"STORIES IN RHYME FOR HOLIDAY TIME" is the musical title of a book now in the press of Funk & Wagnall. The author is Edward Jewett Wheeler, known to the readers of St. Nicholas and Wide Awake, and Walter Satterlee has illustrated it in his usual happy manner.

THE CHURCH PRESS, published in connection with the Church Review, presents a very handsome typographical appearance. It is edited under the veteran of the old Gospel Messenger, Dr. Watson. $1 a year. P. O. Box 1839, New York.

THE YANKEE SCHOOL TEACHER IN VIRGINIA. By Lydia Wood Baldwin. A series of sketches of life in the Old Dominion immediately after the close of the war. The author has drawn largely upon her personal experience, and the result is a work that has all the value of truth and all the interest of fiction. We could not name another volume where life among the negroes of the South is portrayed with such evidences of intimate knowledge of their habits, beliefs, superstitions, and modes of every-day life. 25 cts. Funk & Wagnall, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

TEACHING AND THE TEACHERS, or the Sunday School Teacher's Teaching Work and the Other Work of the Sunday School Teacher. By H. C. Trumbull, D. D. If any person is invested with the anxious and difficult task of Sunday School instruction, and is, as many ought to be, diffident as to his or her competence for it, and desires to know how better to impart knowledge, and kind to interest, and lead to better living, no wiser thing could be done than to send for this book, of nearly 400 pages, handsomely printed and bound, and study the wise suggestions and rules that are herein given by one who has a very wide experience. $1.50. John D. Wattler, Philadelphia.

THE OCTOBER WIDE AWAKE opens with a delightful poem, entitled "Little Christel," and for it has been drawn a very charming frontispiece—all the full-page drawings of this month's issue are exceptionally fine notably the two illustrations for the Serial Poem, Wordworth's Ode, "Intimations of Immortality." There are two good short stories for boys, "How Two School Boys Killed a Bear," and "A Modern Hero." The illustrated papers of the number are very interesting reading for both young and old—"Old School Days, III.," and "About Other Dwarfs." Edward Everett Hale's club talk concerns "State Rights;" we believe no other young folks' magazine boasts a "political editor." $3 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., publishers, Boston, Mass.

L'EVANGELISTE.—A Romance of Alphonse Daudet. This thrilling story is founded upon the doings of the Salvation Army. It is unlike many French stories, clean, wholesome and refined, and by a writer of whom Henry James says that we have no one, either in England or America, to oppose him. Paper, 50cts. Funk & Wagnall, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York. This is the only complete edition published in this country.

HIMSELF AGAIN, by J. C. Goldsmith A. Novel. No. 118 of the Standard Library. An excellent story for hot weather. 25cts. Funk & Wagnall, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

GENERAL NEWS.

—At the Diocesan Convention of Kentucky, held recently, the presiding Bishop, the Bishop of Delaware was present. He delivered a memorial discourse on Bishop Smith, which will be published.

—The Convention of Maryland will be held this month, called to elect to the vacant Episcopate.

—The Rev. Mr. Steel, a missionary in Illinois, travels now about on his journeys fifty miles a week on a tricycle. He goes at the rate of seven miles an hour, and needs no forage.

—The Rev. Mr. Van Antwerp's Church History has gone on to a fifth edition.

—Mrs. Huntington, of Cincinnati, has recently died and left to Bishop Whipple for his schools in Faribault the very large sum of $300,000. She had before, as Mrs. Shumway, erected the gem of a chapel there for the Shattuck School, called the Shumway Chapel. It was a beautiful structure of stone, with exquisite, imported, stained glass, and itself must have cost very much. This will wholly free from debt his newly built St. Mary's Hall for girls, which cost over $100,000, and endow his Divinity School, two or three of the professorships of which were already provided for permanently.

—The Seabury Centennial has been taking place for the past two weeks in Scotland, and much mention has been made of it in the secular papers. Bishop Bedell perhaps emphasized the English line a little too much for the temper of this month, and was not feeling able to go to Scotland.

—The interments in Greenwood Cemetery, near New York, in the 40 years of its use, have reached 225,413.

—One evening a lady of Zion Church, Philadelphia, in reading was struck with the verse in Ecclesiastes, "I perceive that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his own works, for that is his portion; for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?" She pondered long and deeply over it. The result was that the next morning she placed $2,000 in her pastor's hands as a contribution towards a rectory. With this beginning the house was soon built. So often the money would have been invested at a risk and be lost. At this moment scores of men are poor and can think that what they were lavishing could now be doing permanent good as a rectory or a chapel, or an endowed bed at the hospital.

—Recently, in Natchez, a Christian layman was entering upon the use of a house which he hoped would long be to him a home, and so he entered upon it with a service of benediction, in which, after appropriate selections, read from the family Bible, which was finally enthroned over the hearth, the whole concluding with prayer.

—Mr. P. D. Armour, of Chicago, has just cleared a deal in pork, by which he has cleared $2,000,000. Five years ago he did the same thing, and cleared $3,500,000.

—The Cunard steamer Oregon has just made the fastest trip each way on the Atlantic: Queenstown to New York, 6 days, 9 hours and 52 minutes; New York to Queenstown, 6 days, 9 hours and 10 minutes.

—A little London child, who had never been out of the city, was taken to the country. She saw a robin flying about; she had never seen one unconfined, and exclaimed: "Poor little bird, it has no cage."

—A gentleman was recently reading a volume out of our Mercantile Library, when he came upon a paper containing notes made by a well-known Roman priest, of this city, whose name it bore, and in whose hand-writing it was. It was a sheet full of oburgations made during the reading of Froude's Essays apparently. It was this paragraph: "St. Peter's Church (Rome) is sublime." And then is added: "It ought to be. It cost Christendom the Protestant heresy, and millions and millions of her children to the Church."

—A new departure is taking in the English Church. In appointments to vacancies in all the Cathedral canons and prebendries, as they call it, the condition is made that the persons shall engage to be at least eight months of the year in residence. This will tend to make the appointments of real service.

—The Secretary of the House of Deputies has intimated that an edition of the Prayer-Book with the changes proposed by the Committee on Liturgical Enrichment, as modified by the late General Convention, is shortly to be published.

—The Rev. Dr. Walter Delafield, of Terre Haute, Indiana, has given a memorial bell to Nashotah, and the Rev. Harry I. Bodley, another to his parish in North Adams, Mass. Each weighing a ton, and was made by the Clinton H. Meneely foundry in Troy, N. Y. Each also was given as a memorial of the donor's father. Could we not have some such gift in this Diocese?

—Arch-deacon Kirkby has recently been making a preaching tour among the colored congregations in Virginia. In one place he found a church of the Zion Union denomination ready to be turned over to the Diocese with a hundred persons waiting to be confirmed. Fifty had already been confirmed. Another minister, Mr. Strange, has another class of 150 waiting for the Bishop this Fall.

—Although both Committees of the Missionary Board, foreign and domestic, closed their books for the year, on the 1st of September with a large debit within a few days after legacies were paid in which equalled the deficiency, so that their work for this year starts off even.

—The Secretary of the House of Deputies of the General Convention is preparing for the official year Book of Church of England, a report of Church work and progress in our Church in the United States during the past year. He is preparing this out of facts furnished him by the Bishops of the several Dioceses, and under the authorization of the General Convention.

BAKING POWDERS CONTAINING LIME.

Why "Royal" is Absolutely Pure.

Analysis shows the presence of Tartrate of Lime in several brands of Baking Powder placed upon the market.

"DR. PRICE'S" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"PEARL" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"GROFF'S SNOW-FLAKE" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"DE LAND'S" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

All BULK Baking Powders contain Tartrate of Lime.

The presence of this substance in the above-named Baking Powders results from the use of inferior Cream of Tartar in their manufacture. The Cream of Tartar of the market, from which they are made, contains Tartrate of Lime in amounts varying from six to ten per cent, and hence these powders contain this impurity as a foreign substance to a corresponding extent, which is of no value, but a positive detriment in any powder in which it is found.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from Cream of Tartar specially refined and prepared for its use by patent processes by which the Tartrate of Lime is totally eliminated. This highly important result has been attained only with great care, labor, and expense. In money alone a quarter of a million dollars has been invested in patents, machinery and appliances by which the crude Cream of Tartar, being procured direct from the wine districts of Europe and subjected in this country to these exclusive processes, is rendered entirely free, not only from the objectionable Tartrate of Lime, but from other foreign substances. This adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing Royal Baking Powder; but, as all its other ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care, and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is entirely free from any extraneous substance, and chemically pure in all respects. No lime, earth, alum, or impurity of any kind can, by inadvertence, or by the use of adulterated articles or otherwise, be introduced into the "Royal," and it contains no ingredients except those certified by the Government and other eminent chemists necessary to make a pure, wholesome, and perfect Baking Powder.

It costs more to manufacture the Royal Baking Powder than any other, but it is, as shown by chemical analysis, the only "absolutely pure" Baking Powder made.

We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbins' Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper.

A box of this Soap contains sixty bars. Any lady buying a box, and sending us sixty cuts of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health." — [Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. Louis, Mo.

Offertories will be received at these services for the Theological Education or the Permanent Episcopal Fund, of which notice is requested to be given. The Bishop will be ready to meet the vestry whenever it is desired, and to catechize the children whenever it is possible. He desires that the Holy Communion may be prepared for on Sundays and Festival Days. On week days, unless otherwise arranged, it is desirable that the service shall be at night; any other service which the time will permit will be had. The Bishop will be glad to meet the people socially when they can be conveniently arranged for. He desires that the parish register may be written up, and that he may see it.

A WIDOW lady in this city, in circumstances which require her to make disposition of them, desires to find a purchaser for ten volumes, bound in half-leather, of the Illustrated London News, for the five years beginning with 1866 to 1870. They are in good second-hand condition. Will some one send to the Bishop a proposal for purchasing them.

THE Bishop is glad to acknowledge the courtesy which has enabled him to complete the files of the Churchman for the Diocese Library since the beginning of 1877. For this he has been indebted among others, to the Revs. Mr. Davis and Valliant, Mr. Jas. A. Waterworth, Miss Bulkley, and Mr. Metcalfe, of the Churchman office, and others whose names were not given. The library will be substantially richer for this chronicle of the Church life of the last few years. He still needs, to complete his files, now partially filed for 1875, Jan. 2, 9, 16; Feb. 20; March 13, 20, 27; April 3, 10, 17, 24; May 1, 8, 15, 22, 29; June 5, 12, 19, 26, July 3, and for 1876, July 1; August 26.

THANKSGIVING OFFERTORY.

It will be remembered that under the Canon of the Diocese the offertory in all of our parishes on Thanksgiving day, or when the service is not held on that day, then on the Sunday nearest to it, is devoted to the very important object of the Theological Education Fund, the fund for the partial care of those in this diocese who are preparing for the ministry. There are dependent on the fund now some who are pursuing their academical and collegiate studies in anticipation of their theological course, and some who are engaged in their theological course proper. The amounts which have been given for this object are small and from only a few of the parishes. Certainly any clergyman who remembers how difficult it was for them to find their own way to the ministry should endeavor by previous notice and explanation as to the purpose of this offertory to make it as large as the object is important. Send the amount to Mr. Joseph Franklin, Treasurer, Sixth and Olive, St. Louis.

THE GROWTH OF THE DIOCESE.

The results tabulated in the Convention Journal very often affords subjects which can profitably be gravely considered. They are not always entirely accurate, while of course they are approximately so; and when the results given for one year are compared with those for another year, the errors may be supposed to be such that a comparison of the footings of one year with those of another are fair and trustworthy.

There are footings in many particulars which are not favorable to comfort and self-laudation, when we think of what we, as the historical Church, should be doing in this vastly growing State. If we were something else besides what we are, or existed in a community that was retrograding or standing still, the case would be different. But the fact is, that with great privileges and trusts, we are, except in some special and exceptional localities, in a Diocese which in all material things is growing enormously. The general population in almost all of our communities is going forward rapidly.

In the number of confirmations every year, while on examination in certain parishes, the number is not that which the annual increase in other parts of the Church would lead us to expect, still, speaking broadly, the number in the Diocese taken together is not specially low. In contributions, also, we have well kept up our place. But in the number of communicants, as indicated by the results, say of the last seven years, the gain has been strangely small. It is startling to think how small that gain seems to have been, when we consider the number of confirmations all along, and that our State has in that time greatly increased in population, and therefore presumably in the number of communicants who have removed into our parishes.

In 1878 the number of communicants reported as in the Diocese was 5,126; in 1879, there having been 369 confirmations since the last report, the number of communicants reported was only 5,167—an increase of only 41. There had been, as reported in 1879, 275 communicants added by removal into parishes, and 337 by admission of those confirmed, making 612 gained; but there were 452 communicants reported as removed, 97 died, and 56 withdrawn, making 605 losses that year.

In 1880 the number reported was 5,353, a gain of 186, there having been that year 404 persons confirmed. In 1881 there were reported 5,318 communicants, 337 persons having been confirmed—a loss of communicants during the year of 35. In 1882, there having been 303 confirmations, the number reported was 5,413—a gain of only 95. In 1883, with 465 confirmations, the number of communicants reported was 5,385—a loss of 28, even though in the time there had been 465 persons confirmed. In 1884 the number reported was 5,432, a gain of only 471 even while 515 persons had been confirmed.

In brief, the result stands thus, that since 1879, while there have been 2,764 confirmations in the Diocese, all of whom presumably should have become communicants, and in a State in which, from the growth of population, it might have been expected that the gains of communicants in the Parishes on the average from removals into them would have equalled those who were removing from them, the actual increase of communicants has only been 306, or about 43 each year.

Now, the anxious question recurs, what is the cause of this relative loss, and almost invisible gain? With such a gain we do not stand relatively where we did seven years ago. The confirmations have kept up. Have those who have been confirmed been brought on, as might be expected, to the Holy Communion? The States from which Missouri is now receiving its increase mainly are those in which the Church is fairly strong. Whether we benefit by it or not, it may be safely assumed that as many have come into the Diocese as have gone out and have died. Many of those who have come have probably not made themselves known. There are always losses in a removal. People allow time to pass before they declare themselves. We seem, then, to be left to the alternative that the confirmed persons are not brought on to the Holy Communion, and that those who come on to the Parishes are not looked up promptly and enrolled. The loss is real and actual and so large that it may well cause anxiety. There have been, in the last seven years, nine times as many persons confirmed as have been added to the Communicant list. With 2,764 persons confirmed, we have only increased in Communicants known and reported, from 5,126 in 1878 to 5,432 in 1884. How this comes about ought to engage the attention, and give its lesson, and impart activity to every person involved.

PASTORAL SYMPATHY.

The annexed extract of a letter, received by the Bishop, as it gives no names and therefore furnishes no clue, may fairly be published as showing the right personal interest which a clergyman ought to feel in all the poorest and simplest of his people:

"Bishop, I do 'love the simplest of my people,' and the simpler and poorer they are the greater is my love and sympathy for them. You struck the key-note, though, when you said that the people must know that their priest loves them. How to make them know it, is the question. I am ever on the alert to take advantage of every opportunity that presents itself of letting them see how I feel towards them. It is often a case of waiting for the opportunity. It is a class of people who are quick to resent any visit or attention which has the least appearance of being a 'patronizing' of them. That very difference you speak of in the way of clean clothes, clean hands and better speech, etc., makes them over sensitive, and the serious point where tact is necessary is to condescend to men to low estate but avoid all appearance of its being a condescension. If they could only know at the start how I do love them, how truly I sympathize with their cares and joys, and how gladly I would do anything to alleviate the former and increase the latter, there would be no trouble. But such knowledge cannot be forced upon them; it must dawn upon them gradually. And if I have this love for them in my heart (as I truly have, so far as I know my heart), then they will be obliged to see it after awhile. If only my physical and mental and spiritual health were greater I should have no fear about the future.

Pardon me for writing so much on the subject to you; I know how much you have of other matters to think of and care for. But there is no one here for me to talk with; i. e. no one that feels as I do about the people. Every day when I see them hard at work, fatigued physically and often 'blue' over their cares in providing for their families, I just long for the power of opening their eyes that they may see and perceive how much they are losing in the way of peace and hope-born strength in not having God and his Christ for their best friend. Well, one thing, at least I can do, and I do it—I can pray to God for their enlightenment, that He will induce them to love me for His sake, and to let me do all I can for them.

EARLY DAYS.

Here is a letter of Bishop Kemper's, written in and about this Diocese in its early days. This was written just before his first visit to Wisconsin. He was living in St. Louis. He gives an idea of the toil that was then needed to travel through it, as contrasted with the ease with which the same journey, may be made now. The letter is from the Nashotah Scholiast, an admirable monthly, put forth by the students, and giving what is most interesting concerning its work, and also of value as history. It has illustrations of the early Bishops, and the founders also of Nashotah. 75 cents a year.

BOONVILLE, MO., NOV. 11, 1838.

I started from St. Louis, on Tuesday at noon the 6th inst., in the stage. That morning it snowed and there were strong symptoms of winter; still it appeared to be too early for the cold to become permanent. I was enabled at night to preach to the congregation at St. Charles, and to cheer them by the prospect of soon having a missionary settled among them. The next morning I was off by three. One of my fellow travelers was Col. Benton, one of the senators from Missouri. On Thursday morning I arrived at Fulton, expecting to meet Mr. Peake and Mr. Gregory there, but the weather was so unpleasant that they remained snug in this place. That night I celebrated Divine Service at Fulton, and during the day became acquainted with the few Episcopalians who reside there. During Friday I was in great perplexity. Everything indicated approaching winter, and I more than once determined to return to St. Louis. But at noon the clouds dispersed, and at two I was on horseback, bound to Boonville. All yesterday I rode in the snow, which at times fell exceedingly fast. Being well wrapped up, I enjoyed myself, and was much cheered by the beautiful text for the day. I had to stop six miles from this place with an old lady and her sons, who had large flocks of geese, and bees, the former of which kept up such a clatter about the door that at times we could not hear each other speak. I had family prayers with the old lady and her sons, and they refused taking any compensation for my supper, bed and breakfast.

I arrived here yesterday an hour before sunrise, and found Mr. Gregory with Mr. Peake. They had considered the weather too bad for them to encounter, but were encouraged for the future when they learned I had enjoyed the ride and was rather warm during the whole Saturday.

Yesterday I administered the Lord's Supper to the little band of communicants in this place (Boonville), and preached in the afternoon. Some time to-day it is probable we shall start for the Senecas. I hope we shall reach them in a week's time, and I am assured we shall not be obliged to camp out once, but on the contrary, will find houses to sleep at, the whole way. To turn back now would be exceedingly painful. The Church expects this visit to be made, and is anxious to know the result, and it is highly probable that we may have some weeks of fair weather before Christmas. I shall not be able, I fear to attend the consecration of Mr. Polk, but there will be enough without me, whereas this journey is peculiarly mine. I left my valise, with my clothes, books and all my papers, at Fulton, fully expecting it by stage of yesterday. It did not, however, come, and I cannot wait for the next stage, which will not be in until Wednesday. I shall therefore buy one or two articles and go off without my papers. My next may be from the Seneca nation.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. A. A. Abbott has been transferred to the Diocese of Minnesota.

—The Harvest Home Festival given by Grace Church in this city was held on Sunday night, 12th ult. There was a large quantity of fruit and flowers arrayed about the chancel, which were afterward taken to the Orphans' Home.

—The outlook for building the church at Odessa, Lafayette Co., has become so much brighter that it is now determined to add on to the plan at once the chancel and vestry room. The nave will be 22x40, the chancel 14x10 and the vestry room 7x8 feet. The roof will be open of pine and oiled. The contract has been let for a very low amount, for $750, without the seats, lighting or heating. They are pushing on their enterprise with great energy.

—They celebrated the second anniversary of the Rev. J. J. Wilkins' entrance upon the charge of Christ Church, Boonville, by a reception given him.

—The Bishop was at Ironton on the 15th ult., to solemnize a marriage in St. Paul's Church. The Rev. Mr. Betts had been there ten days before for a similar purpose.

—The Rev. Wm. B. Burrows, of Helena, Ark., has accepted a call to Nevada City and Butler, dividing his time equally between the places, living in Nevada.

—The Rev. Mr. Arnold, of New York State, having been called to Christ Church, Springfield, found himself unable to accept on account of the delicacy of his health, which required him to go south. The Rev. Mr. Dooris, of Evansville, Ind., has been called to take charge of the Parish.

—The Rev. Dr. Fulton held his first service after his return on Sunday, 19th inst. He is quite recovered. He uses a tricycle in going about his parish. The Spectator signalizes his accession to the force of wheelmen.

—The Bishop and Standing Committee have authorized the sale of the little country church in the woods, midway between Desoto and Crystal City, as it could not conveniently be used, with the intention that the proceeds of the sale shall be used towards a church in the much more important town of Crystal City.

—The local papers state that the Rev. Mr. Greene, of St. John's Church, has been mentioned in connection with the Episcopate of Nebraska. So, also, has the Rev. E. Talbot. Persons who wish to evade the purple had better keep away from this Diocese.

—Rev. James T. Breese, M. D., having a residence in Missouri, a minister of a religious denomination, but desiring to become a Candidate for Orders, has been given permission by the Bishop of this Diocese to make his application in the Diocese of Wisconsin, as residence there for the present is more convenient for him.

—The Bishop has been elected a member of the Huguenot Society of America, and also of the American Historical Society. This last body was recently organized at Saratoga, when forty one active members were elected. The Executive Committee afterward elected one hundred and twenty American students of history, living in different parts of the country, who were known to be interested, or as specialists in the history of this country.

—The new wooden pavement lately laid on Chestnut street will cost St. George's church six or seven hundred dollars, and the assessment on the Episcopal residence is probably $300, which will somehow have to be met. The cost is assessed on the property on the street, according to the number of front feet.

—We have received the first number of The St. James Reveille, published by the pupils of St. James Academy, Macon. It is a neat, covered magazine of eight large pages, and presents a most creditable appearance. It is well edited, too. It gives items of interest about the Academy. The new north building is now completed, and has accommodations for twenty-four boys. The gymnasium is a certainty. Its dimensions will be 30x70 feet. The school was never so full and has boys from St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph. They look, some of them, longingly over at St. Agnes, which, however, is forbidden ground.

—The Bishop was at Christ Church on Sunday morning, 2d inst., and after a sermon on the Festival of All Saints, alluded to the fact that i was in that place, sixteen years before, on that Sunday that he had begun his work in the Diocese. He spoke of the changes in the parish in that time.

—The Rev. William and Mrs. Johnson, of Rolla, celebrated their golden wedding on the 30th ult. We hope that he was as kindly remembered as for his venerable and staunch character he deserved to be.

—The Rev. Dr. Richard, of the Church of England, has taken up his residence in this city, and is teaching private pupils. He has a class in the guild room of Christ Church.

—At the golden wedding of the Rev. Wm. Johnson, in Rolla, on the 30th, there were twenty-four descendants present, down to great-grandchildren, all now living in Rolla.

—St. Catharine's Guild of St. Paul's parish, Mexico, wishes to extend their thanks to Mr. Joseph Franklin, of Wm. Barr's Dry Goods House, Mr. Chas. Nugent, of B. Nugent Bro., and Mr. Cooper, of D. Crawford's, for favors extended to the Guild.
S. J. DELAPLAINE, Sec.

—The Rev. Dr. Runcie, of St. Joseph, has, we are sorry to hear, been severely ill, and went to New York a few weeks ago for a rest and change. The Rev. Mr. Henry has been taking his place. Dean Hart, of Denver, spent a Sunday in St. Joseph lately. Mrs. and Miss Runcie have gone to California for a few months. We hope, before they return, that the new rectory will be fairly under way, if not finished.

—There has been quite a change in the personnel of St. George's choir in this city. Prof. North is to have charge of it, with a force of twelve voices, which may be increased.

—The Bishop visited last week the stations of the Rev. Mr. Johnson, Cuba, St. James and Rolla, in only the last of which, however, there were any confirmations. There two were confirmed. In Cuba the church is finished, excepting pews, which they are now striving to procure. It is very neat, and out of debt. The Rev. Mr. Johnson, on the 19th ult., passed the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination, and thus ante-dates any other clergyman in the diocese in this respect.

—The trustees of the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund have recently placed on the list of beneficiaries two aged clergymen of the diocese, one with a stipend of $150, and the other of $50 per annum. There was before a clergyman on the list for $250 a year.

—The Woman's Guild of All Saint's Church in this city, is to hold the second of its series of entertainments at Tabor Hall, Fourth and Washington avenue, on Thursday night, 20th inst. Among the features is to be a Japanese Tea Table, where a beautiful cup and saucer is to be presented to each tea drinker.

—An effort is proposed to raise the amount sufficient to pay the debt on St. Luke's hospital by Christmas.

—Copies of printed pamphlet containing an account of the service used at the opening of St. Luke's Hospital Memorial Chapel, with Dr. Schuyler's sermon, will be on sale at the hospital, for the benefit of the Daily Service Fund. The price will be 25 cents. Orders are requested.

—The basement of Trinity Church, Kansas City, was finished so far that the congregation began worship in it on Sunday, 2nd inst., when the Rev. E. Talbot preached in the morning, and the Rev. Cameron Mann at night. It will hold some two hundred persons.

—The Rev. Mr. Jardine recently declined a call to the diocese of Northern New Jersey.

—The Rev. Wm. B. Burrows, of Helena, Ark., has accepted the charge of All Saints, Nevada City, and St. Mark's, Butler, dividing his time equally between the places.

THE REV. DR. SCHUYLER.

PARIS, August 7, 1884.

My Dear Bishop: Our last letter left us at Heidelberg. The old castle and the university are the chief attractions there. I shall not attempt to describe the castle, as it has been so often the subject of letter-writers. Longfellow says of it: "Next to the Alhambra of Grenada, the Castle of Heidelberg is the most magnificent ruin of the middle ages." It was built by piecemeal, a portion of it in the early part of the fifteenth century, and additions were made by different Kings and Electors during nearly two centuries—where portions of it were destroyed by the French in 1689, and again still more seriously injured by fire caused by a stroke of lightning in 1764. And yet so much of it still remains that half an hour is consumed in going through the different rooms, hall, towers, cellar and kitchen. The cellar contains the "Great Tun," as it is called, which held 50,000 gallons of wine, and in the kitchen, with its marvelous fire-place, we were shown where an ox could be roasted whole. The grounds surrounding it even now are picturesque, and in the day when royalty held court in it, and when lords and ladies graced its halls, there must have been many lovely walks and charming retreats for the gay retinue who assembled there. The view from one of the towers is still grand, overlooking the town, with the valley of the Neckar, and the broad plains of the Rhine, and the Black Forest in the distance. We met two young priests from England who had secured a guide, and they kindly invited us to join them, and after we had traveled together the various localities about the castle, and having been pointed some three or four times to the same objects of curiosity, and still not finding admittance to the interior, we began to think we had been sold; and had it not been for my traveling companion, who had visited the castle before, and who knew what we ought to see, we should have gone away amazed that that was all of the much-lauded ruin. Reflection: "When you secure a guide, be sure of your man, that you be not mis-guided."

We did not visit the university, as we had no letters of introduction, and we understood, too, that it was vacation time. The building is a very plain, inferior looking building, in the very heart of the town, and not a tree or shrub to enliven its dreariness. We were pointed, while at the Castle, and not by a false guide, to the duelling grounds where the students have not infrequent encounters, and their scared faces bear evidence to this fact, which is certainly not a very complimentary commentary upon the morals of the institution.

We went from Heidelberg to Mayence, taking the steamer at 9 A. M. The day was chilly and cloudy with quite a strong wind blowing, but we took our position on the deck, and with a map of the river and our guide book in hand, we noted as we passed each town, with its history detailed in our book, and the legends connected with each and every old castle and ruin on its lofty banks. It was a day full of intense excitement, and we were not sorry when we were told that we had passed the chief places of interest, and that we could rise from the suspense of eager expectation and watching. Sunday came the next day, which we have conscientiously made a day of rest, attending divine service in the morning, and in the afternoon looking quietly about us without attempting to continue our journey.

We found here, as elsewhere, a Church of England service, and at every service an appeal was made for the support of the chaplaincy and Mission, showing that they have no assured fund to rely on, but depend in a great measure upon the free will offerings of the people.

In Cologne the things of special interest are the Cathedral, the Church of St. Ursula, and the manufactory of "Eau de Cologne." The latter place we did not visit, though so far as our experience goes, we found no unpleasant odors about the city, and the air was as pure as in any place where crowds congregate. It rained, it is true, the most of the time we were there, but this would have had the effect to concentrate the smells, were there any existing causes to create them.

The Cathedral at Cologne, to my mind, is the most perfect piece of Gothic architecture I have met with. It is not as large and massive as Milan, but in all its proportions and in its details in the interior and exterior, in its decorations, in its chapels, altar, and the richness of its stained glass it is without a rival. I say this as a layman in my knowledge of architecture, but I have seen no building which so completely captivated me with its beauty. And this, too, when, I must confess, I had made up my mind that after Milan it could not much interest me. It has been a long time in building, having been begun in the 13th century and not finished till four years ago, when its completion was celebrated with great pomp. It is, of course, a great pet with the people of Cologne, and you will see it cut out of various materials for ornaments, and even engraved upon cotton and silk pocket handkerchiefs. I have said that it is not as large as some others, and yet its proportions are so huge when compared with any of our modern churches, that our Christ Church might be put in the chancel. It is 400 feet in length, and its nave is 150 feet high. There are 60 pillars supporting nave and aisles, and the two towers with their spires, which stand on either corner and form a portion of the beautiful facade, the jams of the doors being filled with statuary, rise to the immense height of 500 feet.

One never tires of looking at it from within and without, and it was with a feeling of regretful sadness that I took my last look of this finest specimen of the grand and the beautiful in architecture. St. Ursula is a plain, old building of the 11th century, and is only remarkable for the bones of St. Ursula and the 11,000 virgins who are said to have been martyred by the Huns on their pilgrimage to Rome. These bones are in glass cases and run all round the church above the pillars of the nave, and in other places; some of the skulls being adorned with precious stones. We were told that in the sacristy they are arranged so as to form ornamental figures. It is a curious fancy to make an exhibit of our mortal remains, which had better be permitted to mingle with the dust till the glorious body shall come forth dressed for immortality.

From Cologne we went to Amsterdam. Holland was the home of my ancestors, and though between two and three centuries have elapsed since they left their Fatherland, and found their home in the new world, yet it was with an unaccountable interest that I first looked upon its level, fresh green fields, and entered the quaint old fashioned looking town of Amsterdam. I would not have you think that it bears any resemblance to "Sleepy Hollow." It is a live town, bears everywhere an aspect of thrift. It is curious, from the fact of its many canals, several of which are broad, and run in the form of a semi-circle through the city, while others narrower, intersect them in all directions. Between the houses and the canals there are streets often broad and lined with trees, giving a bright and airy appearance, and furnishing at the same time an opportunity for a free circulation of fresh air. The houses are built on piles, and hence the foundations are not as solid as if they stood upon a rock, and often times as you look down the line of a street, you might fancy that they had been upon a spree, as some lean forward and some backward. As a matter of course they can have no cellars, and so they have at the top of the houses projecting from the front, as on our warehouses, what might be termed a crane, by which they raise from the boats to their store rooms what articles they need.

The houses are of different styles of architecture, but are substantial, and have an air of comfort about them, and the window glass, which is generally of large panes, shines like polished marble. I never saw cleaner cities than Amsterdam and the Hague. In both cities the young ladies have the bad habit of arranging the mirrors outside the windows, so that they can sit concealed, and see whoever is passing in the street. Had I been a fashionable young man I think I should have felt rather nervous in passing some of the houses, where doubtless was the dwelling place of youth and beauty. I noticed especially in Amsterdam the large number of public institutions devoted to the arts, sciences and charities of a humane and religious character. So frequent were they that they might be termed a characteristic feature of the city, and in looking at my guide book I found that the good people of Amsterdam had maintained a character for centuries for good works in this respect. I quote from the guide book: "Charles II of England exclaimed, when informed that the armies of Louis XIV. were threatening the city, 'I am of the opinion that Providence will preserve Amsterdam, if it were only for the great charity they have for their poor.'" Such a reputation had evidently been well earned and has long been maintained. We visited, as a specialty of the industry of Amsterdam, the factory of M. Koster for diamond cutting. We were shown the process, taking the diamond in the rough, splitting and shaping, then polishing it. It appears to be very simple and easy, and it is literally "diamond cut diamond."

I was told the number of revolutions the polishing wheels make in a minute. I think I am safe in saying that it was over two thousand. We were shown a fac simile in crystal of the largest diamond in the world, which was cut and polished in this factory, and which is now owned by the Czar of Russia, and also the famous Kohinoor diamond was polished here. I know there is a fixed value attached to these precious stones, but I must confess I had not the least covetous desire to possess them.

The Hague is a very attractive and interesting city. In both cities we saw the country people in their quaint and curious costumes, which it would be very difficult to describe so as to enable the reader to form any idea of their appearance. Photographs can be purchased giving fac-similes of their vest and skirt, and the singular ornaments that the women wear about their head and face; and in reply to a question, what could have given rise to the peculiar horns of gold which they wear and which project some two inches in a spiral form on a line with their temples, the salesman remarked: "He had never heard a history of the introduction of the fashion, but he presumed it was as a warning to the young men not to attempt to kiss the girls." It certainly, as we saw it worn, does not add to the attractions of a woman's face. Some three miles from The Hague is a favorite place of resort called Scheveningen, where along the sandy beach for a mile there are hundreds of tents and singularly shaped willow chairs with high backs and arms, and bathing houses made to float with the tide; while crowds of children who had come down from the city had stripped off their shoes and stockings and were playing in the water and the wet sand, and gathering shells on the shore. Here we saw the fishermen and women in their peculiar garb and wooden shoes; and the whole scene had an air of the olden time, which gave it a weird aspect and made us feel as if we were moving in a strange world. It is, at the same time, a fashionable watering place and a favorite resort for royalty, there being a number of grand hotels and tasteful pensions. The drive is a delightful one, through a shaded avenue of lime and beach trees the whole distance.

In every part of Holland there is an air of thrift. We saw no poverty and rags, and had we seen the rags, I believe they would have been washed clean. The land is a dead level, seldom relieved by a hillock, and it is cultivated principally for pasture ground. Butter and cheese are their chief farming products, and nowhere can you find them so delicious and appetizing. In a journey of an hour by rail, from Amsterdam to Rotterdam, we could have counted the cattle in the fields by tens of thousands—and such beautiful cattle of uniform size and color. There were comparatively few sheep and very few horses. I don't believe that here the lowing cow would be degraded to submit to the yoke, as was the case in Italy and Switzerland. It was evident that they were cared for, as we saw feeding troughs scattered through the rich pasture grounds. Perhaps I have inherited an undue partiality for the land of my forefathers; if so, let what I have said be taken "cum grano salis."

THE OPENING OF ST. LUKE'S CHAPEL.

The day fixed for the formal opening of this building, Sunday afternoon, 2d inst., was very beautiful. We have before spoken of the construction of the chapel, the corner stone of which was laid in March last. It has been erected in a very substantial manner, and is certainly a gem. On the first floor, along with the entrance leading to the chapel above, are two rooms, one to be used for the Chamber of Peace for a mortuary room. Above, along with the nave, is an apsidal chancel and transepts, one of which is used for a robing room, and the other separated by a wood screen. The roof is opened timbered and the woodwork is oak, oiled. It will hold about one hundred and fifty persons comfortably.

On the occasion of its opening the chapel was so densely crowded that the procession could hardly press its way through; many stood throughout the service and filled the passages even to the street. The chancel was beautifully adorned with palms and flowers. There were tablets hung on each side of the chancel opening, one marked "Mary," the other "Virginia." The music was furnished by the choirs of Trinity and St. John's of about thirty men and boys, under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Greene; the organist of St. John's, Mr. Hancock, presiding at the instrument. It was thrilling and well sustained throughout.

The procession formed in the basement below; first, the Medical staff, then the Trustees, then the choir and then the clergy, of whom, besides the Bishop, there were present Drs. Schuyler and Ingraham and Messrs. Greene, Silvester, Assheton, Newton and Alcorn.

The Bishop offered special prayers at the beginning, appropriate to the occasion, and the services were said by the Rev. Messrs. Greene, Ingraham, Newton and Silvester. The sermon was delivered by Dr. Schuyler, from St. John xi., 3: "The house was filled with the odor of the ointment." It was in admirable spirit, and most fitly and touchingly alluded to the circumstances of the erection and the memorials, which have been by many pious hands placed in the structure. As the sermon and the order of the service are to be published, it need not be further alluded to here.

The offertory was devoted to the fund for the maintenance of services in the chapel. At the conclusion of the service, in the robing room, the Bishop expressed the appreciation and thanks of the clergy and the trustees for the sermon, and in their name requested it for publication. The cost of this was immediately pledged by Mr. Wm. H. Thomson, Vice-president. No doubt copies will be on sale soon for the benefit of the Hospital.

The throngs remained for a long time examining the pretty proportions and appointments of the chapel, and the handsome windows and other memorials.

The chapel has been built at a cost of eleven thousand dollars, by the gift of Mrs. Lindell, as a memorial to her grandson, Jesse I. January, who died two years ago, who was a Trustee at the time of his death, and who had intended himself to build the chapel as a memorial to his father.

The furnace was put in at the cost of Messrs. E. C. Simmons and Jerome Hill, Trustees.

The chancel window, as a memorial to Bishop Hawks, as well as other furniture, were procured from an amount left by Mrs. Femister by will.

The altar, of white marble, beautifully made, was put in as a memorial to the late Judson Allen, for years the Senior Warden of Trinity, by his daughter.

The window at the west end is a memorial to Sister Oden, contributed by those who affectionately remembered her.

The font and the service books of the chancel were presented by one who has done many liberal things for the Hospital.

The window over the font is a memorial to the late Mr. D. A. January, by his daughter, Mrs. Leith.

The chancel rail is a memorial to the late Mr. Henry M. Woodward, by his widow.

The eagle lectern of oak was given by the grandchild of Mr. Judson Allen.

The Bishop's chair was given by a widow in memory of her husband. The credence and other chancel furniture were also memorial gifts.

A movement is on foot to pay off the debt on the Hospital with Mr. Sellow's legacy. If eighty persons will give $100 each, all vestige of debt of every kind can be wiped away. This will be endeavored before Christmas. Among some of the Trustees and others, after the service, nearly $1,000 was pledged at once. If this was done, and all burdens of this kind removed, and the whole work consecrated to God, the blessed work of this agency for good would be immensely advanced and promoted. Let us see whether we cannot reach this result.

TRINITY CHURCH, KANSAS CITY.

The first services of this parish were held in a hall on Ninth street, in January last, with 15 persons. The congregation and Sunday-school steadily increased until they outgrew the hall. In the Spring a beautiful lot 64x138 feet was purchased on the southeast corner of Tenth and Tracy avenue, for $3,480.00. Later on the contract was let for building a handsome gothic stone church, 105x40 feet in the clear to cost about $30,000.00. The basement of the church was finished for use the last of October. Much of the success of the parish is due to the untiring work of the Ladies' Guild, which now numbers fifty ladies, and is constantly increasing. The Bishop visited the parish in May, and confirmed a class of eight. Another class is being prepared for the same solemn rite. Sunday, the 2nd inst., was a bright, and beautiful day, and the church was crowded at the morning service and well filled in the evening. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, of Macon, the service being taken by his brother, the Rev. Robert Talbot, rector of the parish. The sermon was delivered without notes and was a masterly effort, holding the undivided attention of the large congregation throughout. The Holy Communion was then celebrated, and about three score partook of the sacred feast. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers and looked very handsome. Just before morning service, the Rev. E. Talbot, addressed the Sunday-school, which numbers about one hundred. In the evening the Rev. Cameron Mann, rector of Grace Church, was kind enough to omit his services and take part in those of Trinity. The preacher announced for the evening was the Rev. Abiel Leonard, of Atchison, but as it was impossible for him to come, stirring addresses were delivered by the Rev. Messrs. Mann and Talbot, which did us all great good.

All in all, Sunday the 2nd, was a gala day in the history of Trinity Church, and will long be remembered by its faithful parishioners.

In a pianoforte for private home use, the very first and chief requisite is refinement and purity of tone. For use in a concert or other large room this is not so important, as the roughness of tone is not so perceptible. That new Upright Pianos of the Mason and Hamlin Organ Company have this for their prominent attraction, that their tones are so pure and free from all noise without pitch. In part, this comes from their new method of fastening the strings by metal fastenings instead of by mere pins driven into wood.—Boston Traveller.

WOMAN'S AUXILLIARY.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Missouri Branch of the Woman's Auxilliary to the Board of Missions was held in Christ Church, on the 31st ult. The Holy Communion was celebrated at 10 A. M. by the Bishop, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Schuyler. There were also present of the clergy, the Rev. Dr. Ingraham and Messrs. Sylvester and Greene.

After the service the meeting organized in the parish room with Mrs. Robertson, the president, in the chair, and Mrs. C. M. Seaman acting as secretary. The Rev. Mr. Sylvester made an address vindicating the purposes and necessity of the auxilliary, especially in the efficient help which it renders in the making of missionary boxes, and the benefits, direct and reflex which come from this.

The Rev. Mr. Greene illustrated the benefit of such an organization from his own observation, starting from the labor of a single invalid lady, in a jurisdiction where nothing had been done for others, and where some most signal and unselfish work had resulted in large gains to the Church. He also urged the need of deepening the spiritual work and life, while the external activities were being pushed, and counseled the subscribing for and reading of the Spirit of Missions, which monthly, at a dollar a year or so, would give knowledge of the aggressive work of the whole Church.

The Bishop said a few cheering words. There were present ladies from Christ Church, St. George's, Holy Communion, St. John's, St. Peter's, Trinity and All Saints. The last presented $20, which was the first offering in cash to the auxilliary this year. The distribution of the work of making up the missionary boxes for the winter was arranged, and some conversation had about starting special missionary work in the neglected quarter of the city, down towards the river:

CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

Some one writing to the Buffalo Express, N. Y., speaks thus in an appreciative way of St. Louis, and the Conference which was held here last month, and which assembled a large number of able writers and speakers from twenty-five States:

"Approaching St. Louis from the east one does not form a pleasant or correct idea of the city, for at East St. Louis there is remaining a sort of dilapidated squatter sovereignty look, relics of early times. This, however, is quickly forgotten as you pass out of the depot into the broad streets whose activity impresses you somewhat like Chicago. Unlike that city, however, where every one seems in such hot haste, hurrying, and scurrying as if fearful some one would bag dame fortune before they could reach her, St. Louis has an air of stability and moderation. The bridge we cross here is a marvel of construction, costing ten millions of dollars. As we halt a moment by the central towers so high above the river, which is seventy feet deep here, and look down on the stream, for you can not look into the water, so thick and muddy it is, one feels appalled and breathes with great relief as he reaches safely the western side.

This water, which looks muddy enough to clog the wheels of any steamer, is served as a beverage filtered to an ecru tint, and when contrasted with the color of the ice floating in it, it costs an effort to believe what you are told of its merits here, "that it is the purest, sweetest, and most healthful of waters."

The papers presented upon the various subjects, before the Conference were able and interesting, written and discussed by men and women of large experience in practical charitable and correctional work, who aim to prevent the increase of pauperism and crime, rather than to multiply institutions and means for the support of these classes, to furnish timely help and encouragement for the deserving poor, to ameliorate the condition of prisoners, to rescue and reform children, thereby hoping to lessen the burden for future generation, and better the condition of society. The discussions were earnest, spirited, and, in many instances, eloquent, especially so when participated in by the Southern delegates, who are desirous of "standing in the front rank of reform," as one of them expressed himself, and I infer that the paper upon the lessee system of Southern prisons, read before this Conference during its session in Louisville last year, has not been without influence for good.

The Conference at St. Louis has been eminently a successful one, largely due to the systematic arrangement of its business by the president, so as to ensure prompt action during its session, and also to the untiring efforts of Bishop Robertson and the local committee of St. Louis, who by their presence in the Conference and arrangements for the entertainment of its members, in opening of their libraries, Museum of Art, of invitations to their exposition, and last, but by no means least, to furnishing of carriages to witness the illumination of the city, which unique exhibition could not easily be equalled and I think never excelled, and in various other attentions, agreeably impressed every stranger within their gates by their generosity and "high bred hospitality." Among the notable people of St. Louis whom it was our privilege to meet was the venerable Dr. Elliott and Professor Snow of Washington University; Gen. Sherman, who addressed the Conference at the closing exercises in the curt and decisive manner characteristic of the man; Bishop Robertson, whose genial face and cordial manner lead me to believe that his mantle of charity is a generous garment not subject to shrinkage; Rev. Rabbi Sonneschein, whom all delighted to hear; and last, the fairest of all, Miss Phoebe L. Cozzens, whose pleasant, sympathetic expression of face belies her stern profession, a lawyer."

WARNING.

The clergy and Church people are warned against aiding one Charles Priest, a deaf-mute, who, for about twenty years has been going the rounds begging for money to buy a farm to settle down on. He has not bought it yet, and there is every reason to believe he never intended to. He must have raised enough in those years to buy several. His story about having a large family to support is pure fiction. Instead of supporting his worthy wife, he does nothing for her at all. He has a trade, and can, and ought to support himself.

A. W. MANN.

Minister to Deaf Mutes.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 7, 1884.

BISHOP HUNTINGTON, of the Central New York diocese, in a recent address had the following to say about under-paid clergymen: "When a citizen in any business yielding an income of $10,000 or $5,000 or $2,000 a year tells me that a faithful presbyter who receives $800 a year receives enough, I take leave to disrespect his judgment, his knowledge, and his heart. He knows what clerks, school-teachers, and even coachmen, cooks, and bartenders get, male and female. Just at the time of life when gentlemen in other professions are reaping their largest returns, and are most sought after for their appreciated experience and wisdom, many a clergyman after years of hardship sees with alarm, by signs too distinct to be mistaken, that every hope of a tranquil old age for himself and those depending upon him is vanishing. The doom of anxious poverty is proclaimed in every white hair on his head. Both because these beloved and worthy servants of my Lord call me 'Father,' being of my family, and because a livelihood in my own order is not immediately so imperilled I have a right to say this. The fact that public attention is of late turned to this irreverent injustice is well; but for one I have no hope at all from any such scheme as collecting a tax from some of the clergy who are paid more than their brethren because they require more, and then applying this tax to eke out the starvation-salaries of those who are paid far less than they earn and need. That sort of tariff would be a very slight healing of a very deep hurt. It will fail in practice."

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Central Baptist says that the houses of worship at Golden City and Jasper, contain small, neat rooms, nicely furnished, called nurseries, to which mothers with crying or troublesome children are expected to retire.

—The Clergymen's Insurance League, in its sixteenth annual report shows that 1,587 persons have entered as members, 262 have died, and that $346,190 have been paid to the families of Clergymen, in amounts varying from $550 to $2,150. Eleven have died during the past year. The admission fee is $2, and the mortuary dues are $2, and the family of each member who dies is entitled to receive twice as many dollars as there are members. The Treasurer is Rev. Wm. H. Dunnell, Station B., New York City.

—In the Temple Emmanuel, Fifth Avenue, New York, the largest and most influential Jewish congregation in America, the ministers and a large number of its members are in favor of holding Sunday services. This is done now in several places in the way of having children's Sunday-school on that day.

—The Convention of the Diocese of Maryland held an adjourned session on the 28th ult. On the second day it appointed a committee of six clergymen and six laymen to recommend a person for the office of Bishop. They at length unanimously recommended Dr. Paret, of Washington. In the balloting he came two short of the required two third vote. On the day following another conference committee was appointed. On the nineteenth ballot, and after Dr. Eccleston, his principal opponent had withdrawn his name, they elected Dr. Paret by ten votes more than necessary. He is of French descent, a native of New York, and 55 years of age. He has for eight years past been the very successful rector of the Church of the Epiphany, the largest parish in Washington, a moderate high Churchman. This happily ends a long and anxious vacancy, and gives to Maryland an excellent person for Bishop.

—The papers are filled with the most interesting accounts of the Seabury Centennial in Scotland last month. The Scotch hosts made the stay of their American guests most charmingly pleasant. It would appear that the English took but little interest in the matter, as only the Bishop of Winchester was present.

—The name of the Episcopal Register, of Philadelphia, has been changed to the American Church. It is one of the handsomest of our Church papers, and most interestingly edited. We wish it all success under its new name.

—The Nebraska Convention has again elected Rev. Dr. Worthington for Bishop. It is hoped that he will accept.

—Mr. Henry T. Wells, a generous layman of Minneapolis, has just endowed the Wardenship of Seabury Divinity School, Faribault, with a gift of $40,000. This will go in part to make good the loss of Mrs. Huntington's proposed gift of $300,000.

—The 14th inst., the exact anniversary of Bishop Seabury's consecration, was celebrated at St. Paul's London, the Archbishop of Canterbury preaching the sermon. It was also observed at Seabury Hall, Faribault, the sermon being preached by the Bishop of Iowa.

—Gen. Stonewall Jackson was baptized in St. John's Church, Fort Hamilton, New York, in 1849.

—The Rev. Philip McKim, formerly of this diocese, has taken duty in the diocese of Springfield.

—The Rev. L. L. Montgomery, of Liberia, has recently died.

THE one thing above another which should come out of this late presidential excitement and paralysis of trade and all other enterprises is a constitutional provision for the lengthening of the Presidential term to six years, and making its incumbent ineligible for a second term, at least immediately.

THE ladies of the Church of the Good Shepherd will give a Bazaar and Oyster Supper in the Guild Room adjoining the Church, 2,847 South Ninth street, Nov. 26th, the afternoon and evening preceding Thanksgiving, the proceeds to be devoted to the organ fund. Go and take your purse with you, or else send.

THE St. Louis Evangelist, the Presbyterian organ of this city, in a long editorial objects to the importation of revivalist evangelists this winter for their churches. It argues that if the same efforts were made by the congregations to sustain pastors as are made to boom sensational preachers in their periodical advent, much more lasting good would be accomplished.

A CURIOUS RESULT.

The Barr will matter has had a singular turn. It will be remembered that the ecclesiastical legatees renounced their claims to Miss Barr. The administrator, however, demurred to allowing this renunciation in the case of the $5,000 left to the Missionary Board of the Diocese for the education of ministers who should not be addicted to what is commonly known as ritualism. On this point there was the discussion in the Probate Court, which was largely commented upon by the Church press. It was claimed by Miss Barr's lawyers that the will was invalid because of the vagueness of the term ritualism. On this a number of clergymen were called to the stand to testify as experts, and there was long argument.

The judge has only very recently given his decision. He concedes that none of the witnesses called could give a definition of ritualism, which would exhaustively denote and connote all its features. He, however, adds that, in his judgment, the bequest should not fail for this cause, as he thinks the recipients of the testator's bounty are sufficiently indicated to enable the distribution of the fund to be made. He says that neither the missionary board or the Church took anything in their right under the will. The bequest was not to them, but to be used by them, in assisting students to prepare for the ministry.

The judge orders the executors to invest the $5,000 as provided in the will, to make the other minor distributions, and then to turn over all the rest, including what had been surrendered by the religious institutions named to Mr. Barr's daughter.

PERSONAL.

—At the first confirmation held by old Bishop Cobbs, of Alabama, the first person on whom he laid hands was his eldest daughter, and the next person, his own father.

—The Rev. Geo. H. Appleton, of Japan, has been deposed from our ministry, for causes not affecting his moral character.

—The will of Mrs. Augusta M. Huntington, formerly Mrs. Shumway, at Cincinnati, gives $300,000 in trust to Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, and directs that $100,000 be applied to the building of Shumway Hall on the Shattuck School Grounds at Faribault, Minn., and $50,000 for its endowment for the education of boys. Another $100,000 is for the erection of Johnston Hall, in memory of her father, in Seabury. The Divinity School of the same place receives an endowment of $50,000 to assist the students. A later news, however, about this shows that Mrs. Huntington had only a life interest in her estate, which by the provision of the will which conveyed it to her, expressly declared that the estate should at her death go to her children. She has a daughter therefore who will inherit, and the above mentioned charitable devices will be no effect. This will naturally be a very great disappointment to Bishop Whipple. Mrs. Huntington had, some years ago, built the beautiful Shumway Memorial Chapel, on the Shattuck School grounds.

—The Rev. Dr. Matson has withdrawn from his connection with the Church Press.

—The Rev. Dr. N. S. Rulison was on the festival of St. Simon and St. Jude consecrated Assistant Bishop of the Diocese of Central Pennsylvania, in St. Paul's Church, Cleveland, of which he was rector. It is intimated that Bishop Howe, who is quite advanced in years, will very soon retire, under the new canon. On the evening before, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Bedell was celebrated in the same city.

—Mr. Wm. Bucknell, of Philadelphia, has just given his elegant country seat at Chestnut Hill, one of the suburbs of Philadelphia, valued at $75,000, to the diocese as a home for consumptives.

—The marriage of Miss Sophie Dunlop, second daughter of the Bishop of New Mexico, to Mr. Moise, in Las Vegas, on the 22nd ult., is fully reported in the local papers. It was a very handsome affair. The church was crowded, and the bride had a great many beautiful and very valuable presents.

—The Supreme Court in Nebraska has decided against the claim of Rev. Samuel D. Hinman, to a title in the Church property in the Santee Mission in Niobrara. It decides that he received it only in trust for the Church, and has no individual property in it.

—The clerical obituary of the month includes the names of Rev. W. H. Throop, of Milwaukee.

—A pleasant thing to hear is that Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt has given $500,000 to the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City. If it is true that he is $60,000,000 poorer than he was two years ago in the shrinkage in the value of his securities, it is good to know that he is not too poor to do a very generous and princely deed.

—A plebiscite on preachers was lately taken by the London Contemporary Pulpit. The prize was to go to the list of the ten greatest preachers which most nearly agree with the consensus as expressed by all the lists sent in, and hence, perhaps, many, if not most of the competitors, voted, not for the preachers they themselves preferred, but for those they imagined other people would prefer. The successful list stands: Canon Liddon, 296; C. H. Spurgeon, 292; Joseph Parker, 218; Alexander Maclaren, 212; Archdeacon Farrar, 206; Henry Ward Beecher, 168; Bishop Magee, 150; Canon Knox Little, 149; Bishop Boyd Carpenter, 101; and R. W. Dale, 100. Canon Liddon was facile princeps, for his name stood first in 108 lists, while Mr. Spurgeon's was first in only 76.

—The rather singular news comes that in France, Father Hyacinthe, though deprived of his functions, has been permitted to assist several times by the more liberal bishops and priests in the ceremonies of the Roman Church, as they recognize his aim as not to destroy but to reform it.

—Dr. Phillips Brooks is to preach a series of sermons before the University of Cambridge, England, next year.

—The late Mr. Wormley, a few days before his death, to a friend who asked him the secret of his success said: "I owe my success to the prompt payment of those I employ and the settlement of my bills as they are presented."

—Mr. Morrison tells this incident in the late Mark Pattison's life: "On one occasion, when I was speaking of the mistakes we are apt to commit in estimating our importance in this world, he answered with his characteristic emphasis, 'Yes! Take your worst opinion of yourself when you are in most depressed mood. Extract the cube root of that, and you will be getting near the common opinion of your merits.'"

—The Bishop of Pennsylvania, in his sermon at the consecration of Dr. Rulison, pleasantly alluded to the fact that the sun, before it had risen on this continent on that day, had shined in China upon the consecration of another Bishop of the Church, Boone, of Shanghai.

—Phillips Brooks, speaking recently at a temperance meeting in Tremont Temple, Boston, said: "Never shall my hand or voice be lifted against so-called temperance fanatics. If ever a cause justified fanaticism, the temperance cause does. To me there is nothing more disgusting, or more disheartening to the cause of humanity, than the selfish, ease-loving, luxurious man indulging in dissipation, and denouncing the temperance fanaticism."

—Rev. Dr. Lothrop, called on Daniel Webster, the day after he had buried his son, Edward, in the strength of his manhood, and the day after had followed his daughter, Grace, to the grave. He was overwhelmed with sorrow. He said, "I feel, Mr. Lothrop, at this hour that all that gives glory and dignity to man is contained in the religion of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. I could hope that on my tombstone at Marshfield, where I hope to be buried, after the dates of my birth and my death, there be simply this inscription: 'He was a believer in the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.' THE GRANDEST THING THAT CAN BE SAID OF ANY MAN."

—The Bishop of West Virginia had to meet an appointment two months or so ago. A camp meeting near by had made horses scarce and none could be had. At last he secured a little mule, and made his trip. He says the trip would have been more pleasant if the day had not been so warm, and the mule had not been so dull. As he came back some small boys accosted him with: "Mister, will you sell that mule?" "Mister, is that a young mule?"

—Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, the distinguished Presbyterian divine, in recently expressing his admiration of the methods and purposes of the Church Temperance Societies, said that if the societies of the other churches did not plant themselves on this basis, he would come to the Bishop to be ordained first a deacon, and then a priest.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to $5,000, from the children and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a Cot and a room for a child at our Hospital where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

LAY ANSWERS.

The following have been offered as answers to questions on the first page of the October number of the NEWS:

1st. Yes; in the sense of teaching certain doctrines, establishing rites and sending men to proclaim them.

2nd. If the doctrines were all lost, there would be no Church; if the persons holding these doctrines all died the Church would be vacant.

3d. New Testament.

4th. If this means, how was the Church constituted? See 1st.

5th. Neither; Christ established the Church. Holy men were inspired to write. It is the duty of the Church to teach these inspired truths.

MISCELLANY.

—There are several monuments in the Cathedral in Quebec, Canada. Among them is Dr. Jacob Mountain, whose wit made him Bishop of Quebec. The Doctor was calling upon King George, when the latter said he had some doubt as to whom he should appoint Bishop of the new see. "If your Majesty had faith," said the Doctor, "there would be no difficulty." "How so?" asked the King. "If, sire," responded Mountain, "you had faith, you would say to this Mountain: 'Be thou removed into that see,' and it would be done." The King had faith; Mountain was removed, and his dust lies with other bishops in the old church.

—Some of the most important inventions have been the work of mere boys. Watt left the engine in a very incomplete condition, from the fact that he had no way to open or close the valves except by means of levers operated by the hand. He set up a large engine at one of the mines, and a boy was hired to work these valve levers. Although this was not hard work, yet it required his constant attention. As he was working these levers he saw that parts of the engine moved in the right direction, and at the exact time that he had to open or close a valve. He procured a strong cord and made one end fast to the proper part of the engine and the other end to the valve lever; and the boy had the satisfaction of seeing the engine move off with perfect regularity of motion. A short time after the foreman came around and found the boy playing marbles at the door. Looking at the engine, he saw the ingenuity of the boy, and the advantages of so great an invention. Mr. Watt then carried out the boy's inventive genius in a practical form, and made the steam engine a perfect automatic working machine.

CHANT FROM THE INNER LIFE.

Sing to the Lord, though chastened by His rod!
Sing to the Lord that others hope may borrow—
"The pure in heart see God."

Sink not beneath the yoke of tribulation;
Poor weary mortal on life's thorny road!
But bear up stately with this consolation—
"The pure in heart see God."

Take up thy Cross—when thou art weary laden,
Think how Christ sank beneath the heavy load!
High over Calvary shines the Heavenly Aiden—
"The pure in heart see God."

Cherish the golden words that He has spoken,
Then march up Calvary with thy heavy load,
Where His dear body on the Cross was broken—
"The pure in heart see God!"

His yoke is easy—light, too, is His burden—
Death is the gate to His divine abode—
The Land of Promise lies beyond the Jordan—
"The pure in heart see God."

And while the thorns are round the good man springing,
Bleeding his feet till they baptize the sod—
Angels of light are to his spirit singing—

BOOK NOTICES.

THE MUSICAL HERALD, October. $1 a year. Musical Herald Co., Franklin Square, Boston, Mass. A well edited journal, with two or three choice pieces of music every month.

MISCELLANEOUS ESSAYS. By Richard A. Proctor. J. Fitzgerald, publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York. Sent anywhere for 15 cents in postage stamps.

Mr. Proctor is unquestionably the most versatile of modern scientists, and the present work shows him at his best in many diversified branches of knowledge. The subjects treated are "Strange Coincidences"; "Coincidences and Superstitions"; "Gambling Superstitions," etc.

When the tide is at full it runs. Our educational methods have been growing in system and severity, if not in perfection, for many years; and the demands upon the pupil have constantly increased, until the necessities for grading have become imperative, and the peculiarities of the individual are almost entirely ignored. It would seem impossible to carry this further, and any change now must be in some other direction. At this crisis, one of the brightest and most fearless of American writers comes forward with a strong argument against the whole system, a protest against the grading and cramming that takes so much vitality out of the education we are giving the rising generation. Edward Everett Hale, in the November number of the North American Review, makes a plea for "Half-Time in Schools," which every parent and every school board ought to consider seriously. The old question, "Where are we, and where are we drifting?" was never more forcibly suggested than by another article in the same number, in which Professor Gilliam discusses "The African Problem." The facts that he gives as to the increase of the negroes in the United States, their peculiar situation and disposition, and the problem they will force upon us in the near future, call for the gravest consideration. The other articles in this number are: "Women as a Political Factor," by Judge Robert C. Pitman; "Progress in Naval Armament," by Hobar Pasha, who thinks the United States Government has been wise in not constructing a costly navy; "Friendship in Ancient Poetry," by Principal J. C. Shairp; "Over-Illustration," by Charles T. Congdon; and "Restriction of the Suffrage," by William L. Scruggs.

We have received from Richard A. Saalfeld, 12 Bible House, New York, the following pieces of music:

WITH CLEVELAND WE SHALL WIN THE DAY, a veritable "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" melody.

CLEVELAND AND HENDRICKS' GRAND VICTORY MARCH. Whether this March carries the Democratic candidate to victory or not, the music is very pleasing and taking.

YOU ASK ME TO FORGIVE THE PAST, by Ed. Green, a little ballad, full of melody, which will surely find its way to the hearts of all.

BETTER LUCK TO-MORROW.

AMATORI WALTZ ES, by Frank Conway.

The above pieces retail at music stores for from 30 to 50 cents each. The publisher, however, offers to send the lot post free on receipt of $1.

AN OLD SAILOR'S YARNS, by Capt. R. F. Coffin, Standard Library, 15 cents. Stout paper covers, Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey St., New York. These stories have the smell of salt water on them and will be relished.

The November CENTURY marks the beginning of the fifteenth year of the magazine (the fourth under the present name), and also the beginning of the most extensive enterprise yet undertaken by its conductors,—the recently announced series of papers on the Civil War, by Generals Grant, McClellan, Rosecrans and others in high rank. The first paper on "The Battle of Bull Run," is contributed by General Beauregard, who adds to his description of the engagement a postscript on the subsequent conduct of the war on the Confederate side, and his own relations with Jefferson Davis. The illustrations, some twenty-five in number, are largely from photographs made during the war, or from recent sketches of the battlefield. The first part of the "Recollections of a Private" begins with the enlistment of the soldier, and continues the description of his life down to and including Bull Run, thus supplementing Gen. Beauregard's account of that battle.

The fiction comprises also "A tale of Negative Gravity," and the beginning of a new novel by Mr. W. D. Howells, dealing with the life of an American business man, and entitled, "The Rise of Silas Lapham." In the first part of this story, Mr. Howells returns to the Boston life of Bartley Hubbard of "A Modern Instance." Col. Waring contributes the first of two papers on "The Principles and Practice of House drainage," which are to sum up his best experience as a sanitary engineer. Bishop Potter discusses "A Phase of Social Science," and George Ticknor Curtis makes some apposite suggestions and proposes an amendment to the Constitution in a paper entitled "How Shall We Elect Our Presidents?"

ST. NICHOLAS for November. The first number of the new volume contains a heaping magazine-ful of the good things promised for the coming year, and opens with a beautiful frontispiece in colors. J. T. Trowbridge contributes the opening chapters of "His One Fault" of heedlessness, sets in motion the train of consequences which will follow him and interest the reader through the entire volume; and in another serial, "Among the Law-makers," the author relates his often amusing experiences while a page while a page in the U. S. Senate, tells many new anecdotes of public men, and gives a graphic and easily understood account of the organization of the national government.

Frank R. Stockton, in the first of his "Personally Conducted" papers, takes a party of four hundred thousand girls and boys to some of the monuments of Roman greatness found in other countries. To boys who are "Ready for Business," George J. Manson proposes to give, under this title, the results of his interviews with representative men in various branches of trade; the first paper treats of "A Retail Drug Store."

THE NORTHWESTERN PULPIT. Sermons of Waldo Messaros. Vol. I, No. 18. "The Mormon Question." Frank A. Wunder, 1716 Jefferson St., Philadelphia. $2 a year.

WIDE AWAKE for November is remarkable for the excellence of its short stories. "Noblesse Oblige," illustrated charmingly, is the story of a boy who was obliged to do a noble self-sacrificing deed by the laws of his own nature. "Aunt Elizabeth's Fence" is a humorous account of a Yankee boy who studied natural philosophy until he was able to construct a Yankee Doodle fence. Then there is a notable pair of stories about two crippled children: "Hermanus Contractus," the little crippled Count of Reichenau, who lived in the tenth century and wrote the hymn beloved by all Christendom, "Come Holy Spirit,"—this story is from the pen of Rev. Dr. Duffield; "A Brave Baby" is a true account of a little Boston baby and her wonderful courage in undergoing a surgical operation. Edward Everett Hale, in his "To-day" talk discusses the best way to emigrate with a crowd of boys always ready to go West.

Three dollars a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Publishers. The new year begins with the December number. Serials by Charles Egbert Craddock, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Elbridge S. Brooks and Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney.

SCRAPS OF TEXAS HISTORY. By Mrs. Mary S. Helen. This aged lady went to Texas from New York, in 1828, and these are the notes of her personal observation and experience for fifty years there. She was a Churchwoman and went where for many years there were no services. She wrote many articles for the local papers stating the history and vindicating in the wilderness, in the midst of much prejudice, the ways of the church. These, also, are gathered and they make a slender volume, which have been published at the author's risk and with hope of remuneration. It is intensely interesting in parts. Price $1.00, post paid. Copies may be had of Mrs. Mary S. Helen, Connerville, Indiana.

THE ENGLISH ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE, Nov. McMillan & Co., New York. $1.50 a year. The illustrations and literary work are as usual excellent.

—Fred. W. Drosten invites his old friends and new friends to call and see his splendid assortment of watches and jewelry, solid silver and plated ware, suitable for the holiday season. The holidays are coming, but Drosten has come, and may be found at 919 Olive street.

—Dr. Sherman, the famous specialist in the treatment of rupture, has arrived. His unparalleled success in this branch of science is the best evidence of his ability. Those interested should not lose the opportunity of consulting him.

ST. NICHOLAS

FOR

ATTRACTIONS FOR 1884-5.

No printed periodical can take the place of parent, pastor, or school-teacher; but a good magazine can supplement their work and influence to a wonderful degree. In view of this, it is not extravagant to say that—instead of "Can we afford to take ST. NICHOLAS?" the question of every earnest household in English-speaking countries, to day, should be "Can we afford NOT to take ST. NICHOLAS?"

The magazine, during its eleven happy years of existence, under the editorial charge of

has grown familiar to hundreds of thousands of young readers; and their interest and intelligent enjoyment have constantly inspired the editor and publishers to fresh effort. To-day, its strength is in its wholesome growth, its sympathy with young life, its hearty recognition of the movement of events, and its steadily increasing literary and pictorial resources. The following are some of the good things already secured for future numbers of ST. NICHOLAS.

RUPTURE!

Dr. J. A. Sherman, of New York, specialist in the treatment and cure of rupture for the past thirty-five years, has, by the earnest solicitation of many who are afflicted and could not spare the time to go to New York, friends of those whom he had on former visits here treated and cured, came to St. Louis and opened up his old offices, Granite Building, 404 Market Street, where they and others interested may daily consult him and avail themselves of his experience and remedies.

Dr. Sherman's treatment is altogether external yet so effective that the patient is enabled to perform any kind of labor with safety from the dangers or strangled rupture and without interfering with the cure; that he does not prescribe medicine or perform any surgical operation; that his system is one of his own discovery, wholly artistic and free from the vexation, discomfort and injury arising from the use of trusses, and that trusses are a life scourge—rupture cultivators—predisposing kidney, bladder and other organic ailments that undermine health even more than rupture.

Those who desire to fully inform themselves and take advantage of the experience of others, should send ten cents for Dr. Sherman's Book which contains strong endorsements from physicians, clergymen, merchants and farmers who have been treated and cured, with accompanying supplement of photographic likenesses of bad cases before and after cure.

Remember, Dr. S's time in St. Louis is limited. Office, 404 Market Street.

MISCELLANY.

—A zealous preacher, who loved smoking as well as he ought, in a heated discourse exclaimed, aiming his rifle at some of his hearers:

"Brethren, there is no sleeping-car on the road to glory."

One of the party whom he aimed to hit responded:

"No, brother, nor smoking-car either."

—How long shall I live?—When Henry Martyn went out as a missionary, he was told that he could not live long.

"How long," said he to the physician, "do you suppose I shall live?"

"Seven years," was the reply.

"Oh, seven years!" said the angelic man; "how much good may I accomplish, if I live seven years!"

How do you keep your room?—A look into the chamber of a boy or girl will give one an idea of what kind of a man or woman he or she will probably become.

A boy who keeps his clothes hung up neatly, or a girl whose room is neat always, will be apt to make a successful man or woman. Order and neatness are essential to our comfort as well as that of others about us. A boy who throws down his cap or boots anywhere will never keep his accounts in shape, will do things in a slovenly, careless way, and not be long wanted in any position. A girl who throws her dress or bonnet down on a chair will make a poor wife in nine cases out of ten. If the world could see how a girl keeps her dressing room, some unhappy marriages would be saved.

—Wallace Taylor, in a long article in the Independent, discusses the subject of ill-health among missionaries. After showing the cause can be neither injurious climate nor overwork, he finds that worry does more than any other thing the missionaries have to contend against. "Shortly after landing in Japan," says Mr. Taylor, "I was asked by one suffering from missionary ill health: 'What is this 'nervous fever' that so many of us are occasionally troubled with?' I replied I did not know. I had neither read of it in medical works, heard of it in medical lectures, nor met it in practice. 'Well,' said he, 'you will find it in Japan.' Not long after this I was called to administer to one of these afflicted ones: I saw no symptoms of fever, the thermometer showed no abnormal rise of temperature; and, now having met this condition again and again, and having become familiar with its different phases, I can confidently affirm that, though fever may accompany it, the fever is not an essential condition of that pathological state; and, looking back on the case referred to, through the experience of years, I cannot see any fever in it other than the fever of 'fret and worry.'"

—A new departure is taking in the English Church. In appointments to vacancies in all the Cathedral canons and prebendries, as they call it, the condition is made that the persons shall engage to be at least eight months of the year in residence. This will tend to make the appointments of real service.

MONUMENTAL EVIDENCE.

The Royal Baking Powder
Is "Absolutely Pure."

The following certificates from well known chemists and scientists form as strong an array of evidence as was ever given in behalf of any article of human food:

GOVERNMENT CHEMIST'S REPORTS.

Prof. Edward G. Love, the Government chemist, says:

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or other injurious substances."

"E. G. LOVE, Ph. D."

Prof. H. A. Mott, Government chemist, says:

"It is a scientific fact, that Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure."

"H. A. MOTT, Ph. D."

W. M. McMurtrie, Prof. of Chemistry, Illinois Industrial University, late Government chemist, Dep't of Agriculture, says:

"The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and this practical test, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, prove it perfectly healthful, of uniform excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance."

WM. McMURTRIE, E. M., Ph. D."

Rush Medical College, Chicago.

Dr. Walter S. Haines, Professor of Chemistry, Rush Medical College, Chicago, says:

"I have recently examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the open market, and have found it entirely free from adulteration and injurious substances of all kinds. I have several times before tested the Royal Powder, and have always found it, just as in my present examination, skillfully compounded and composed of the purest materials."

WALTER S. HAINES, M. D."

Dr. H. D. Garrison, Professor of Materia Medica and Toxicology, Chicago College of Pharmacy, says:

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder obtained from my grocer and find it to be composed of pure and wholesome materials in correct proportion. It contains no alum or other injurious substance. The purity of the cream of tartar employed in this powder is worthy of special mention, since it does not contain the tartrate of lime usually present in baking powders in which cream of tartar of inferior quality is used."

H. D. GARRISON, M. D."

College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago.

Prof. C. B. Gibson, Chemist, College Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, says:

"I recently procured a sample of your (Royal) baking powder from the kitchen of a private family in this city, and subjected it to an examination. I found it so different from many of the baking powders advertised as 'strictly' and 'absolutely pure,' and 'so far superior,' that I thought you would be pleased to know it, and might find use for the certificate."

"In view of the vast difference and stupendous frauds that are offered to the most 'gullible' people on the face of the earth, it pleases me occasionally to strike an 'honest article.'"

C. B. GIBSON."

Kentucky State College.

Dr. A. E. Menke, Professor of Chemistry, Kentucky State College, says:

"I have very carefully examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, and find it to be a cream of tartar powder of high strength, not containing any terra alba, alum, or other deleterious ingredient, everything being pure and wholesome."

"ALBERT E. MENKE."

Prof. Henry Morton, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, says:

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or other injurious substance."

"HENRY MORTON."

Dr. J. H. Wright and Dr. Albert Merrell, analytical chemists, late the firm of Wright & Merrell, St. Louis, each says:

"I have made a careful analytical test of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the open market here, and in the original package. I find it to be a cream of tartar powder of the highest grade of strength, containing nothing but pure, wholesome, and useful ingredients."

THE CENTURY,

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

PAPERS ON THE CIVIL WAR.

The important feature of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE for the coming year—indeed, perhaps the most important ever undertaken by the magazine—will be a series of separate papers on the great battles of the War for the Union, written by general officers in high command upon both the Federal and the Confederate sides.—General Grant (who writes of Vicksburg, Shiloh, and other battles), Generals Longstreet, McClellan, Beauregard, Rosecrans, Hill, Admiral Porter and others. The series opens in the November CENTURY with a graphically illustrated article on written by the Confederate general, G. T. Beauregard. Brief sketches, entitled, "Recollections of a Private," papers chronicling special events, descriptions of various auxiliary branches of the service, etc., will supplement the more important series by the various generals.

A strict regard for accuracy will guide the preparation of the illustrations, for which THE CENTURY has at its disposal a very large quantity of photographs, drawings, portraits, maps, plans, etc., hitherto unused. The aim is to present in this series, not official reports, but commanding officers' accounts of their plans and operations,—interesting personal experiences which will record leading events of the war, and possess, at the same time, a historical value not easily to be calculated.

FICTION.

In this line THE CENTURY will maintain its prestige, and furnish the best stories by American writers that can be procured. In November begins

A NEW NOVEL BY W. D. HOWELLS,

Author of "Venetian Days," "A Modern Instance," etc. This story deals with the rise of an American business man. A novel by Henry James, a novelette by Grace Denio Litchfield, and short stories by "Uncle Remus," Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, T. A. Janvier, H. H. Julian Hawthorne, and other equally well-known writers will appear at various times.

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

Under this heading may be included a series of papers on the Cities of Italy by W. D. Howells, the illustrations being reproductions of etchings and drawings by Joseph Pennell; a series on being an interesting group of papers by E. V. Smalley, Lieut. Schwatka, Principal Grant (of Kingston, Ontario), and others, descriptive of little-known regions; papers on French and American art,—sculpture and painting, with some exquisite illustrations; papers on the first being by Professor Langley and others. Under Architecture are included more of Mrs. Van Rensselaer's articles on Churches, City and Country Houses, etc. Colonel George E. Warner, Jr., will describe PROGRESS IN SANITARY DRAINING.

ASTRONOMY, ARCHITECTURE AND HISTORY,

E. C. Stedman, Edmund Gosse and others will furnish literary essays; George W. Cable will contribute in various ways; several papers on sport and adventure will soon be published, and will write from time to time on outdoor subjects.

Readers of THE CENTURY may feel sure of keeping abreast of the times on leading subjects that may properly come within the province of a monthly magazine. Its circulation is now about 140,000 monthly, the November number exceeding that figure. Subscriptions should date from this number, beginning the War Series and Mr. Howell's novel. Price, $4.00 a year, 35 cents a number. All book sellers and news-dealers sell it and take subscriptions, or remittance may be made to the publishers.

A free specimen copy of THE CENTURY will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

AT

The Season of 1884

Will find the old gentleman hale and hearty, and at his post in the basement of the

WM. BARR

DRY GOODS COMPANY,

ST. LOUIS,

Where grand preparations have been made for his reception.

Thousands of New Toys and Fancy Presentation Articles will be on exhibition, and all are invited to an inspection.

Both customers' time and patience is now saved by

BARR'S

METHOD OF MAKING CHECKS

AND DELIVERING GOODS.

The Cash Boy Nuisance has been abolished at Barr's, and there are no more delays in sending parcels long distances to be done up.

Customers should note the simple method employed to get a record of each sale, and make at same time the delivery of goods secure.

The salesman or cashier just writes the transaction once upon one of the Auto-graphic Registers used by the house, and this writing copies the articles upon a duplicate paper, which passes into the Register, and thus charges the cashier with the amount of sale.

The salesman then takes goods to cashier or parcel clerk, who is right at the department, and he in turn examines them and sees that they correspond with the bill, which in every case the customer must get.

Thus all the red tape used in the old time is done away, and purchasers can get almost any article in the store billed, examined and delivered in less than one minute.

Customers should never urge salesmen to deliver goods without a bill, for they can, from the foregoing, see that it is entirely against the rule, and the time taken is now so short that the delay is not noticeable. Besides, the bills given customers are always useful to them in case of errors or exchanging goods, when the check should be returned.

We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbins' Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper.

A box of this Soap contains sixty bars. Any lady buying a box, and sending us sixty cuts of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health."

—[Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]
For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. Louis, Mo.

Offertories will be received at these services for the Theological Education or the Permanent Episcopal Fund, of which notice is requested to be given. The Bishop will be ready to meet the vestry whenever it is desired, and to catechize the children whenever it is possible. He desires that the Holy Communion may be prepared for on Sundays and Festival Days. On week days, unless otherwise arranged, it is desirable that the service shall be at night; any other service which the time will permit will be had. The Bishop will be glad to meet the people socially when they can be conveniently arranged for. He desires that the parish register may be written up, and that he may see it.

ADVICE is given to the smaller parishes not to buy glass globes for their lamps. They obscure the light, and are in the way. All over the Diocese the vestry rooms are filled with them, put away and disused. They are of no value.

THE Bishop acknowledges gratefully the gifts which he has received from Messrs. Mallory & Co., Miss Bulkley, Mr. Givens, and others, for copies of the Churchman which have enabled him to complete the files for the Diocesan Library from the beginning of 1875.

If there is any clergymen or laymen in the Diocese who will value it, and will preserve it, and keep up the set, the Bishop knows of a layman who would give his eleven years, file of the Spirit of Missions to such. It is of value, and is a record of the Church's aggressive work in that time. No household of Church people ought to be without this monthly and unexpensive visitor. Clergyman should take and keep this journal for reference. Inquiry may be made to the Bishop.

It may be remembered that notice was given last month of the publishing in pamphlet form of the service and account of the Memorial Chapel of St. Luke's Hospital in this city, together with the sermon preached by Dr. Schuyler on the occasion. The pamphlet also contains a list of the donors of the memorial gifts. Only a very small edition was published, and persons who desire any should make early application at St. Luke's Hospital. They are sold at 25 cents each, for the benefit of the daily service fund of the Hospital. Copies also may be had at the same place of Dr. Schuyler's 25th anniversary sermon as Rector of Christ Church, sold at the same price and for the same object.

THE lament that is frequently expressed in parishes is that, in building their vestry rooms they did not make them larger. In many cases, at double the expense which would have been incurred at the outset, they have increased their size. A more spacious vestry room can well become the minister's study. This arrangement in any place and especially where he gives only a part of his time, makes him more independent in the use of his time, and saves him very much expense. If any churches are contemplating building, it would be well for them to keep this matter in view in drawing the plans for their structures.

WITH all the care given to proof reading, mistakes will often creep in. Such obvious ones as a singular verb to a plural noun may be overlooked, but in an article in this column last month on the growth of the diocese, the comparison of the growth of the diocese as judged by tabulated reports in the Convention Journal, the types have it that the gain in communicants between 1883 and 1884 is 471. It should have been, of course, 47, as a comparison of the figures would show. The point of what is said is lost by the error of the types. The showing is an anxious one, and one that ought to be well considered as to its causes. The number of the communicants reported has no effect whatever on the assessment, as has been sometimes thought. None should be reported who do not properly belong to the parish, but none should be stricken off unless they have removed and also have entered upon the rolls of some other parish, or have died, or have been excommunicated. The confirmed have the privilege of the Holy Communion, but are only to be entered as communicants when they have actually been received to the Holy Communion.

THE CHRISTMAS OFFERTORY.

The harmony of purpose between the spirit of Christmas cheer and thanksgiving, and the object of the canonical collection for that day and season has always been so manifest as to secure for it a large offering. In the time of universal good will it is in keeping to remember with our thank offerings the veterans in the Church's work who have been worn down in its service. The three clergymen who are now beneficiaries on this fund have been all of them either over or nearly fifty years on duty. Their powers are not what they were. It is but the dictate of justice and humanity to help them.

Others must soon be placed on the list, as our means enable us. And at any time those who are vigorous now may by sickness or accident be broken down, and so compelled to become pensioners on the Church's kindness. This is not a gratuity. It is a debt fairly won. During the darkest hour of the Revolution, when the soldiers were turning back, Washington instituted the system of half pay for them for life after their discharge, and so put spirit again into his men, that whatever befell them they would not be forgotten. We cannot give half pay; only a sorry pittance. But what we can do we should. Where the offertory may not be made on the day it should be made on the Sunday nearest possible to Christmas. Amounts should be sent to Mr. Joseph Franklin, Treasurer, corner Sixth and Olive streets, St. Louis.

AN OUTLOOK FROM THE PARSONAGE.

There is a need always before the eye as the Bishop travels through the Diocese, the almost impossibility in the homes of almost all the clergymen to give any of the children any education higher than that which the local public schools furnish. Whatever advantages the parents are likely to have had themselves, there is but a remote chance that the children can have as much themselves, because the narrow income is exhausted before it gets to the matter of the children's higher education.

Of course, it is not to be expected that the children of the parsonage should have chances beyond those of the better children of the parish. But it bears down the influence of the parsonage in the community when its children cannot by any possibility be taught beyond the common school, however bright and apt the child may be, and must be put to producing something so soon as possible. At some time and by some means the father and mother must have had better chances than this.

In the old country, and in many parts of this, a large recruiting for the ministry came from the ministers' boys. It does not seem to be coming out like this now and here. The support is put down to the standard of what will sustain an unmarried man, and for any more in the family than this there has often to be too much trimming and economizing. This anxious economy precludes the idea of the several hundred dollars a year needed for the boy or girl at the academy and by the uncertainty of what is received often disinclines the young man to encounter the humiliations when he can get an honorable independence, with the chance to lay work in the Church, in some other calling.

It will do no good to the parish, or to the general Church, by crowding, to make peasant priests. When one member suffers all the members suffer with it. No temporary expedient can suffice for such a wide and recurring need. There ought to be established for the sons and daughters of our Diocesan clergy, or for such bright and ambitious children among them as desire to excel, scholarships in our Church Academies, to which on competition they could be admitted to the enjoyment of, for two or three years, to pay one hundred dollars each. The rest could in some way be made up. Nothing would give cheer to faithful clergymen so much as this. They do not want to see their children come up scantily taught. They will do what they can themselves. A benefaction of this kind would be wise and would have its influence on the supply of our ministry.

WHERE ARE THE MEN?

In the olden time, under different circumstances, the writer would frequently be persuaded that words personally spoken to, and urged upon certain individuals, in the congregation, pressing the claims of Christian duty, would be attended with success. He had observed indications of interest which, if followed up, suggested that frank and kind approaches would not be resisted. And yet even with the sense of duty strong in him, and with these favoring indications presenting themselves and inviting action, there would often be the strangest disinclination and backwardness in speaking those personal words.

It would be easy to preach, and present, and urge vehemently on the general congregation; the considerations in favor of Christian duty. Indeed the more the personal presenting of the matter was avoided, the greater would be the effort to make up for such personal faltering by vague and public eloquence. And still it was felt that nothing short of this personal grappling with individual doubts, and needs would suffice; that they would elude all other modes of approach, that what was sacred would not utter itself, especially in a man, unless it was encouraged to come forth by indications of personal interest, and ability, and disposition to grapple with questions of duty and need. Indeed while there would be a real interior disposition on both sides to open up the matter that both knew, should be spoken, there would be a perverse relief in any circumstance, that would interrupt the conversation which was approaching sacred and anxious subjects. The minister would have a guilty, and apprehensive belief in finding the person out or busy, as the others were that they could plead some plausible reason why they should not enter on a conversation which would be likely to stir the waters deeply before it was through.

The difficulties, practical and imaginary, those that are real, and those which arise from cowardice, doubtless contribute largely to the small relative number of men who appear on occasions of confirmation. For them if they are to be held at all, something more than the general arrangement of a confirmation class is necessary, useful as this is to those who can be reached by it. In men, if they are to be drawn at all, generally they must be approached singly, and at times that are propitious. And usually there are so few such times. The minister likes to have his evenings to himself, and yet then is the only time when men are generally at leisure. Men, too, resent public invasion into their interior life, and therefore the approach must be by one who can sympathize with doubts, can show strength, and firmness, and be in a degree familiar with the business and the difficulties amid which a man has to live.

In the meantime the minister thinks he discharges his full duty by appointing the confirmation class, and this often in the day time, when practically men cannot appear. They can therefore appease their consciences by the thought that they really are not expected to appear, and that confirmation is simply a duty for women and young persons. In the too usual way the man has to approach the minister first, or else an intimation has to come from the wife or mother urging him to come and speak, because the occasion is ripe. But if it has to come to this, it can be readily seen how many nascent religious promptings and dispositions are allowed to drop away for want of recognition and forwardness in helping on the part of the minister.

When, however, the action is taken, and the word is spoken, how thankful the clergyman is and the person is. The response was full and sympathetic. There were deep thoughts and earnest longings far beyond all expectation. The blow had but to be struck, and the fountain was unsealed.

The Church needs many things and every one; but eminently it needs men—men at confirmation time, men at the communion rail, men devout and prayerful in the vestry and in all the councils of the Church. The reason why they do not appear in these places largely is because they are not approached quietly, strongly and with sympathy and experience, and the words of direction.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The rubric of the Prayer Book orders that when there is no ordinance from the civil authority for Thanksgiving Day, in all of our churches the first Thursday in November shall be so observed. The Governor and the President, probably distracted by the general election, neglected to put out the proclamation until after this first Thursday in last month, or, at least, the Sunday when he had to give notice of service. So of our older, and exact, and orderly clergymen in the Diocese had in his parish the observance of Thanksgiving, according to the Prayer Book on the first Thursday. He had it also later.

—The Church people at De Soto are now moving in the matter of securing for themselves a Rectory on the lot in the rear of the Church. It will be an important and most valuable addition to their facilities, as houses are scarce and rents very high in that town. More than one of their ministers has been seriously hampered in his work by the necessity for living at a distance, and with the dread of the property being sold over his head. The Bishop recently made a visit there, and administered baptism, confirmation, and the Holy Communion. He promised them, in their lack of a pastor, to give them a Christmas Eve Service. The Sunday School is well maintained, and lay services every Sunday, and weekly meeting of the ladies' society.

—The Rev. Thos. B. Lawson, D.D., recently of Texas, has been supplying the parish at Springfield with services until they have secured a Rector.

—The Rev. Mr. Robert was in bed last month, seriously sick, for the first time in twenty-one years. He is up and has probably almost forgotten the circumstance by now in the crowd of work.

—The visit by the Bishop to Cape Girardeau on Sunday, 16th ult., was the first service they had had since his last visit nearly a year ago. It was a beautiful day, and the Church was filled at all the services. Baptism, Confirmation, and the Holy Communion were all had; and in the afternoon the Bishop catechized and addressed the children in the little Sunday School, which is faithfully maintained, and which is superintended by a lady. The visit also concurred with the payment of the note of $200 due on the Church, and the release of the deed of trust. This was done by faithful self-sacrifice on the part of the few. At the night service, in particular, a large number of normal students were present. An offer has been made to the Bishop of some eligibly situated land, and some money, if the Church could establish them a first class seminary for girls.

—The Rev. W. J. Spiers, recently of St. George's Church, in this city, has taken Letters Dimissory to the Diocese of Michigan.

—The series of services held early in November, in St. Charles, proved to be very useful and interesting. The Rev. Mr. Reed preached on Monday night, the 10th ult.; the Rev. Mr. Greene on Tuesday night; the Rev. Mr. Assheton was to have preached on Wednesday night, but sent a telegram excusing himself, and the minister, the Rev. Mr. Moore preached; the Rev. Mr. Lytton preached on Thursday night. The weather was beautiful and the congregation large, and the series of sermons greatly enjoyed. The Bishop made his appointed visit on the week following, the 18th, but the weather had turned stormy, and the congregation, while good, was not so large as those of the preceding week. The Bishop preached, and confirmed twelve persons. It was a very interesting service and occasion.

—The special assessment on All Saints' Church on Washington Avenue, for a sewer, of $117.07 was a heavy burden to come upon it. There is always such a pre-engagement of all revenues that an extra call like this, especially in the case of weak parishes, finds no funds ready, generally, for its payment. The congregation is a very enterprising one, and it has many who sympathize with it in its manly meeting of all its ordinary charges. There was a bill for probably a larger amount for the same object presented to St. Luke's Hospital.

—Dr. Jos. H. Foy, D.D., L.L.D., was admitted candidate for Holy Orders in this Diocese on July 19th. He has spent his candidature in this city.

—Mr. Benj. Wilberforce Timothy, recently a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church, was admitted by the Bishop, on the recommendation of the Standing Committee, as a candidate for Orders in this Diocese on the 29th of October. He has started a mission among the people of his race in Marshall, Saline Co. He is a person of unusual energy and intelligence. He passed creditably high examinations in the West India Islands, where he was born.

—An English clergyman, deputed to look after the English Church people in this country, recently visited a colony in Holt Country, in the northwestern part of the state, where there were seventeen families settled who remained faithful

So very many of these persons only make themselves known when a considerable proportion have joined the neighboring denominations. Dr. Runcie, near whom the colony lives, will shortly visit them, and the Bishop will go there so soon after New Years as possible.

—The Bishop, in whom the title of the property is, was compelled a few weeks ago to give his note and a deed of trust on the Macon Academy property for $4,500 to cover the cost of finishing the middle building, and the third portion in the rear, and also the frame gymnasium. The note was given to the Rev. Mr. Talbot, who, in default of money given in the Diocese for this necessary enlargement of the building, had to put in his own money and borrow in order to complete it. It is a pity that it should thus have to be encumbered. Mr. Talbot meets the interest on the note in lieu of rent, and expects soon with the income to provide a sinking fund by which the debt will be cancelled, and the property belong to the diocese free.

—The Thanksgiving collection at Emmanuel Church, St. Louis County, was as usual very large, and was devoted to the following charities: Cash, Children's Free Hospital, $18 65; cash, St. Luke's Hospital, $12 72; cash, Orphans' Home, $11.25; cash, Free Bed, St. Luke's, $2; total $44 62. There were also the following gifts in kind: 330 glasses of jelly, 12 jars fruit, 140 bags of all sorts, 1 cheese, nuts, pumpkins, &c.

—The Rev. Mr. Trevett, recently of Chilli-cothe, has taken out Letters Dimissory to the Diocese of New Jersey.

—The congregations of St. John's, Mount Calvary, and the Good Shepherd, in this city, united in their Thanksgiving service, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Mr. Reed, of Mount Calvary.

—After grave consideration of many names suggested for the Rectorship of Christ Church, Springfield, the vestry have called the Rev. W. H. Osborn, of Monroe, Mich. He was to have officiated in the parish on yesterday, 14th. His Bishop speaks most highly of him, and only regrets that the need of a milder climate compels him to consider a removal from the Diocese.

—At the Bishop's visit in Joplin, on Sunday 30th ult., there had to be combined in the one service Adult Baptism, Confirmation, and the Holy Communion. The congregation was all that could be packed into the little building. Improvements have been made in it which have added to its attractiveness. The place feels the general depression.

—The Rector of St. Paul's, Mexico, is during the Sundays in Advent preaching a series of sermons on the Four Last Things: Death, Judgment, Heaven and Hell. The Rev. E. Talbot exchanged with him on Sunday 7th inst.

—The Rectory at Carthage is finished and occupied, and reflects great credit on the ladies who have mainly been instrumental in bringing the work through. It has six rooms and has cost $1,200. It is built on one of the two church lots which the parish has owned for a number of years, each 50 by 200 feet. On the other the church used to stand until some six or eight years ago it was moved further down town. This location has now become more valuable for business, and less fitted for a church, and will soon command a good price with which to start the building of a proper church, for which the parish and town stand in great need. The vestry, at a meeting held while the Bishop was there, on the 2nd inst., determined to move the church back on the rear of the old lot, fit it up for services until the new church is built and for Sunday School and guild purposes. They also appointed a committee to negotiate a sale for the down town lot, and thus put themselves in a position to build so soon as they can. The parish is in a very good condition under the Rev. Mr. Bohn. The congregation on Sunday night, 30th ult., when the Bishop was there, was so large that in addition to the use of all the chairs that could be placed, many stood throughout the service, and others had to leave. The Holy Communion was celebrated the next morning.

—The first part of a paper on "The Story of Kemper College, St. Louis," which forty years ago occupied the present site of the County Farm and Insane Asylum, appears in the last number of the Nashotah Scholiast. It has been written by Bishop Robertson. The magazine, devoted to the interests of Nashotah, is published at Nashotah, Wis., at 75 cents a year. It is conducted by a brotherhood of the students.

—Appeal has been taken to the Circuit Court from the decision of the Probate Judge concerning the Barr will, of which mention was made in the last News. Very likely little will be left when the contest is over.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: De Soto, 1; Cape Girardeau, 1, St. Charles, 12; Holy Communion, St. Louis, 1; Boonville, second confirmation this year, 6; Sedalia, 3; Pleasant Hill, 2; Nevada, 2; Joplin, 2; Carthage, 10.

—The Bishop has recently officiated in the following places, where confirmation was not administered: Cuba, St. James, Rolla, Crystal City, Ironton, Charleston, Jefferson City, Warrensburg, Harrisonville, Butler, and Pierce City.

—It is a great loss to the Church in Louisiana, and in the diocese, that Mr. D. A. Stewart has felt himself compelled by consideration of health to purchase a ranche in Colorado, and remove thither. For many years in Sunday School and all forms of Church work he has been an invaluable aid to his rector, and in his parish his loss is almost irreparable.

—The Rev. Dr. Berkley held services in Clinton on Sunday, 23rd inst. His daughter, Mrs. Childs, resides there.

—The congregations of St. George's, St. Peter's and the Holy Communion, in this city, united for their Thanksgiving Service in the last named church, the rector of St. Peter's preaching the sermon. The organ of the Holy Communion has been renovated at a cost of $600, and the new south window is said to have cost $1,500.

—An interesting feature occurred in the confirmation at Boonville, the presentation of a lady born deaf and dumb, who had also first been baptised. She had been for years at the Fulton Asylum, and had attended the services of the Rev. Mr. Mann, for deaf mutes in St. Louis.

—At Sedalia, in addition to the public services, the Bishop met the vestry, and urged upon them the call of a rector, as of imperative necessity in a city become so large as this has. There are now 18,000 inhabitants. The Rev. Dr. Foster does the very best that is possible for a clergyman of his age, and much more than many younger clergymen would do. But the city is widely scattered, and he cannot reach the people. Moreover, the place of holding services in a hall up stairs over a meat shop, now for two years, has operated seriously against the congregation. Many cannot and others will not go there. No week day services can be held. All the books and chancel furnishings must be picked up and put away after each service, because the hall is used every night for lodges. There can be no devotional habits maintained in such a place. The vestry room is in the cold, open passage through which all pass to reach the hall. The prime necessity is to get away from this and into a church of their own. They have a fine lot. To build they must have a rector who will get them together, and infuse them with life and united purpose. The ladies are at work and have $2,000. If the men were half as energetic they would have long since paid off the little debt of $1,200 on the lot, have arranged a systematic financial plan of securing regular amounts for the past two years during which they have had almost no expense, by which now they could have had a sum to apply on the church, and could have had plans for building, and the foundation in. The congregation is intent upon work now.

—Mrs. Robertson granted the use of the parlor of the Episcopal Residence to the lady managers of the Children's Free Hospital, in this city, to hold a Christmas Bazaar on the 5th inst. It was very successful.

—Preparations are making quite extensively in Kansas City to hold a bazaar for the furnishing fund of All Saints Hospital there, which is approaching completion. The Rev. Mr. Jardine has charge of the arrangements.

—The Rev. Cameron Mann has a letter in the December number of the Church Eclectic, condemning Dr. Spalding's article in a previous number, as uttering a too sweeping denunciation of the doctrine of conditional immortality.

—The Rev. Mr. Flichtner, Secretary of the Domestic Missions Committee, has written a letter to the children of the Church in the Young Christian Soldier, proposing that the children should take up and sustain the missions for colored people: and he makes out a scheme by which certain dioceses shall specially make up the amount appropriated to those to which appropriations for colored work are made. He proposes, for instance, that Albany, Missouri, and Montana shall raise the amount, $800, which has been appropriated for this work to this Diocese.

—Trinity Church, in this city, held a bazaar in its Chapel on the 27th and 28th ult. We have not heard of the pecuniary result, but hope that it was satisfactory. The congregation hopes to get into their new church by Christmas.

—The Rev. J. N. Chesnut, pastor of Advent Episcopal Church, was presented a few evenings ago with a full sized portrait of himself, finely executed in oil, by Mr. George A. Davies, and presented by him.

—The Sisters of the Good Shepherd gave to the Church of Advent some beautiful Advent altar cloths and hangings, and remembered the Rector on Thanksgiving Day.

—The Bishop visited Christ Church, Springfield, on the second Sunday in Advent. The Rev. Dr. Lawson assisted in the services. The Bishop preached twice, administered baptism, and confirmed six persons. The parish has a new marble font, made by Geissler, of New York, and finely carved; and also a pair of brass gas standards for the chancel. The Bishop also met the vestry. The number of new Church people who have removed to the town recently is very large. The parish under its new rector bids far to rank high in the Diocese.

—The Rev. Dr. Lawson has, under appointment of the Bishop, taken missionary duty on the line of the Memphis and Gulf road in the towns East and West of Springfield. This is a new and important road recently opened from Kansas City to Memphis, on which are a number of interesting and growing towns.

—St. Peter's Church, in this city, is preparing to have a choir of men and boys vested. They have turned the organ around in order to make room.

—The first service in the new Trinity Church, in this city, will be held on Christmas Eve. It is said to be one of the most complete and convenient churches in the city.

—Some of the lay young men in the city are moving in the matter of starting, under proper sanction, a mission in a needy quarter. We hope that it will be pushed steadily on to result. They will be supported in all that they undertake.

—They are at the point of securing a pipe organ at Mt. Calvary Church, in this city. It is to be one of Kilgen's make, and is to cost $1,200. This will be a great help to them.

—The Ladies' Fair for the Church of the Good Shepherd, St. Louis, held on Thanksgiving Eve, netted $104.75 for the organ fund. They hope to have the organ by Easter. The part of the city where the Good Shepherd is situated is poor, and people change often, and it frequently seems impossible in the loss of valuable members by removal, to make up for the losses; but, united and earnest, they keep on and grow.

—The parish record of Grace Church, Jefferson City, reach back to 1840. There have been some breaks from carelessness in later years, but the earlier rectors were very exact in preserving the records. This should always be done. Cases constantly occur where inquiry is made for the evidence of marriage or baptism. It would not have taken five minutes to have put it down at the time, but it was not done, and great damage results.

—Grace Church, Kansas City, has bought a rectory lot, for which it has paid $3,800. It is further up town than the church. It has paid down on it already $2,300.

—Repairs have been made on Calvary Church, Pleasant Hill, which were essential to the safety of the building. It is of brick, and the walls had parted. Iron rods have been put through the building in both directions, so that it is now perfectly secure. Besides this the interior has been kalsomined, and freshened throughout. At the Bishop's visit, the Rev. Mr. Dunn, who had been quite ill, read a portion of the service, and presented the candidates for confirmation. After the service the parishioners met the Bishop socially at Mrs. Travis'.

—The theatrical representation this year in behalf of St. Luke's Hospital came during the week of the Cattle Convention, and is said to have been very successful in a pecuniary way, although the play was by many thought to be very broad. The dramatic resulted in a handsome balance, which, however, has to suffer diminution from the balance against it last year.

—The Rev. Mr. Burrows has taken hold of his work at Nevada and Clinton with energy, and the brightest prospects of success. They have received him warmly, and appreciate his ability, and will in both of his parishes second heartily his labors.

—The ladies of All Saints Church, Nevada, have been very active, and had the walls and ceiling of the church painted, and the chancel wall handsomely decorated, a vestry room of good size built, and the whole church put in excellent shape. The town is growing and becoming very large and important.

—The Rt. Rev. Bishop Robertson, of the Diocese of Missouri, held a Church service at Wesley Chapel last evening. The house was well filled with an attentive and appreciative audience. The ritual for evening service from the mission service, was rendered by the Bishop and responded to by the audience in a very impressive manner. Mrs. Worley presided at the organ, assisted by an excellent choir. The singing was good and did great credit to all participating. The ritual of the Episcopal Church is grand and commands the reverent attention of all who stand in the presence of the Lord of Hosts, and we can conceive of no higher order of intelligent Christian worship. The sermon was both plain and practical, and the good Bishop talked as a loving father counseling his children in words of wisdom and truth, which came from the heart and touched a responsive chord in the hearts of all present. May we not hope the good words spoken will be made to bear fruit in the changed life and Christian example of all present, and eventually prepare them for those higher and brighter joys beyond.—[Local paper.

THE NEW HOLY COMMUNION.

The changes which have been effected in the interior of the Church of the Holy Communion, in this city, have been so great as to make it seem almost like a new church. It is rendered very much more beautiful than before. In the first place the whole church arrangement is changed. The altar is brought forward under the arch, and the platform is much lower, rising by easy stages. Behind it is a reredos of carved black walnut, in elaborate design, the ends returning at right angles to the corners of the large arch. The portion immediately in the rear of the altar is recessed with columns, and with a backing of tiles.

The window overhead in the tower has light golden glass, and gives a rich halo of light below. The treatment of this tower, and indeed of the ceiling and the walls throughout, is quiet and rich, and in admirable taste. The pulpit is under the arch, on the side towards the vestry room. The chancel rail is of brass, with heavy rich standards. This is the first rail of this kind in the city. It is quite frequent now in the East.

The arrangement of the pews is changed. They are of polished black walnut, with carved ends. The centre aisle is narrow, and there are short wall pews and side aisles. In this way a good portion of the seating space, lost by the cutting off of the transepts, is recovered. There is a new brussels carpet of small figure throughout the church and vestry room.

The building out of an organ chamber to the west adds greatly to the apparent amplitude and width of the church. The use of the arches, and polished granite column, at the opening of the organ space, is a striking and attractive feature.

The large south window, which has not in the past been at all a beautiful thing, is now divided by mullions and filled with exquisite glass, which will bear study for its richness and significance. It is of a subdued tint, and irradiates the church with a delightful color. The treatment of color and figure gives a much greater apparent height to the ceiling. Take it in parts and in the whole effect the renovation is a marked advance in church decoration in the city.

The service for opening, which was fixed for the 16th ult., had to be postponed until the 23rd, on account of the Rector's sickness. The first service in the still not wholly finished building was on the 19th, when the Rector presented to the Bishop for confirmation a gentleman who had recently been a distinguished minister in a large Christian denomination in this city.

ST. CHARLES.

EDITOR CHURCH NEWS:

The little parish of Trinity Church, St. Charles, though one of the oldest, is at the same time one of the weakest in the State. For seven years we were without a pastor. Our Sunday School continued uninterrupted during that time. Now, however, we are in a more flourishing condition, with the Rev. George Moore as rector. Through him we have had the pleasure of enjoying a series of services during the past week. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday two services were held each day. In the morning a short litany service by the Rector, and on Monday night the Rev. Mr. Reed, of Mount Calvary Church, favored us with a sermon. On Tuesday night the Rev. Mr. Greene, of St. John's, kindly officiated. On Wednesday night we hoped to have the Rev. Mr. Assheton, of St. Peter's, with us, but were disappointed, the Rev. Mr. Moore, however, supplied the deficiency. On Thursday night the Rev. Mr. Lytton, of Holy Innocents, preached to us. These services were well attended, and we felt it a privilege to have the opportunity, given those of us who rarely stay over Sunday in the city, of listening to her ministers. We hope their visit proved such as to induce them to come again. Last Tuesday night the Bishop was with us, gave us one of his good practical sermons, and confirmed 12 adults. Unfortunately the weather was bad and the attendance not what we could have wished, but the occasion was very interesting and solemn. On Thursday our Harvest Home Festival was held in conjunction with the Thanksgiving services.

A PARISHIONER.

—The name of the Episcopal Register, of Philadelphia, has been changed to The Church.

GRACE CHURCH, ST. LOUIS.

To the Friends of Grace Church:

The ground has been broken and work begun on Grace Church Parsonage, and it will be advanced as rapidly as possible. The object of securing this building is not only for the far greater facilities it will afford for parish work, but it is also for the bestowing in this way a partial endowment towards the support of successive rectors. The parish is large, widely extended and important, but has no wealthy members. It has a large and beautiful lot of one and two third acres, entirely surrounded by streets, being, I believe, the only very large church lot in the city. And this should never be alienated from the sacred purposes to which it was given. On the contrary, as there is sufficient room upon it for many good Church works, it should be not only by the parish, but carefully and jealously preserved by the whole Church in the city, and made, as it can well be made, a working power of which the whole Church may be glad and proud. But in order to do this it must not be forgotten by its sister churches. It is in a location, somewhat aside from the throng of wealthy church goers, but it is a part of the body, and suffering, the other members should suffer with it, or rejoicing the other members should rejoice with it.

Gratefully acknowledging the kind words and deeds of many friends towards this work.

Advent, 1884.

J. P. T. INGRAHAM.

In addition to the Parsonage, the entire lot has lately been surrounded by a handsome picket fence, 940 feet in length, which is painted and paid for. The lot is also planted with trees, donated by Mr. Henry Shaw.

THE TREASURERS.

ST. CHARLES, DEC. 5, 1884.

MR. EDITOR:

I think the Treasurers of the different funds of the Church, and all other officers and persons of the Church who receive the collections and donations of the different parishes, by mail, ought to publish in the News their address, with street and number, otherwise there is constant danger of miscarriage and trouble. I for one will send no more money, unless I happen to know the address, street, and number of the officer authorized to receive it. Very respectfully,

H. C. LACKLAND,

Treasurer Trinity Church, St Charles, Mo.

[We cheerfully publish the above, but if our correspondent will refer to the second page of the News, he will find the precise address of all the Treasurers of all the Diocesan Funds.—Ed. News.]

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.—The Pall Mall Gazette, of London, England, did not overstate the case when it said that The New York Independent is "one of the ablest weeklies in existence." It is as overwhelming as a monthly or quarterly magazine, with all the matter in its many departments. Any monthly might indeed be proud if it could show as distinguished a list of contributors as The Independent. In a single department—its story department—we find, among Englishmen, such contributors as Sir Samuel W. Baker, the celebrated Egyptian explorer Thomas Hardy, W. E. Norris, James Payn, F. W. Robinson and Henry W. Lucy, the well-known and deservedly popular novelists; while among Americans we notice the names of Edward Everett Hale, Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, Sarah O. Jewitt, J. S., of Dale, Rebecca Harding Davis and Harriet Prescott Spofford. The Independent printed also, recently, the last story from the pen of the late Ivan Tourgenieff, having secured the only translation from Russian into English. This department is but a sample of the others. It would seem to us that The Independent offers not only "fifty two dividends during the year," but, in addition, a stock dividend with each department. We advise our readers to send for a free sample copy.

THE REV. DR. SCHUYLER.

LONDON, August 22, 1884.

MY DEAR BISHOP: I have already drawn so largely upon the columns of THE CHURCH NEWS that I am admonished that I must close these jottings by the way; or else I fear I may impose upon your good nature and weary your readers. Besides, when one comes to England, though he may and will find subjects of the deepest interest to him, more than anywhere else, yet what he may write may be like "bringing coals to Newcastle," because now visitors from our country to England are becoming "the rule rather than the exception." But still, even the same things impress persons differently, and the few things I may choose to notice may be those which others would pass by slightly. England's Church is a broad subject, and England's churches are countless, and her bishops and priests are numbered by the thousand. And so London is a world in itself. There is no place on the face of the globe where so many people are crowded together, and where there is so much doing in the way of business—so much for good and for bad—where so much can be seen to interest every class. Here the commercial man, the man of business, the literary man, the man of science, the antiquarian, the philanthropist, the lawyer, the physician, the clergyman, can each and every one find a special field to enlist his thought and engage his time. And when you think of writing anything about London, you may well question yourself as to where you would begin. When I reached London Bridge Depot, coming in from Brighton, my impression was that of a confused mass of buildings whose roofs only I had seen. The railroads are under ground and over head, and you seldom run on a level with the streets of the city. In fact it would be impossible to do it, for, go where you will, to a portion of the city you might expect to be retired, you will find them crowded. It seems like the lower portion of Broadway, New York, until you get into what may be termed the suburbs of the city. This is so on every day except Sunday. Then the change is amazing, save, it may be, at the time for the beginning or close of the Church services. The streets are apparently deserted during the greater part of the day. Undoubtedly many go into the country, and the boats which are plying constantly on the Thames are filled with pleasure-seekers. The churches, too, are full. We attended at the Abbey and St. Paul's morning and afternoon, and found large congregations, and while no doubt there were many mere curiosity-seekers, yet the greater portion came with their prayer books to take part in the service. In all the churches I have attended, whether on week day or Sunday, the service has been choral, and in no case has there been a processional or recessional hymn sung. The choristers come in quietly, followed by the clergy, and take their places, all preceded by the vergers, and the service is begun after silent prayer. The singing is mostly plain music and hearty, and joined in by the mass of the congregation, while there is provision made for one elaborate anthem by the choir alone, with solos, duets, etc. It was our privilege to hear the noted Canon Liddon in St. Paul's at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. We arrived more than an hour before the time of service, and people had already begun to assemble, and they kept coming in until the time of service. Of course you could not fill St. Paul's; but every available space within the sound of the preacher's voice was filled with a quiet and reverend congregation. There was no bustling about, getting up and going out. The service was sung and the lessons read intelligibly, not muttered, as I heard them in St. Albans's; and you come prepared by the solemn dignity in the manner of conducting the service to listen to the preacher.

Canon Liddon is a great preacher—not in any way sensational. He preaches strictly from his manuscript, without merely reading it, looking about, and impressing with his eye and gesture what he is uttering. His manner is impressive, often impassioned, and accompanied with gestures rather restrained, but emphatic. His style is lucid and direct, and frequently broken by exclamations by which he may give a practical turn to his thoughts. His subject was "Prudence," as illustrated by our Lord's parable of "the unjust steward," translating the word in our version "wisely" as "prudently," so that it would read—"Now the Lord commended the unjust steward because he had done prudently." His interpretation of the text was very clear, and relieved the words of the difficulties which impress the mind of every thoughtful reader. His sermon occupied fifty minutes in the delivery, and yet there was no apparent uneasiness in the congregation, and when they were dismissed they did not go away chatting together of the smart things the preacher had said, or the good hits he had made, but evidently with a sober thought of the solemn truths to which they had listened.

We went one day to Canterbury, where we found much to interest us. And first of the Cathedral: It is grand and imposing; but includes almost every style of architecture, having been burnt at different times and almost destroyed, and changed and enlarged under the rule of its several archbishops at different periods. "Yet the general effect of the exterior, notwithstanding the different ages in which it was erected, is harmonious. * * * The interior is still more striking; the lofty vaulted nave; the long vista of columns lining the aisles; the simple magnificence and vast extent of the Anglo Norman choir," are features which cannot fail to impress the most careless observer. But the historic associations connected with it, and the many tombs of saints and martyrs, of bishops and priests, of princes and nobles, the history of whose lives has been interwoven with its history and the history of England and England's Church, and with the Church Catholic in all ages, makes it a place where one could linger for days. But such was not our privilege. We did, however, have the privilege of attending the daily evening service at 3 p.m., conducted by three priests and a full corps of choristers, and we heard there the best singing we have heard as yet in England. There is in the outskirts of Canterbury a little church which is seldom visited, but which is thought to be the oldest church in England, called St. Martin's. It was built centuries before St. Augustine visited Great Britain; and portions of the wall now standing show that it was a Roman structure, and probably used before the introduction of Christianity as a heathen temple. The tomb of Bertha, the wife of King Ethelbert, is in this church, and there also stands the old stone font in which it is said the King was baptized by Augustine. It is in a good state of preservation, and is kept with scrupulous care and used as a parish church. It stands in the midst of a graveyard, and what gives it additional interest as you approach is the tomb of Dean Alford under the spreading boughs of the ever-green yew tree.

What to me was a matter of great interest, and which I had forgotten at the time was located here, was St. Augustine's Missionary College. The ground on which the buildings stand was occupied by an old abbey. A portion of the walls has been utilized, though the whole exterior and interior arrangement has been changed and new buildings erected. The buildings form a quadrangle, and consist of the Warden's Lodge, Library, Chapel, apartments for the students and native scholars, and rooms for printing; and under the Library is a large room used for carpentering and other mechanic arts and branches of manual industry. The students also attend medical lectures, and are expected to pass an examination requisite for the practice of medicine. The college is designed exclusively for the education of foreign missionaries, and they are trained so that they may be able to help themselves as well as fitted to minister to others.

The buildings are all of stone, and the ground on which they stand was purchased in 1844 by the Hon. Beresford Hope, so well known for his Christian liberality, and the larger portion of the expense of their erection has been borne by him. On the pillars of the arches supporting the wall forming the cloister are written the names of those who have gone to the different foreign fields as missionaries, and already, though only forty years have passed since the purchase of the land, there are long lists under the names of the several dioceses. And in the Mortuary Chapel there is a list, sadly too long, of those who have died in the service of their Master. Like our own beloved Nashotah, it is a work born of faith, and deserves the sympathy and prayers of all the children of the Church. M. S.

—The Committee on the Revision of the Old Testament has completed its work, and put out proposals for the sale of a few copies of its memorial edition for $25 in two volumes. The committee, which received no compensation for its work, seeks to meet the expenses of travel, printing, clerical aid, etc., by the sale of this edition.

—A woman whose son had been ruined by dissipation was fined $2 in Hamilton, Ont., the other day, with the alternative of ten days in jail, because she knelt before a saloon and asked God to curse the liquor traffic.

IN a number of our towns if the Church people, or Ladies Society, would either or together send to the publisher of some one or other of our Church almanacs, they could either themselves get them at a discount, or induce the bookseller to get several for the supply of those who desire. Every family should have a copy, for the sake of the calendar, the clergy list, the biography of the Bishops, and other interesting matter which they all possess. If you do not all want the same one, there is a wide choice for you to pick from, the Church Almanac, Living Church Almanac, and Whittaker's Churchman's Almanac. Get one surely.

THIS is the time when a renewal of the subscriptions to the NEWS should be thought about and acted on. Most of the subscriptions expire with this number. Immediate steps should be taken to collect names, make up clubs, and send in the money, so that the publisher may know what edition to strike off. Many dollars are lost by a failure to do this. Papers are sent to those who have removed, and afterwards inquiries are made for back numbers which are thus lost, and which cannot always be supplied. The NEWS is the common interest and property of the Diocese, and therefore all are concerned about its welfare. Send in promptly your names, addresses, and amounts.

THE amounts which have been received by the Diocesan Missionary Board lately have been very small and but from few places. On the first of this month, when the regular quarterly amounts were sent to the missionaries, the balance left in the treasury was very small. The sums acknowledged in the Treasurer's report do not look as though any point had been given to the collection, or any previous notice had been made of its object. If each place felt that the continuance of services therein depended on a fair giving on its part and on the part of all in the congregation—not an idle dropping in of the smallest piece which the hand struck upon in the pocket—there would be a better showing, and one worthier of our Lord and of His goodness to us, than that which the report in another column shows.

MR. INGERSOLL is not such a self-sacrificing apostle of free thought as to be unmindful of the ducats. He lectured in Kansas City lately on a Saturday night, and probably cleared $500 by his lecture. He spent Sunday coming to St. Louis, arriving an hour and a half before his time for beginning at Pope's theatre with the same address, which the local enterprise of the Globe had caused to be telegraphed from Kansas City, and appeared verbatim here twelve hours before its delivery. Here he probably cleared $500 more, there being about twelve hundred present, and few ladies. It was the same old hash of coarse ridicule and pulling down, with no constructive alternative to suggest in place of what he wanted to destroy. But he had his $500, and probably laughed at his dupes. The next morning he was off to Indianapolis, to deliver his lecture there that night. He will probably clear $2,500 a week from it. He does not, with his stuffed pocket, care for wrecked faiths and ideals.

FIRST PRINCIPLES.

The Diocesan Assessment never can be anything but a necessary evil. It cannot be made an agreeable thing. It is seen by all who think to be what cannot now be done without. No effectual way seems so far to be invented by which the levy can be obviated. It is met generally with candor and promptness. A little examination, also, shows that it bears least heavily on those parts of the Diocese that get, on the whole, the most of the Bishop's time and attention.

The larger parishes, which have the greater part of the burden, take care of themselves, their old habits and traditions enable them to get on with little oversight. It is the smaller and remoter places which have frequent changes, and are restless because they want more than their money's worth, and do not keep their minister; these are the points which always take the larger share of the Bishop's time and correspondence. Of course, it ought to be so.

But it is at this point, as judged by the Treasurer's report, where the slackness in payment is most seen. The smaller stations are not often represented in Convention. They do not know what the assessment is for. In their imagined greater discomfort they easily make neglect excusable by saying, "Those big parishes in St. Louis can take care of that." Their connexion with the Diocese consists in little more than in the visit of the Bishop, and the receipt by them of the missionary stipend.

And of this last they often think that it is rather a favor done to the missionary than a gift to themselves. The Missionary Board several years passed a rule that the payment of the regular stipend to the missionary should depend upon his making a full and regular report, upon his seeing to it that at least a quarterly collection was made in each station for its treasury, and that the assessment and the three canonical collections in the year should be made. This seemed very reasonable. The stipend could not be kept up unless the places all did their fair part towards keeping the missionary treasury supplied. They might not be able to do much, but might be supposed to be glad to do all they could for what was keeping their own church doors open. Unless the assessments were paid, the Bishop, whose help and counsel they were constantly invoking, could not be supported. The three canonical offerings, for helping candidates for orders, and so keeping up the clerical force of the diocese; for the aged and infirm clergymen of the diocese, and for the Permanent Episcopal Fund, the object of which is to reduce the amount of the annual assessment; these have all been ordered by the Convention, in which each parish is supposed to be represented, and so each may be taken as having pledged itself to compliance with the law of the annual offerings.

But the complaint has been made that these conditions to the receiving of the stipend are hard, and that it is the missionary that pays the assessments and the collections, in order that he may get the balance. Shame on the people whom they serve, if this is ever so! He should state plainly the rule and the reason of it, and there can be no doubt that those who have, from tenderness or fear, been allowed to be ignorant of the facts, will do their duty.

The great bulk of the missionary money is given by those who believe in upholding the law; they give for places which they never have seen, and for persons with whom they have little or no acquaintance. They do it, and often out of their poverty, for the Church's sake. They pay their own assessments, and expect others to do the same. They meet the canonical requirements. They would not willingly help those who, after they have deliberately voted obligations on themselves, distinctly violate and ignore them. They could not encourage what is thus mean and dishonest. In giving they assume that these conditions would be complied with, whether they were imposed as conditions or not, simply because they are the evident requirements for a continuance of Diocesan progress and help.

The Board, no doubt, in its action, saw that unless the duty was thus emphasized, it would be forgotten by those who rarely come to Convention, and then that the Convention delinquency would have to be made up by those who had already paid their part; and that then from this would result an irritation against those who were always anxious to receive and not to do, which would work injury to the missionary interest and diminution of receipts.

PERSONAL.

--There was an extraordinary suicide of the Rev. Mr. Williamson, of New Jersey, last month. He was of an old family of wealth and intelligence, and made elaborate preparations for what should be done with his body after his death. He was thought to have been insane by reason of the death of his mother.

--The clerical obituary of the month includes the name of Rev. Norman Jefferson, of Indiana.

--It is stated and also denied that Mr. John Russell Lowell, Minister to England, will, in case of his recall next spring, take up his residence in Oxford.

--Col. Jas. R. Shaler is now permanently located in Memphis, Tenn.

—The Rev. Dr. Worthington has accepted the election to the Episcopate of Nebraska. The choice lately of the Bishops-elect of Assistant of Central Pennsylvania, Maryland and Nebraska leaves three very important parishes vacant in Cleveland, Washington and Detroit. Here is room for our younger men to go up. There is always room at the front for those who have shown themselves qualified for larger trusts.

—Mr. Gilliam, formerly a presbyter of this diocese, who went to the Roman Catholics two years ago, appears as Prof. Gilliam in an article in the November number of the North American Review on the African Problem.

—Much interest was added to the occasion of the collation following the formal introduction of Bishop Rulison to the diocese of Central Pennsylvania by the reading by Bishop Howe of a letter dated Lowville, N.Y., 1863. It was addressed by a lady to a friend, and describes "the intense excitement which prevails in this community over the defection of a young man named Rulison from the Methodists to the Episcopalians. It is the absorbing topic of conversation of the town. One good old lady exclaimed, 'Oh! oh! to think of a young man so good and so spiritual going over to the Episcopalians!' Another drew consolation from the thought 'that the Episcopalians will have at least one spiritually-minded man in their midst.'" Bishop Howe would not give the name of the writer.

Rev. M. K. Schermerhorn, of the Channing Memorial (Unitarian) Church in Newport, R. I., has applied to become a candidate for orders in this Church. He has been a very distinguished minister in his denomination. He goes forth in a kindly spirit, but expresses himself very despondingly as to its future. He says its churches are declining in numbers and spirit throughout the country.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $5,000, from the children and those interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a Cot and a room for a child at our Hospital where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis

WE refer our readers to the card of Mrs. C. B. Holmes, 804 Olive street, who has on hand an endless variety of Christmas Cards, admirably suited for presents for Sunday School children; also, kindergarten goods. Among the Christmas Cards the most charming to the eye are the Flower Songs Series, comprising (among a great many others) one called a "Bunch of Roses," with the deep red, the white and the light red beautifully portrayed. As a piece of elegant artistic work it cannot be surpassed anywhere. Let no man possessing the true spirit of gallantry fail to procure one of these elegant Christmas Cards for his wife, mother, sister, daughter, sweetheart or lady friend.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The creditors of Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, representing several millions of dollars, which were loaned and put into the building of Roman Catholic churches and schools, and which have not been paid back, have organized and asked the Plenary Council in Baltimore for relief. They protest against the repudiation of their debts, which have caused great suffering to the poor, and say: "People are beginning to think that if heaven needs all the substance of the widow and orphan to keep the clerical profession in opulence and splendor, it is time to retire from the sanctuary and delve." Many have cast off all connexion with the church in consequence. It would be better to give up the property thus secured than hold it by sophistical pleas.

—One of the strangest results of the Presidential election was the proceeding taken by a Congregational Church in Iowa against its pastor because he did not vote for a certain Presidential candidate.

—On Thanksgiving Day the Unitarian Church of the Messiah celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its organization, and Chancellor Eliot delivered a historical sermon. He was in charge of this church from the beginning until twelve years ago. In the course of his sermon he said: "They had no joy in any progress of infidelity, and not one of their number would rather see Robert Ingersoll take the place of Archbishop Kenrick, no matter how wide his liberality might be."

—The lot in the rear of Christ Church in this city, between that and the alley, was given some years ago by Judge Lucas to the Missouri Historical Society and the Academy of Sciences. The court has recently confirmed this property to them. They want to sell it and divide the proceeds. They were once offered $10,000 for it. It is now by them valued at no more than $5,000.

BOOK NOTICES.

The danger of incidental harm to the community, or to certain classes of people, from the increased use of machinery, the extension of public works, etc., is greatly diminished when those who make the laws, and especially those whose duty it is to interpret them recognize that law is a progressive science; that it is a means, not an end; that when a state of things arises for which there is no precedent, a new precedent must be made. How the most enlightened jurists hold this principle constantly in view, and how the common as well as the statute law is thus made to keep pace with the general advance of civilization, is admirably set forth in the leading article in the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for December, "Labor and Capital before the Law," by Judge T. M. Cooley, of Michigan. To the same number William K. Ackerman contributes some suggestive "Notes on Railway Management." Dr. Scheilman tells what he found in his excavations of the ruins of Tyrins, in Southern Greece, and Principal Shaïr supplements his scholarly article on "Friendship in Ancient Poetry" one on "Friendship in English Poetry." The other articles are "The British House of Lords," by George Ticknor Curtis, and "Responsibility for State Roguery," by John F. Hume.

THE LIVING CHURCH ANNUAL FOR 1885. This comes promptly, a book each year of increasing size, and full of carefully prepared matter. Every family should have a Church Almanac, and this is full of useful information. 25 cts. S. A. Maxwell & Co., 134 and 136 Wabash avenue, Chicago.

OUT OF EGYPT. By G. F. Pentecost. These are the last two issues of the Standard Library, as usual of substantial value and well published. There is peculiar appropriateness in the issue of the first, as the 31st of this month is the third centenary of the death of the day star of the English Reformation. The second volume is a series of Bible readings on the Book of Exodus. 25 cts. each, in stout paper covers. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

THE AMERICAN CHURCH REVIEW, October. This long-established quarterly of our church, now in its forty-fourth volume, comes out in a thick volume of 300 pages, handsomely put up in heavy paper and clear type. There are nearly twenty articles, on fresh and important subjects, by some of our first writers, with a steel engraving of Bishop Clarkson. The cost is only $3 a year, with the weekly issue of the Church Press given also. There would be more full rounded Christian characters if there was more quiet reading of such articles as these. Church Press Association, No. 12 East Fourteenth street, New York.

THE HOLY CHURCH THROUGHOUT ALL THE WORLD. By Rev. Samuel Fox. This little book, which has appeared in parts in the Living Church for some time past, gives in a bright way the varied and interesting story of the Church's growth and fortunes. It should be placed in Sunday School libraries. Cloth, pp. 152. 25 cts. Living Church Company, 162 Washington street, Chicago.

THE RELIGIONS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD. By Prof. George Rawlinson. Sent to any address for 30 cts. J. Fitzgerald, publisher, 20 Lafayette place, New York. The study of the religious systems of antiquity, of the forms assumed by religious ideas in their development among the Egyptians, Babylonians, Chaldeans, Greeks, Romans and other ancient peoples; their mythologies, their curious rites and ceremonies, their beliefs as to a future state, etc., is one of the most important and interesting branches of historical research. No more competent guide in this fascinating study could be found than Mr. Rawlinson, the well known author and Camden Professor of Ancient History in the University of Oxford.

THE DECEMBER CENTURY. The Century for December has for its frontispiece a profile portrait of General Grant, engraved from a recently found photograph taken in 1862. It accompanies the second of the papers on the Civil War, "The Capture of Fort Donelson," which is contributed by General Lew Wallace. A score of illustrations present views on the field, portraits of officers, maps, and (not the least interesting) an autograph copy, recently made by General Grant, of his famous "Unconditional Surrender" dispatch to General Buckner. The "Recollections of a Private" are continued, with descriptions of the early "Campaigning to no Purpose" along the Potomac, with illustrations. In both papers the drawings are nearly all from photographs.

The fiction consists of "An Adventure of Huckleberry Finn, with an account of the famous Grangerford Shepherdson Feud, by Mark Twain, being a tale of life along the Mississippi River, and the second part of Mr. Howells's new novel, 'The Rise of Silas Lapham.'"

Other illustrated papers are "Dublin City," George E. Waring, Jr., the sanitary engineer, sets forth in detail by diagram a subject of pressing importance in a paper on "The Practical Aspects of House-drainage."

THE CHRISTMAS ST. NICHOLAS. John G. Whittier opens the Christmas St. Nicholas with a beautiful poem, entitled "The Light That is Felt;" while Lord Tennyson is represented by a charming portrait of his two grandchildren. Another artist-author, Mary Halleck Foote, writes and illustrates a delightful sea side article, called "Menhaden Sketches—Summer at Christmas-time."

J. T. Trowbridge contributes a new serial, called "His One Fault," of which there is an installment that breaks off just where we all wish to know what happened next; F. R. Stockton, in his second "Personally Conducted" paper, jumps from France to Genoa, with a graphic description of "The City of the Bended Knee," Louisa M. Alcott has another jolly spinning-wheel story, "The Hare and the Tortoise."

Among the distinctly Christmas features are "Visiting Santa Claus; the very Little Folks' story, 'Madie's Christmas;' a description of several noted Christmas feasts in Westminster Hall, and a clever sketch, "What the Philosopher Said on Christmas Day."

THE CHRISTMAS WIDE AWAKE opens resplendently with a beautiful frontispiece in color—a reproduction by L. Prang & Co. in eighteen colors, of a water-color by F. H. Langren; it is a festival interior—a joyous Christmas scene. A second brilliant pictorial attraction is a series of ten historic drawings illustrating Mr. Butterworth's "Wonderful Christmases of Old;" a third fine illustrated article entitled "Child Life in Venice;" a fourth pictorial paper describes the visit of a party of Western school girls to the Christmas card workshops of Louis Prang & Co. Evidently the serial stories for the year are to be a strong element. The opening one is "Down the Ravine;" it is a Tennessee story. "In Leisler's Times" is a serial of old Dutch New York, full of life and "go." "The Bubbling Teapot" is a wonder story. There are two humorous Christmas stories—"Benny in Court" and "The Postman's Doll." $3 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

Bishop Huntington is writing an article on "Vituperation in Politics for the January number of the North American Review.

MUSICAL HERALD. Monthly, Franklin Square, New York—November and December. The numbers are filled with musical news and choice bits of fine music.

NORTHWESTERN PULPIT. Sermons by Waldo Messaros. Vol. 1, No. 20. Divorce. $2 per annum. F. A. Wunder, 825 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TRUE. By George Parsons Lathrop. "True" is a tale of North Carolina life, the scene being laid, for the most part, near Palmico Sound. It has the merit of being thoroughly an American story, though the basis for the plot is laid in the separation of two English lovers in the early days of American colonization, the lady going with her father to the new world, her lover being at the last moment forced to remain in England, never again to see his sweetheart. From this separation and the chance meeting, after 200 years, of a descendant of the young Englishman with representatives of his sweetheart's line, Mr. Lathrop weaves a tale of uncommon interest and of much dramatic power. The other stories in the volume, "Major Barrington's Marriage," "Bad Peppers," "The Three Bridges," and "In Each Other's Shoes," are good each in its own way, and afford a variety of most excellent reading. 25 cts. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 Dey street, New York.

MASON & HAMLIN'S UPRIGHT PIANOS are not as high priced as the most expensive of such instruments. Every one who is a judge of good workman-ship and material will see why they cannot be as low priced as the poorest.—[Boston Journal.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE FOR 1885.—The Living Age will soon enter upon its forty-first year of successful publication. As it is the only satisfactorily complete and fresh compilation of an indispensable current literature, a literature which grows richer and more abundant every year in the work of the ablest writers of the time, it is invaluable to the American reader. Supplying the place of many reviews, magazines and papers, it enables him at small expense, considering the quantity and quality reading matter furnished, to keep pace with the best thought and well abreast of the best literature of the day. The prospectus of this magazine for 1885 is worthy the attention of all who are selecting their reading matter for the new year. Reduced clubbing rates with other periodicals are given, and to new subscribers remitting now for 1885 the intervening weekly numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

MISCELLANY.

—"Experience may be a dear teacher," remarked a clergyman as the contribution box was returned to him empty, "but the members of this particular flock who have experienced religion have accomplished it at a very trifling cost. The choir will sing the seventy-ninth hymn, omitting the first, third, and fourth verses, in order to save unnecessary wear on the organ." Another minister who had lent his hat to take the collection, which did not amount to much, took the matter philosophically, and found his consolation in the reflection, that he was glad he had gotten his hat back safe anyway.

—A woman who married a drunkard on his promise to reform, asked an Indiana Court for a divorce recently on account of the husband's failure to keep his promise. But the Judge told her that in marrying a man she knew to be a drunkard she had voluntarily assumed the obligations of a drunkard's wife, and must do her duty as such by bearing with his infirmities if she could not reform them.

—A story is told of old "Father" Thurston, who, being called upon to pray at a missionary gathering, began searching his pockets most vigorously. Thinking he had not understood the nature of the request, some one near him said, "You were asked to lead in prayer." "I heard," replied the venerable old gentleman, "but I can't pray until I pay."

—The Church Standard says: "Let parents beware what they say about the sermon or the preacher before their children, in whose hearts the Word of God may beseeching a lodgment. Why pray in the morning for the conversion of sinners and then, by cold criticism of the sermon, neutralize the very means by which it pleases God to save? Thoughtless comments at the dinner-table will do this far more effectually than all the profanity the children hear as they pass the drinking saloons on their way to school."

SLEEPY CONGREGATIONS.—Sometimes clergymen unjustly blame themselves for the drowsiness that pervades their congregation at the evening services, and the congregations, with seeming justice, are often of the opinion, that their pastors deserve all the blame they get.

The true case, not infrequently, is the improper position of the lamps or gas jets, which throw the light into the eyes in such a way as to make closing the lids involuntary.

By the use of proper reflectors the lamps can be placed near the ceiling, and a soft, pleasant light will be diffused throughout the room, of sufficient strength to read ordinary print with ease.

The best reflectors of which we have personal knowledge are manufactured by I. P. Frink, 551 Pearl Street, New York. They have proved very satisfactory in many large churches in cities where gas or electric light is used, as well as hundreds of small country churches where kerosene lamps are the only illuminating means available. They increase the light about fourfold, and we have yet to hear of an instance of dissatisfaction where they have been used.—Christian Union.

BEST BAKING POWDER.

INTERESTING TESTS MADE BY THE GOVERNMENT CHEMIST.

Dr. Edward G. Love, the present Analytical Chemist for the Government, has recently made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use, and as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder. Dr. Love's report gives the following:

Name of Baking Powders.	Strength Cubic Inches Gas per each ounce of Powder.
"Royal" (absolutely pure).....	127.4
"Patapasco" (alum powder).....	125.2*
"Rumford's" (phosphate) fresh.....	122.5*
"Rumford's" (phosphate) old.....	32.7*
"Hanford's None Such," fresh.....	121.6
"Hanford's None Such," old.....	84.35
"Redhead's".....	117.0
"Charm" (alum powder).....	116.9*
"Amazon" (alum powder).....	111.9*
"Cleveland's" (short weight $\frac{3}{4}$ oz.).....	110.8
"Sea Foam".....	107.9
"Czar".....	106.8
"Dr. Price's".....	102.6
"Snow Flake" (Groff's, St. Paul).....	101.88
"Lewis'" Condensed.....	98.2
"Congress" yeast.....	97.5
"Pearl".....	93.2
"C. E. Andrews & Co.'s" (contains alum).....	78.17*
"Hecker's".....	92.5
"Gillet's".....	84.2
"Bulk".....	80.5

* In his report, the Government Chemist says:

"I regard all alum powders as very unwholesome. Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their gas too freely in process of baking, or under varying climatic changes suffer deterioration."

Dr. H. A. Mott, the former Government Chemist, after a careful and elaborate examination of the various Baking Powders of commerce, reported to the Government in favor of the Royal brand.

RUPTURE!

Dr. J. A. Sherman of New York, specialist in the treatment and cure of rupture for the past thirty five years, has, by the earnest solicitation of many who are afflicted and could not spare the time to go to New York, friends of those whom he had on former visits here treated and cured, came to St. Louis and opened up his old offices, Granite Building, 404 Market Street, where they and others interested may daily consult him and avail themselves of his experience and remedies.

Dr. Sherman's treatment is altogether external yet so effective that the patient is enabled to perform any kind of labor with safety from the dangers or strangulated rupture and without interfering with the cure; that he does not prescribe medicine or perform any surgical operation; that his system is one of his own discovery, wholly artistic and free from the vexation, discomfort and injury arising from the use of trusses, and that trusses are a life scourge—rupture cultivators—predisposing kidney, bladder and other organic ailments that undermine health even more than rupture.

Those who desire to fully inform themselves and take advantage of the experience of others, should send ten cents for Dr. Sherman's Book which contains strong endorsements from physicians, clergymen, merchants and farmers who have been treated and cured, with accompanying supplement of photographic likenesses of bad cases before and after cure.

Remember, Dr. S's time in St. Louis is limited. Office, 404 Market Street.

THE ADVANTAGES OF BUYING

.....AT.....

BARR'S

Are very numerous, and if fully appreciated by the people of St. Louis, very little would be bought outside of our house.

JUST CONSIDER:

We have an experience in this city of nearly 36 years, and know its wants thoroughly. We keep no shoddy or second-class goods. We sell the qualities we do keep as low as other houses sell second-class. Our perfect store arrangements prevent our having any old or shop-worn goods. Our light is just as good upon a dark as on a bright day. We have now the most expeditious system of making checks and delivering goods ever invented. We have the largest stock of goods in the West.

The position of the store is the most central in the city, being within one or two blocks of every street railroad in St. Louis.

William Barr Dry Goods Co.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

BARR'S
METHOD OF MAKING CHECKS AND DELIVERING GOODS.

The Cash Boy Nuisance has been abolished at Barr's, and there are no more delays in sending parcels long distances to be done up.

Customers should note the simple method employed to get a record of each sale, and make at same time the delivery of goods secure.

The salesman or cashier just writes the transaction once upon one of the Auto-graphic Registers used by the house, and this writing copies the articles upon a duplicate paper, which passes into the Register, and thus charges the cashier with the amount of sale.

The salesman then takes goods to cashier or parcel clerk, who is right at the department, and he in turn examines them and sees that they correspond with the bill, which in every case the customer must get.

Thus all the red tape used in the old time is done away, and purchasers can get almost any article in the store billed, examined and delivered in less than one minute.

Customers should never urge salesmen to deliver goods without a bill, for they can, from the foregoing, see that it is entirely against the rule, and the time taken is now so short that the delay is not noticeable. Besides, the bills given customers are always useful to them in case of errors or exchanging goods, when the check should be returned.
